A TERRIBLE EXPLOSION. Fourteen Killed And Thirteen Wounded. London, June 15.—A terrific and fatal explosion occurred in the Hilditch factory at Woolwich this morning. Five buildings were completely wrecked, the latest report places the dead at fourteen and the injured at thirteen. Those killed were blown to atoms. The remains are unrecognizable, inasmuch as the fragments are so small that they were gathered up in baskets. The scene about the wrecked buildings is pathetic in the extreme. Women and children and even strong men are standing about weeping, many of them vainly trying to see in the burnt fragments of the bodies some semblance of a missing loved one.

DO NOT BIND SANDS. Shrubs Planted on Sable Island Fast Dying Out. Halifax, N.S., June 15.—Two years ago the Canadian department of marine imported eighty thousand shrubs from France, which were set out on Sable Island. This was done in the hope of preventing the island from being laid out from being washed away by the wind and sea currents which are constantly changing the location of the place. These shrubs have proved a failure, so say men just returned from the island. The plants are fast dying out for lack of nourishment and the fierce gales tear them up from their feeble roots. Foxes are multiplying fast on the island, and are causing much damage.
