HE TRUSTED HIS FRIEND. Romantic Story, a Venture And a Fortune.

A remarkable story concerning the fortunes of two Ontario boys, both formerly of Collingwood on Georgian Bay, but one of them now a successful contractor in Chicago, and the other a mining man in British Columbia, has come to light. Last August Mark F. Madden, Marquette Buildin received a telegram from Charles Mr. Keeley said he was paying $30 McArthur, of Greenwood, B.C., re questing the immediate loan of $5,000 with no security but his friend's word of honor. Mr. Madden recalled that as a boy McArthur had been a stickler for honor, and he resolved to take the Columbia, when he found McArthur A company was organized, Madden elected president and the mine secured. The mine paid ten per cent, dividend last month, and Madden has seen his $5,000 grow into $100,000. Thus boyhood's friendship and faith in riend's honor has had a big reward. Though they had early separated, Mc-Arthur to follow mining wherein he made and lost several fortunes, and making their fortune.

It was through Dr. Evans that Nadar and King Edward, of England, were brought together. In an in terview, talking about the peculiarities present king of England. The Prince sitters. He always came in as if principally bent on lounging about the studio and hearing me talk about my old days, my ballooning adventures, my boulevard gossip, and all that sort of thing. The siege of Paris during the Franco-German war and the manner in which Dr. Evans assisted in Euenie's escape especially interested him. Then, before going, he or I would casually suggest that we try a negative or two. The result was always good, because he felt thoroughly at home and natural. But his talk was ways about men and actualities. about books or pictures. If I could tell him a good story of Sir Frederick Leighton or about Whistler he joyed it. If I mentioned their cess in art he looked bored.
