THE END GAME... William Rhea Had to Pay Death Penalty.

Lincoln, Neb., July 10.—After strenuous but futile efforts to save him from the gallows, the execution of William Rhea takes place, today, at the State prison.

When he was only fourteen he was expelled by Rome to escape the consequences of a conspiracy.

His reign was marked by many extraordinary events, religious and political, as well as by great progress in literature and the fine arts.

But he was not the youngest of the popes. John XII was elected at the age of eighteen by the influence of King Otto, whom he crowned king of Italy, but lived only a short time after and died suddenly.

Some authorities say he was assassinated; others that he was poisoned. He was only twenty-seven years old at the time of his death.

Benedict IX, who occupied the papal throne from 1032 to 1045, was elected pope when he was only twelve years old, through the influence of his family, the Counts of Tusculum.

England's Only Representative. Pope Adrian IV, who reigned from 1154 to 1159, was the only Englishman who ever wore the tiara, and a very remarkable man.

They Are Coming. Escott Orangeton has written to the local committee having charge of the celebration on Monday, to the effect that they will be here on the 12th with a large representation.

PAPAL THRONE

BEGGARMAN OR PRINCE CAN BE OCCUPANT. Social Scale is Ignored—Strange Contrasts Presented by the Antecedents of Some of the Successors of St. Peter—From Cave to Vatican.

The democracy of the papacy is well illustrated in the antecedents and circumstances of those who have occupied the papal throne.

Sixtus the Fifth, who was exalted to the throne in 1585, was the pig driver at Montalto, when, under the name of Felix Peretti, he attracted the attention of a Franciscan monk, who educated him. He rose to be Bishop of Perugia and then elected pope.

Alexander V, chosen in 1499, had been a beggar boy; Sixtus IV (1471) was the son of a fisherman; Urban IV (1261) was the son of a soldier; the father of Adrian XII, who reigned Benedict XI was a shepherd's son and Boniface the Great had been a street arab and had even held the horses of the noble rich for pennies.

Innocent VIII was married and father of a large family. He did not take orders until after the death of his wife.

Adrian II was elected three times and declined twice. He was seventy-six years old when he was elected the third time, and died at eighty-one. He was a married man and a cardinal deacon.

From Cave to Vatican. Benedict III declined the papal chair because he did not consider himself competent to accept the responsibility; Nicholas I, called the Great, also declined, but was persuaded to accept; Clement II resigned after a short term; Clement XI twice declined the third time he was elected accepted.

Celestine V, called the Solitary, because he was a hermit, abdicated in 1294 after five months in the pontifical chair, and ran away from Rome. Boniface VIII, his successor, captured him and shut him up in a French chateau for fear he would resign; Celestine V's name was Peter Morrone, and before his election he lived in a cave in the mountains, and in his old age performed miracles. He was afterwards canonized.

Many of the popes were related. Brothers, cousins and uncles have sat on the pontifical throne. Eugene IV was a nephew of Gregory XII. John XXII was a nephew of Sixtus IV; Clement VII, a cousin of Leo X. Strange marriages happened during the Middle Ages, and the Conti family, a powerful clan which ruled Rome and Central Italy for years, elected eight of its number to the papacy, a larger representation than any other family ever supplied.

Cardinal At Thirteen. Leo X, one of the most celebrated and able of the popes, was son of Lorenzo de' Medici, the Magnificent. He was only seven years old, and was an abbot at ten and a cardinal at thirteen.

When he was only fourteen he was expelled by Rome to escape the consequences of a conspiracy. He was taken prisoner and confined in a dungeon for several years, but recovered his liberty, and in his thirty-eighth year was elevated to the pontificate.

His reign was marked by many extraordinary events, religious and political, as well as by great progress in literature and the fine arts, and was so illustrious that it has been called "the brilliant epoch." He established the University of Rome and completed the Cathedral of St. Peter. He excommunicated Luther, Calvin and Henry VIII, of England from the church.

But he was not the youngest of the popes. John XII was elected at the age of eighteen by the influence of King Otto, whom he crowned king of Italy, but lived only a short time after and died suddenly.

Some authorities say he was assassinated; others that he was poisoned. He was only twenty-seven years old at the time of his death.

FAMILIAR SONGS.

"Rock Me To Sleep." Mrs. Elizabeth Akers Allen, first known to the literary world under the pen name of Florence Percy, was born at Strong, Franklin county, Me., October 9th, 1802.

It became popular at once, and during the next few years several different persons claimed the authorship, one claiming named Ball printed several newspaper articles and a pauper in support of the proposition that it had been written by his mother.

Afterwards when Mrs. Allen was a widow with children she sent them a song called "Kisses" (printed below), which was rejected with the short comment that they could do nothing with it.

Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight, Make me behold again just for to-night Mother, come back to the echoes of my life.

Backward, flow backward, O tide of the sea, I am so weary of toil and of tears, I toil without recompense, tears all in vain.

Many a summer the grass has grown green, Blossoms faded, and our faces between; Yet, with strong yearning and passion, Long to-night for your presence again, Come from the silence of the dead, Rock me to sleep, mother—rock me to sleep!

Over my heart in the days that are down, No other mother-love ever has shown; No other worship abides and endures— None but yours; None but yours, and patient like yours; None but yours, and patient like yours.

From the sick soul and the world-wearied, Stumber's soft calms o'er my heavy lids, Rock me to sleep, mother—rock me to sleep!

For with its sunny-edged shadows once more, Happy will through the sweet visions of love, Lovingly, softly, its bright billows sweep; Rock me to sleep, mother—rock me to sleep!

