Mrs. Hughson, of Chicago, whose letter follows, is another woman in high position who owes her health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Money seemed but poor and paltry compared to health, and yet a few dollars invested in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me good health. I suffered for several years with general weakness and bearing-down pains, caused by womb trouble. My appetite was frightful, and I would lie awake for hours, and could not sleep, until I seemed more weary in the morning than when I retired. After reading one of its advertisements I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it did me. I took three bottles faithfully, and besides building up my general health, it drove all disease and poison out of my body, and made me feel as spry and active as a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicines are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Mrs. E. E. Hughson, 347 E. Ohio St., Chicago, Ill. [$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.]

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

MAY HAVE SMALLPOX.

Animal Showing Symptoms In Detention Hospital.

Cleveland, July 11.—A dog belonging to a family some member of which had been ill with small-pox, is under observation at the detention hospital. He had symptoms of small-pox, his hide being covered with pustules. The case is rare in medical practice. To satisfy himself as to whether dogs are susceptible to the disease the health officer will experiment with other dogs to try to give them the disease. The experiments will begin in a few days.

FOR WOMEN

Much That Every Woman Desires to Know

About Sanative Antiseptic Cleansing

And about the Care of the Skin, Scalp, Hair and Hands.

Too much stress cannot be placed on the great value of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent in the antiseptic cleansing of the mucous surfaces and of the blood and circulating fluids, thus affording pure, sweet and economical local and constitutional treatment for weakening ulcerations, inflammations, itchings, irritations, relaxations, displacements, pains, and irregularities peculiar to females. Hence the Cuticura remedies have a wonderful influence in restoring health, strength and beauty to weary women, who have been prematurely aged and invalided by these distressing ailments, as well as such sympathetic afflictions as anæmia, chlorosis, hysteria, nervousness and debility.

Women from the very first have fully appreciated the purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy which have made the Cuticura remedies the standard skin cures and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Millions of women use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for annoying irritations, and ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

Cuticura Resolvent, Pills (in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills), Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chemical Corp., Sole Proprietors, Boston, U.S.A. "How to Cure Skin Diseases," 64 pages, illustrated, and 100 testimonials, free.

MAD MULLAH.

INTERESTING SKETCH OF HIS CAREER.

Mahomed Abdullah Has Been Preacher, Pilgrim and Pretender—Character and Temperament of The Dangerous Fanatic Changed.

Writing from Obbia, a special correspondent gives the following brief, but interesting sketch of the Mullah's career:—

It is possible to doubt if the devout disciple of Mahomed Salih, sitting at the feet of the seer of Mecca in years now gone beyond remembrance, was then planning the triumphant displacement of the infidel within the confines of Somaliland. In those days, rather circumstances go to show that he was the earnest seeker after a better life, and a true believer in the Scriptures as propounded by his elders. However, his journey to Mecca brought about a curious change in the character and temperament of the man. The teaching of Mahomet Salih appealed to his nature, and the Mullah returned to his own country with the intention of reviving the religious spirit of his people.

By name Mahomed Abdullah, and belonging to the Sabr Suleiman section of the Ogaden tribe in the southwest of the Somali country, he had married into the Ali Kherri, one of the Dolbahanta tribes in the southeast of the British protectorate. By this means he had extended his influence from Abyssinia in the west to the borders of Italian Somaliland in the east, when, after his return from Mecca, in 1895, he retired to Kob Fardo, his place of residence, and a village inhabited by Mullahs in the Dolbahanta country, 170 miles from Berbera.

Up to this point Mahomed Abdullah had shown no very decided animus against the British suzerainty over Somaliland, and it appeared as he were content with the homage paid to his learning and devotional sincerity by the Ogaden and Dolbahanta tribes. His fame continued to increase, and he won no little respect for his authority by the tribes electing to regard him as a court of appeal in their tribal disputes. Similarly, and with some measure of success, he strove to put down raiding. He also continued his pilgrimages to Mecca, every visit adding to his reputation and increasing his influence.

