

THE SPEECHES TO THE ORANGEMEN, IN MACDONALD PARK,

County Master Gaskin's Pointed
Remarks in Conclusion.—A Great Crowd Witnessed the Sports in the Cricket Field.

Macdonald Park from the top of the hill eastward, northward and southward contained an immense crowd of Orangemen, visitors and city folk.

Monday afternoon is given over to the admiring of the open field, as is now.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate. When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

The time is arriving when Orangemen, like Romans, Catholics, should throw politics aside and go for their own men. I repeat the reason why there is such peace here.

It was declared, was the finest that ever trod the streets of Kingston.

On the 12th of July, Proprietary to the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes hanging side by side, the county master said that the two countries whose emblem those banners were could regulate the peace of the world.

Major Bell was then called upon and his worship extended a hearty welcome to the visiting Orangemen to whom he gave, without conquest, the keys of the gates of the city of Kingston. The 14th band then rendered "The Protestant Boys."

Rev. J. Cumberland, (Presbyterian) Amherst Island, said that the Orangemen made no apology for being here today. They were willing to leave to posterity the question as to the determination of the cause for which their forefathers had stood. There were two great principles, for which Orangemen stand: (1) The Rights and (2) Unity of the Empire, & True Protestantism.

Samuel Harkness, James Davis, James Denison and Henry Hunter, the four oldest Prentice Boys in Kingston, drove together in a carriage in the procession.

After the speeches, the Orangemen paraded to the cricket field, keeping the martial strains of "The Protestant Boys," & "Rule Britannia." There was a great crowd to witness the baseball match and the field sports.

By nine o'clock at night all the visiting Orangemen had left the city, the last boat of the busy day being bound about that hour.

A hot collection was taken at Macdonald park for the benefit of the True Blue Orphanage at Picton, and about $40 was realized.

The oldest master of an Orange Lodge who appeared in the procession was William Donaldson, Pittsburg. He has been an Orangeman for upwards of half a century.

Samuel Harkness, James Davis, James Denison and Henry Hunter, the four oldest Prentice Boys in Kingston, drove together in a carriage in the procession.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

What is Going on in Harbor And Elsewhere.

Craig's wharf. Steamer Waterly, daily cleared for George Richardson's steamer Schooner Mary Ann, N. S., laden with grain.

The steamer Partha, loaded with rails, arrived to-day for Garden Islet.

Moore's elevator: Steamer Turret Court from Chicago with 75,000 bushels of corn.

Marine Inspector Molther and Chestnut Oswego, N.Y., are in the city to inspect the steamer Jessie Bain.

Swift's wharf. Steamer Caspian from Charlotte, Toronto, from Toronto; Rida Queen from Smith's Falls this evening; Hamilton from Montreal to-night; Canada King cleared for Smith's Falls.

The steamer Sir Farnham arrived at the M. T. company elevator early this morning after having discharged part of her cargo of railway iron at Montreal. She is the counterpart of the SS. Westminster, both vessels being built from the same plans. Her wheat carrying capacity is 110,000 bushels.

Capt. P. C. Teller is in command.

AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Boys Learn to Swim—The Boys' Camp.

After visiting parents for a week Secretary Lawrence reports thirty boys for camp. On Monday the party, numbering about forty, will board the River Queen. Joseph Talonto, our fine cook, will be on board. Mr. Lalonde is registered as first class cook at Ottawa, and has been in government service in Alaska. We expect to mention each leader as Jamie Bew, Charles Mooley, and Delbert Pritchett, in order to show the strength of organization. Eight such men will care for and provide jolly good times for the boys. Charles Mooley will teach swimming each day. Parents are requested to write frequently to the campers, who in turn will be encouraged to write home. Harold E. Boak, of the R.M.C., will be camp correspondent in the Whig. Three boys learned to swim last week at the Y.M.C.A.

14th Band Concert.

The band of the 14th P.W.O. Rifles will give a complimentary concert this evening in Macdonald Park, commencing at eight o'clock. The programme will be:

Two Stems—A Breezy Corner.