Mother, dear mother, the years have been long, Since I last heard your lullaby song; Sing, then, and unto my soul it shall come; Womanhood's years have been only a dream.

Love's feverish pressure, close and sweet— But move them all the rest I prize! The trials are that I live, my eyes, Smile, lady, smile when country lips Touch reverently your lips; Hush, hush, my maiden, when you feel that you are slow years darker roll, Draw up your eyes, the experienced soul. Will you as dearer far than they, The lips which kiss the tears away!

Death Of a Great Musician. The death of the famous international band master, Lieut. Dan, Godfrey, in London on July 1st, removes from the musical world one of its most important and picturesque figures.

The British Guard's Band is one of the finest musical organizations of its nature in all the world. Mr. Phassey has surpassed Lieut. Godfrey in many respects as a musical conductor, and as a composer he is rapidly assuming a commanding position.

Will Be Appealed. Howard S. Folger, general manager of the Standard Oil Company, was in this city and called on Burge Parcell, who is ill at his home. He made the announcement that as soon as possible the case of his company against the Standard Oil Company would be taken to the court of appeals.

SAD DROWNING.

A SOLDIER AND TWO LADS MEET DEATH. The Boys Were Drowned While Bathing—The Man's Death Looks Like a Case of Suicide.

Ottawa, July 10.—Three drownings occurred here today. Moses and Jimmie Crave, aged eleven and fourteen years, sons of Moses Crave, lumber laborer, were drowned in St. Louis Lake, while in bathing. The water is very shallow, the lake being but a by-wash of the canal, but there was a deep hole made last winter by the Ottawa Improvement Commission, leading out to fill in the driveway to the experimental farm. The boys stepped into this and were drowned.

Down at Rockhill range, where the school of musketry is in progress, Pte. Harold Winter, R.C.E., was drowned in the Ottawa river. From stories told, it looks like a case of suicide. He was a regular from London depot, attached as mail carrier. On getting up this morning he remarked to a comrade, "I don't know what they are going to do with me here. I'll go to the river and jump in." His comrade reported, "I was in the Ottawa river, when the comrade reached the 1,000 yard range, he saw Winter in the river with his arms outstretched, and he saw him; he sank. The boys had not yet been recovered. He was born in Simla, India, and had been serving with No 7 Regimental depot for five years. He served with the fourth contingent in South Africa.

Word was also received of the drowning at Fort Colborne, of Damos Mathieu, a river log driver from Ottawa. The governor-general has appointed Colonel Buchanan, C.M.G., honorary aide-de-camp on his staff. Major W. C. Denny, Army Service Corps, is gazetted director of intelligence at headquarters with the local rank of lieutenant-colonel. He will also command the corps of guides. Captains A. C. Caldwell and B. W. Anderson become staff officers in the corps of guides.

A Centless Rumor. The advertisement of a Washington clothing firm to pay "eighteen cents for 1902 one-cent pieces" convulsed the small towns of North Carolina with the desire to make "easy money," and a mad scramble for the one-cent fellows. The rumor got abroad that in coining 1902 cents a large amount of gold was accidentally placed in the alloy, and that the government desired to withdraw the coins on account of their bullion value. Three men collected every cent to be had in the stores and banks in Charlotte and sent agents into the country. One man sold 330 cents for $32 and they were sold to an Alexandria bank for fifteen cents each. News of the transaction went abroad with remarkable rapidity, and reports went to eight cents, then to ten, and finally changed hands rapidly at twelve cents each. E. Greenham sent six thousand pennies to Washington to be redeemed at the eighteen cents value, but the firm declared it had agreed to pay eight cents for 1,902 pennies and not for every penny of 1902 coinage. Telegrams went out recalling orders to buy the pennies, but the excitement was on, and it took time to stop it.

The Day in History. July 17th is the anniversary of the birth in 1790 of Gen. Thomas Posey, reported to be the son of George Washington; born in 1764, Anna Ward, an English nurse, noted mechanic and inventor among her inventions was a machine to cut and head nuts at a single operation, and also made many improvements in bank note engraving; born in 1819 at Spencer, Mass., Elias Howe, inventor of the first practical sewing machine; born in 1838 in Clearfield county, Pa., Philip Paul Bliss, the singing evangelist and composer; born in 1828, John Davidson Rockefeller, at Richmond, N.Y., head of the Standard Oil company, and reported to be the richest man in the United States; born in 1810, William B. Vyas, Wisconsin, politician; born in 1843, Eben J. Houston, inventor of various electrical appliances.

Mrs. Upton—Horace, who was his name? Third, referring to the scene where he says "I have her, but I will not keep her long!" Upton—Oh! I probably to a new cook he had just engaged.

Purely For Ornament. Youth's Companion. The trained nurse has to meet many curious conditions which arise among the poorer patients. One of these faithful women, who had a sick girl in charge in a miserable tenement house, noticed that the oranges which had been provided for the fever patient were not eaten. They were placed in an old, cracked, blue bowl on a little table by the sick girl's bed, and there they remained untouched.

"Mary," said the nurse one day, "don't you like oranges?" "Oh, yes, in," answered the girl. "You haven't eaten any of these?" the nurse suggested.

"Mary's" mother answered, "Oh, Mrs. Upton, she said, eagerly, "Mary, she eat a half an apple 'n' a Jimmy we eat the other half, 'n' Mary 'n' me, we says we won't eat any more 'cause it looks so nice 'n' healthy 't' have oranges sittin' 'round."
