Could Not Lie On Her Left Side.

WAS TROUBLED WITH PAIN IN HER HEART FOR SIX YEARS.

Expected Her Friends Would Find Her Dead.

Mrs. C. Bondrea, Campbellton, N.B., was completely cured by

MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

She tells of her experience in the following letter: "I was troubled with a pain in my heart and weakness for six years. Most of the time I could not lie on my left side. I consulted a doctor but got no relief and was completely discouraged. I did not think I would live long and expected my friends would find me dead. A friend brought me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I took them to please her, not thinking they would do me any good. I had not used half the box when I commenced to feel myself getting better and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and can recommend them to all sufferers from heart trouble."

PROTEST OF NON-CONFORMIST BODIES

In England Against Fraudulent Degrees - Bishop Removes a Stone Altar - A Famous Picture Moulded.

The Trappist monks expelled from France have bought an estate of 500 acres in Wiltshire, Eng., and will erect a monastery.

Leonardo da Vinci's famous picture of "The Last Supper" in Milan, has long been mouldering, and has now virtually ceased to exist.

The leading Nonconformist bodies in England have entered on a crusade against American universities that make a traffic in fraudulent degrees of D.D., etc.

The crusade against gambling is growing in England. The Ladies' League, formed to persuade hostesses to discontinue it, has received many promises of support.

Prof. W. Douglas Mackenzie, of Chicago, has accepted the presidency of Hartford Theological Seminary, and the professorship of systematic theology, and will undertake his new duties in January.

Prof. Elliott will occupy the pulpit of Sherbrooke street church, Montreal, for the next few weeks, while Rev. C. E. Blain, newly appointed pastor, is on his vacation. Mr. Blain is expected back from England about the middle of August.

The oldest Sunday school in London is that erected in 1815, in connection with the Hoxton Academy school. The school was really started in 1784 by a Hoxton shoemaker, who tramped from London to Gloucester to get the advice of Robert Raikes, the founder of Sunday schools.

Lieut.-Col. Seton Churchill tells of a Kafir who, seeing a drum-head service during the first Boer war, asked our officers what it meant. "They are worshipping God," he was told, "and want to go to heaven where He lives." "Heaven very nice place?" asked the Kafir. "Yes," was the reply. "Then why," asked the Kafir, "you English not annex heaven?" Dr. Ryle, the new bishop of Winchester, has consecrated St. Matthew's church, Portsmouth. He complained that the plans of the church had not been submitted to show its authority, with the result that a stone altar had been introduced, and he had had to give instructions for its removal. These he was glad to say, had been complied with. Three altars had been erected, and though not illegal he thought the third undesirable, as there was no need for it, and in misguided hands it might be used for solitary masses and devoted to the saints. If the laity objected to the roof screen and its figures he would order their removal. He would absolutely prohibit the practice of reservation.

It is expected that Rev. William Ashley Read, the newly appointed rector of St. Luke's church, Ottawa, will commence his pastoral duties early in July. The reverend gentleman is a Canadian by birth and received his early education at Trinity College school, Port Hope, from which he proceeded to St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, where he had a distinguished career, and graduated with distinction. Returning at once to Ontario, he became incumbent of Oxford Mills, where he had a successful career, being especially happy in his dealings with young men. Amongst those who fell under his influence was a lad named Anderson, who by his teaching was led to seek holy orders, and now is well known in the American church as the Right Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson, co-adjutor bishop of Chicago. About 1890 Mr. Read effected an exchange with Rev. Joseph Forsythe, of Port Hope, and remained there as rector of Holy Trinity church for ten years. In 1900, he became rector of St. Paul's church, Almonte.

NEW YORK FASHIONS. A Easy Letter Provided By Maude Griffin.

New York, June 27.—There is nothing so pretty as the summer gown, unless it be the winter one, and this is doubtful. Certainly the exquisite new voiles can not be surpassed for elegance and chic, for they are as sheer as mull, yet elegant enough to grace the figure of a queen.

A very dainty model worn by a member of Gotham's smart set, who has just returned from her annual European vacation is in this material with a plaited skirt, and a deep belt of trine-colored Russian lace, with a fllet ground, threaded with twisted mauve satin baby ribbons. The lace is continued down the front of the skirt, in the form of a panel, and near the bottom the mauve satin ribbons are finished with many little bows and loops which contrast beautifully with the creamy white of the dress material.

The transparent is as much in vogue in Paris as in New York is shown in this dress. The bodice is cut in a slightly low square and the yoke is of heavy cream tulle, but softer, finer quality than that used on the skirt. The sleeves are particularly attractive, the upper part consisting of Russian lace fitting closely round the arm and left transparent. Below the lace there comes a drapery of voile, drawn into a band of lace just below the elbow.

If summer modes have one characteristic that stands out more prominently than another it is their youthfulness. Without being giddy, the general fashionable outline is delightfully girlish and graceful, lending itself to the various touches that lend dignity and charm.

This idea is exemplified in a pretty rose-colored linen frock that shows an effective color scheme for the girlish or a crushed satin in soft red satin.

Although there have been few opportunities to display the glories of the summer parasol, it is shown in many delightful designs. The woman who loves and has time for fancy work would do well to make her own cover in Renaissance braid, for this is quite the most elegant thing in sunshades.