From these beginnings, he initiated in 1899 a religious movement in which he was at once joined by the tribes that hitherto had supported him, while a number of others identified themselves with him at the time and deserted him at a later period, as their interests dictated. His policy now underwent a change, and it was quite evident that Mahomed Abdullah was exerting his influence to excite the tribes to rebellion against British authority. He resorted to force in his efforts to gain supporters where he had previously employed persuasion, and he levied tolls and fines as punishments upon those who withstood his overtures. Early in 1899 he raided the territory of the Habr Yunis, and, occupying Burao, the Mullah proclaimed his intention of ruling the interior as his own sphere and leaving the coast to the foreigners. After an immediate return to Bohotle, he reappeared in August, 1899, at Burao, continuing his march with 5,000 men, of whom 1,500 were horsemen and 200 had rifles, to Upper Sheik. In the meantime he moved as far west as Odwein, harried the country around Sheik and at the end of September withdrew to Bohotle, moving thence to Lassader.

His appearance at Upper Sheik created a scare at Berbara, only some fifteen miles distant, and with no very adequate means of defense, but the arrival at this port of H.M.S. Pomone and R.I.M.S. Minto, restored confidence. The Mullah, however, advanced no nearer to the coast than Upper Sheik, claiming, when he saw the searchlights of the two ships from the peaks of the Golis range, that they were the eyes of God looking upon his crusade with favor. In other ways he began to boast possession of supernatural powers asserting that he could hear with his own ears in the Dolbahanta what was said about him in Barbara, and repeated the old story—familiar in the Soudan as among the Boxers—of being able to turn bullets into water. He was now animated by the frenzy of the fanatic, and in subsequent raids his attacks were accompanied with fierce slaughter which made his name the terror of the tribes. He took the lives of those who refused to assist him, and exacted instant and absolute submission in all who followed him.

Early in 1900 the Mullah raided the Ogaden, obtaining the submission of the Ber Abdilleh, the Rer Harum and the Rer Ali. In consequence of this, the Abyssinians sent two forces of mounted infantry to punish these tribes, but failing to find the Mullah the Abyssinian columns, after raiding the tribal territory, retired to Harrar and Jig Jiga. A few weeks later, in March, the force in garrison at Jig Jigga was attacked by some six thousand of the Mullah's followers, under the guidance of the principal officers, and incited by the Mullah himself. Inspired by an assurance that the Abyssinian bullets had been rendered powerless, the Mullah's forces attacked with the greatest gallantry, charging repeatedly up to the edge of the defences, and in several places seizing the rifles of the defenders before they were themselves shot down. In the end they were completely defeated, being repulsed with a loss of 2,650 killed. The Abyssinians were, however, too shaken to pursue, and the Mullah was left for a time in undisturbed possession of Ogaden, maintaining his headquarters at Milmil with an escort of 500 rifles and 500 spearmen. Although defeated by the Abyssinians, the Mullah suffered little loss of prestige, and the number of his forces was not materially reduced. Arms continued to reach him, and in May, a short time after the fight at Jig Jigga, he felt himself strong enough to bring off a sudden raid upon British tribes in the Haud. By this swoop he captured 2,000 camels, and caused the British tribes to abandon the Haud in confusion. A company of the 2nd Battalion King's African Rifles that had arrived in the protectorate in the previous February was sent to Burao and to Odwein, but a few weeks later, in September, the Mullah repeated his foray in a different direction. Upon this occasion he raided the Abyssinian Habr Awal at Herebe, capturing immense numbers of camels and live stock. The malarious condition of the Ogaden country, into when the Mullah had again retired, prevented the projected pursuit by the Abyssinian force taking place, and the Somali and Abyssinian sections of the Habr Awal took matters into their own hands. Their efforts were without material result, and the Mullah was left in enjoyment of his spoils. By this time the influence of Mahomed Abdullah dominated the southern portion of his own protectorate, as well as wide stretches inland in the Italian and Abyssinian spheres. It had now become an object of extreme importance to dislodge and to subdue him. In January, 1901, expeditions were arranged in conjunction with the Abyssinian force, and later in the same year the first British expedition was dispatched.—Manchester Guardian.