Waltz—Wine Bon Bon—Mother—Popular Songs—Dance—A Breezy Corner.

Hawaiian Intermezzo.

Overture—Bohemian Girl.

Spanish—Romantic.

Waltz—Dutch Selection—The Burgomaster.

Lieder—March—To the Charge.

Field Hymn—March—God Save the King.

Mr. Starr said his only claim at Kingston was the color of his hair, but he was nearly white which stood for the nation's welfare.

In ancient times the noblest privilege a man could enjoy was to be a Roman citizen. To-day the high water mark of civil and religious liberty was held by the British subject. There are those who think lightly of their birth-right, forgetful of the blood it cost to make the nation what it is.

The primeval motto of the Orange order, emblem of all that is noblest and greatest. He referred to the valiant struggles and splendid victories which Orangemen could glory in! but warned them to beware of prejudice and passion. Mr. Starr said that our chief cause of rejoicing was that the day when Roman Catholic persecuted Protestant and Protestant hated Rome Catholics were passed away and their trials over us a flag under which Pro-

To Instal Machinery.

F. A. Weyen, president of the Frontenac Cereal Company, has arrived in the city to direct the installation of the large shipment of machinery needed to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

Frontenac Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O., Walbridge, Marion, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O., W. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O., Walbridge, Marion, Toledo, O.,

J. Cheney for the last 15 years I believe him perfectly honorable in all his business transactions.

We are sorry to learn that the late George W. Woods, a

Woods' Phosphates in sold in Kington at all drug stores.

BEDROOM SUITES

2 Garlands Just In 2

We buy large quantities and save money. You get the benefit.

This Suite, 3 pieces, Hardwood, Gold. $300.

Only $9.75.

Solid Oak Bedroom Suite, Bedded Bovel Mirror, worth $35.

Reduced to $25.

Extra Good Snap

Ostermoor Mattresses

Best Mattress made.

Carpets

Reduced for July.

Summer Floor Coverings

Chinese and Japanese Mattings and Rugs, Linoleum, and Oil Cloth, extra values.

T. F. HARRISON CO.

Undertaking and Embalming

Rooms 9-10.

MATCHLESS CARPETS

We do not believe there has ever been in Kingston such a comprehensive, beautiful assortment of Carpets as are now gathered on our floors. Even in the lowest priced Carpets there are designs and colorings shown, equally graceful and harmonious.

Every roll of Carpet is brilliant with new ideas, handsomer than any ever bought out before. The price of every yard in the store is as low or lower than elsewhere.

R. McFAUL.

Kingston Carpet Warehouse.

ELEPHANT Ready Mixed Paint

The very best paint on the market, most durable, finest colors, and price right.

Sale agent for Kingston.

A. STRACHAN, HARDWARE MERCHANT.

Glassware!

Glassware !

Received this week 20 barrels of NEW GLASS WARE, which we have marked at quick selling prices.

If you require something in Lamps, Tumblers, Berry Sets, Vases, Sugar Bowls, Cream Jugs, Butter Dish and Spoon Holder.

See the Table Sets on sale at $35, worth $40. It contains Sugar Bowl, Cream Jug, Butter Dish and Spoon Holder.

Woods' Fair.

THE SPEECHES TO THE ORANGEMEN, IN MACDONALD PARK,

County Master Gaskin's Pointed Remarks in Conclusion.—A Great Crowd Witnessed the Sports in the Cricket Field.

Macdonald Park from the top of the hill eastward, northward and southward contained an immense crowd of Orangemen, visitors and city folk.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants. This was contained, "is second to none."

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and the Protestants.

The Orange procession moved slowly into the park, and the many lodges took up position around the pavilion.

The drums rolled forth their peculiar music, as uninterpretable to the general mass of people as the sounds from the bugles, but as sweet to the Orangeman's ear as bugle is to the Scoteman's palate.

When the drum thunder had abated, County Master John Gaskin stood forth, and amid applause addressed the multitude from the east side of the pavilion.

In conclusion County Master Gaskin said that in Kingston, harmony existed between the Roman Catholics and