The white tulle foundation is shirred all over in a hallow fold of shirring head, the Renaissance cover is slipped and secured with fancy buttons or bows of white satin ribbon.

Mother-of-pearl handles are used for these parasols, and an ingenious idea is shown in arrangements which provide in their depths a place for both the tiny pocket-book and powder puff.

Fortunately this novel handle arrangement is not confined to the exclusive "dress" parasols, for the plain tulle design with hemstitched border boasts the same convenience.

Knitting is developing into a formidable rival for hemstitching, as a trimming for summer parasols and the daily petit poil, or French knot, as we know it, seems to have transferred its sphere of usefulness from the summer frock to this province as well.

A handsome pattern of black point d'esprit over white has deep frills of black chiffon over white lace around the edges, while the rosewood handle is ornamented solely with an immense chain of rosada satin.

The gown is a dream of the Empire—this is not politics, but simply a hint to show that the design is an English importation. The foot of the skirt has a facing of black silk headed by a willow and jet passementerie. The deep yoke and sleeve caps are of tucked maline, surmounted by an upper yoke tucked horizontally, which is one with the stock. The sleeves of the nek have a cuff reaching to the elbow, which is draped with the long full puff. The girle is of black satin, and a hat of black French straw trimmed with ostrich plumes and rosettes of white lace completes the costume.

And, the new shade of pink and thistle blue are both cool-looking and charming. A pretty summer frock in the former shade is carried out in a child's gown of silk and light blue, darker shade. Both bodice and skirt are tucked and lace-trimmed. The former has a white lace yoke coming over the shoulders and round the front, where it points upward, and by the statement which come down to a tiny lace girle. The collar, which is of lace, is also touched with a pale pink. The sleeves are tucked above with lace insertion, becoming very full from elbow to wrist, where they are caught into cuffs.

The skirt is plain over the hips, being elaborately trimmed with tucks and insertion above the full flounce which finishes it round the bottom, and also having tucks and insertion at the extreme bottom of the flounce, which sweeps the floor in the back and falls down very long over the feet.

The dyed laces are quite the smartest trimming one could select and they are most effective in grey. A delicate voile suitable for afternoon wear is trimmed with it. The bodice has a deep pointed yoke of grey lace coming down low over the shoulders, with tuckings from the yoke to the waist, above the sleeves are tucked full into the lace below, coming quite full into a cuff of lace at the wrist.

Over the hips are tiny tucks to make the skirt fit perfectly; these extend downward for several inches, with a wide band of lace directly down the front breadth and then around the top of the full tucked flounce, which finishes it round the bottom, falling full and long over the feet with a long sweeping train at the back.

The tailor made suits of linen and crash are exceedingly jaunty and serviceable. They are made with jackets

It's the Dinner that does the Work.

To sit down on the soft side of a plank and eat dry bread and molasses, as many workmen have done, is not a pleasant prospect after a hard forenoon's work. The "full dinner pail" is all very well but it should be full of something good.

MALTA-VITA, the perfect food, gives to both the mechanic and the laborer a most delicious dinner at very small cost, cooked ready to eat, easily carried. A few ounces of Malta-Vita in a paper bag and a little milk, makes a most nourishing and satisfying meal for any able bodied man.

MALTA-VITA is the whole wheat impregnated with barley malt then cooked, flaked and toasted. The most appetizing and sustaining of all foods.

Your grocer will tell you all about it.

and blouses, but the latter are preferable. Heavy strappings of the same material are stitched over the skirt to form a hip-yoke and extend down either side of the front to within a few inches of the bottom, when they are again carried round the skirt. Under these blouses are worn dainty skirt waists, and with a smart ready-to-wear hat and white gloves, it is hard to find a more attractive street dress.

The thistle blue above spoken of goes with these suits. A shirt of unusual smartness has tastefully embroidered on the revers, yoke and all front. The blouse beautiful is a fascinating subject and one that is never more interesting than now.

The shirt waist suit holds its own and is branching out to a greater variety of materials. Foulards and taffetas no longer constitute the exclusive models of this particular fashion. Martrons, dimity, China, and Japanese silks, chambray, raye and all the smart wash materials are used to make very pretty skirt waist dresses. The simple designs are in best taste, though sometimes there is noticed a tendency toward elaboration.

A useful novelty for the woman who fits from place to place during the summer season will be found in the wardrobe trunk. It is not too large, or too small, and so conveniently arranged that gowns of all descriptions may be packed in it and remain for weeks without getting wrinkled. Just now it is expensive because new, but it is something that will last almost a lifetime and yet be always useful.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Reply To Revue Fawcett. St. Lawrence, June 26.—(To the Editor): In reply to Revue Fawcett's letter of the 24th inst., asking for facts and figures, if Mr. Fawcett would tell the ratepayers that the township had been paying six per cent, since January 1st last on their county rate of over $3,000, it is easy to figure, and you will say that I am correct. If Mr. Fawcett wants more facts and figures, I can give them to him. He asks the ratepayers to pay no attention to me. Well, it is the ratepayers that should pay attention as they are the source of income for the township.

Mr. Fawcett further says that "think" don't count. I would ask him to produce facts and figures to show how his ferry is going to repay the taxpayer in the event of the by-law being carried, of which I am very doubtful. —W. H. WOODMAN.