To An Ice Cream Soda.

New York Press.

How dear to my heart is the drink
that e'er yields me
A gulp of pure pleasure midst
work or midst play;
From sunstroke, prostration and heat
ennui shields me
And sends me home smiling at close of the day.

You dip the long spoon and you take out a round bit
Of ice cream as cool as the snows of Thibet,
Of the flavor of peach—a rare, ravishing tid-bit;
Its cool soda presence hangs over
me yet.

The fine ice cream soda,
The rich ice cream soda,
The cool ice cream soda—
I like it, you bet.

When all the town stifles and heat-waves are flying—
When earth seems an oven to humanity bake—
We see everyone to the marbletop hying,
And there stand impatient their
fierce thirst to slake.
A strawberry give me—or lemon or chocolate—
We sigh, we exclaim or we feverish
shout.
We sigh with content as they put the ice cream in;
We gurgle with glee as the syrup
runs out.

Oh, ho! for the soda—
The racy, real soda,
The mellow, cool soda—
The best thing about.

And yet though fond mercy clings to
this rare drink,
As ambrosial nectar quite fit for a
king;
There may come a day when we feel a
dread heart-sink,
A feeling akin to a physical sting;
And that's when we've greedily grabbed for the cool glass
And gobbled its contents in staccato time;
We throw on the counter a fat spheroid nickel,
The last one we have—and the man
wants a dime—

We then cuss the soda,
The false-pretence soda,
The man-trapping soda,
That costs a whole dime.

Taylor Tidings.

Taylor, July 7.—Owing to the recent heavy showers, vegetation is rapidly advancing. Thomas Nuttall has purchased a new road cart. J. McCalpin's bee, erecting the frame for his new barn, was largely attended. The efficiency of our young men and the alacrity with which they worked made the task an easy one. Mr. McCalpin and family have moved to their new home, with which they are highly delighted. Our vicinity was well represented in Gananoque on July 1st. The fireworks exhibit was enjoyed by all. Its brilliancy, however, was surpassed by the terrific electric storm which followed. Misses Lena and Lulu Todd, Brewer's Mills, recently visited Miss F. Nuttall. Miss Lottie McCalpin has resigned her school, and contemplates attending model school, T. Maxwell, Pittsferry, recently visited at J. Featherstone's, also M. Kelly at Mrs. James Shortall's.

Accident In A Fog.

Halifax, N.S., July 11.—The Norwegian steamer Hermod, going at a good rate of speed, crashed on the rocks on the north-east of Blind Island, early yesterday, during a heavy fog. The vessel's bottom was evidently pierced, for she began to make water fast and soon there was three feet of water in her hold. The captain ordered the life boats to be launched and the mate and others succeeded, with difficulty, in making Port Moren. Subsequently tugs were were sent out to the vessel, and she was successfully floated.

Thirty-six deaths and eighty-five prostrations in and around New York and Brooklyn tell the story of Friday's heat. It was the hottest July 10th in history.

Miss Minnie Robertson, Carleton Place, leaves shortly for China where she will labor as a missionary under the Presbyterian board of missions.

Timothy L. Woodruff, Brooklyn, N.Y., has decided to make a canvass for the republican nomination for governor next year.

Rev. Frank Russell, New York, made chaplain of Sing Sing prison to succeed Rev. George Sanderson, resigned.

During the royal visit to Ireland, it is arranged that the king will be present at a grand review on the Fifteen Acres, Phoenix Park, and after that is over will attend the meeting of the Phoenix Park club, where it is likely that some of the king's horses may run. During his stay in Dublin, the king will hold a levee at the castle one day, and on another their majesties will hold a drawing room at the castle also. At the Vice Regal lodge the king will give two or more banquets. This will give their majesties a busy time of it, if, as is stated, their stay in Dublin will extend over four days only. While in Ireland next month their majesties will visit the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, at Lismore Castle, County Waterford, and the Marquis and Marchioness of Londonderry at Newtownard. Thence it is likely they will go to Belfast, and thence to Londonderry.
