SUNDAY WORK

OF MAKING CHEESE AGAIN RECEIVES DISCUSSION.

A Sydenham Resident Replies To The Criticisms Of His Letters For Sunday Observance, Sydenham, June 23.- To the Edi By your issues of the 11th and

15th inst., I see replies to my let of the 3rd ult. I will endeavour answer both my worthy friends turn. It was not my intention writing my first letter to carry any discussion on the "care of milk but I can not, however, let some ver misleading assertions go unanswered I will first take up the letter of my farmer friend from Harrowsmith, M. worthy farmer, like a good many of his disposition in all walks of imagines he knows more on the subject of milk than those gentlemen who lecture at the Farmers' Institutes and who have made a thorough and

But Farmer reminds me very strongly of the pharisees in the temple; he thanks the Al mighty he is not a sinner like the DENT. cheesemakers who work on Sunday but when the monthly check comes along he does not stop to ask if a portion of the same has not been made for him on the Lord's day. No > some one would get hold of it. Mr. Farmer says he knows cheese nakers who are in their beds at clock Sunday morning. More power o them if they are, but they should have three hours before, for these late hours are injurious to health But here I must ask Mr. Farmer if he knows what kind of cheese these makers have made, if they are finished at one a.m. Some leave the curd in th earlier and finish up. This I know to be a positive fact. Others make what known as "soft cheese," and are finished about d or 2 a.m., but this kind of cheese is made in very few factories, for the patrons want the regufar Canadian cheddar cheese made

But prietors would willingly dispense with the Saturday night work, if the pa milk, and I thank God that the majority of farmers, patrons of factories. One would imagine from the tenor of his letter that it is an unheard thing to have a can of milk sent home of a Monday or any other morning. This is absolutely mislead ing for many cans of milk are often sent home Monday mornings from the factories, and it is generally the be allowed to stray through Victoria Sunday night's mess, which has been either neglected altogether or care lessly cared for, as likewise often happens during the week. Now, my friend from Kepler, you are certainly very modest in your de mands. You wish me and the proprie tor to take care and look after your property. I am afraid your microscope in another's eye and has not reflected the ($) beam in your own. You cannot take care of a few hundred pounds of milk, while your cheesemaker, spending an hour or so Saturday night, a few minutes Sunday morning and night cares for a couple of tons of milk at least, with the ice supplied his factory. This is a truth. Is it not? Yes, it is, but you want another to take the onus of the care of your property, when during the winter months you could easily procure enough ice from Loborough Lake near by. But, like a few more of your kind, you want to get rid of a few minutes work, Saturday night or Sunday morning, and want all the dollars in it for yourself. If the patrons of factories where the vat capacity is not prietors half way, I have no doubt. more vats would be procured and the Sunday cheese making become a thing milk than is now generally done. I am not speaking at random, but from

I fail to see any self-sacrificing in your practical study of the same. On this a Saturday night, either to be made subject of care of milk I fear it is up then or kept over under the care useless to enlighten him, as from the of the cheesemaker.
