BEWILDERED

WERE THE TORONTO BALL TOSSERS.

Vowinkel Kept Them Guessing All The Time—"Doc." Shepherd's Pets Trounced By "Chaucer" Elliott's Lambs.

Just before twilight, last evening, some ball players, who said that they came from Toronto, were seen coming in from Lake Ontario Park. Nothing could induce them to say from what part of the "City of Avaries" they had come. Two or three persons who attempted to engage in conversation with them enquired, in a half apologetic way, if they had been playing ball with the Collins Bay team. They might as well have talked to the posts that support the electric trolley wires. No reply came, save a feeble request to be excused from being interviewed, owing to a sudden attack of laryngitis. In fact it was almost out of the question to obtain an admission from any of the young men that they belonged to a ball club, supposed to be affiliated in some way with one of the leading athletic organizations of the western city. Apparently a shock of some sort had subdued the feelings of the travellers. They appeared to have been frightened by an apparition, or something of that nature.

One of them said: "He looked to me to be seven feet tall, togged out in white and every time his arm was raised as high as his head, all I could think of was the big tower on the new city hall buildings up home."

"I noticed something of the same kind myself," said another, with a mysterious air, "If I had been reading one of the books that I was not very fond of but would peep into once in awhile when I was a small boy, I should have thought of the 'bogey man,' who was supposed to travel at midnight after everybody else was in bed. He seemed so tall and his arms appeared so far reaching that you could almost believe he was right up next to your elbow all the time."

"I don't like those speedy eighteen-year-old, fellows in the box, anyway," said the ringleader, whom the rest of the players called "Doc." I never saw one of them that I could 'bat half way decent.'"

"That's what I thought all the time," interrogated a man sitting on one of the rear seats of the car. "It's only some ball players telling how they were beaten."

"Well you'd be doing the same thing," said one of the players, "if you had any sporting blood in you and were in the game."

"I don't know, but you are right," was the reply, "but who was the pitcher who made so much fuss for you, if I may be so bold as to ask, since I know by your conversation that you are talking about the prowess of the pitcher who was in the box against you."

"Oh, only another of those pleasant surprises that 'Chaucer' Elliott has for us when we visit this old town," said the fellow called "Doc," "and I want to say right now, that they don't beat that boy along the line anywhere. 'Chaucer' told me, in confidence that his name is Rip Vanwinckle, Jr., and he certainly is a big improvement on the old 'Rip,' that I used to know years ago, before he fell asleep in the Catskill Mountains, and dozed so peacefully for something like twenty years. This boy don't go to sleep when he is in the box, and I don't mind prophesying that he'll make good in one of the big leagues before he is much older."

The ball game at the park yesterday was of the "good and bad" variety; there were many sensational "good plays," likewise many sensational bad plays. "Jerry" Hunt's long drive for four sucks, with two men on bases really won the game for the Pollies, although Vowinkle's pitching with ordinary support, was good enough to win from any aggregation. The Crescents only landed on him for four hits, of which Watt, the "kid" shortstop, pulled off two; the other two were scattered. Vowinkle had splendid control, only allowing two passes. On the other hand Hickey was as wild as a "hawk" and appeared to be totally unable to locate the plate.

The old reliable "Doc." Shepherd was on hand and played a splendid game—at first. "Doc." must have thought the umpire a very good one, as his kicking was not nearly as prominent and vigorous as on former visits. The teams were as follows:

PONIES.

	R.	H.	E.
Randolph,	0	0	0
Derry,	1	1	0

Is Still Nimble.

Though he has been playing baseball longer than most of his friends can remember, "Doc." Shepherd is just as nimble to-day as a twelve-year-old. He gave a demonstration of his agility during the match at Lake Ontario Park yesterday and made a nice bit of play. The Crescents were at bat, with all bases filled; the batter up had two strikes and three balls called, and the next delivery was the all-important one. "Doc" was on third base, and as the pitcher raised his arm to deliver the ball, he started home. The batter failed to hit the ball, which Elliott fumbled and Shepherd scored the run, and at the same time the batter made first base. It was a neat bit of play on Shepherd's part.

Got His Bat.

One of the items not on the programme was the presentation to "Doc." Shepherd, at Lake Ontario Park, yesterday afternoon, of his own ball bat. It appears that last year when the Crescents played here "Doc." Shepherd's favorite bat became mislaid. He requested "Chaucer" Elliott to look it up and keep it for him. When he went to bat for the first time yesterday, Con. Millan stepped forward and, with an appropriate speech, presented the article, which the owner was pleased to gain possession of again.

Won Considerable Money.

James O'Connor, wine clerk at The Hall, won a lot of money upon the outcome of the big fight at San Francisco, last night. He used good judgment and bet on rounds, holding that Jeffries would win out in eleven rounds. John L. Sullivan said nine rounds, so that both these experts were not far wrong. Corbett being bowled out in the tenth. Mr. O'Connor is a follower of the roped arena, and knows the fighting record of every boxer who comes before the public.

A writer in the New York Press, summing up the merits of Shamrock III and Reliance, challenger and defender for the America's cup, finds that the challenger is a wizard in light breezes. In the opinion of this expert Shamrock III has the best chance of winning in light airs.

A St. Catharines student from Louisiana, of Spanish parentage, witnessed the lacrosse match at Brantford. When he saw the Henry episode, he said: "That is awful. I have seen a lot of bull fights, but never saw a thing like this. They kill the bulls in the bull fight. They don't try to kill the men."

An interesting fact to note in connection with Skipper Arthur Hanna's handling of Irondequoit is that he has secured nineteen straight victories this season out of nineteen starts. In New York waters he won eleven firsts with his own forty-three-footer, Aspirant, five with the Herreshoff forty-three-footer, Effort, and three with the Irondequoit. He is certainly a wizard at the helm of a boat.

FLEET ARRIVES

ELEVEN MONTREAL YACHTS IN PORT.

Much Lighter Sailers Than Our Own — Three International Champions In The List—Racers Have Most Modern Equipment.

Lightly riding at anchor in the government drydock late yesterday afternoon was the fleet of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club of Montreal. They came into harbor before 4 p.m., about two hours before they were expected to arrive. The tug Beaver, which they engaged at Cornwall to replace their steamer, the St. Louis, which was too light to tow the big fleet through the currents brought the fleet up the St. Lawrence.

The yachts, divided into classes are: Three raters—The III.

Hobos—Orphan and Yo San.

International racers—Thorella II., Trident and Aeolus (formerly the Whisper).

Twenty-two footers—Koralli, Heron and Dona Dea.

Girl-a-Abouts—Gwenola.

Mr. Vessey's St. Lawrence skiff also accompanied the yachts.

The Hobo class carry from 150 to 200 feet of canvas; the Girl-A-Abouts carry 350 feet; and the racers fully 500 feet. The yachts but little resemble our own in point of construction, and the first glance shows that they are not adapted to the heavy seas and rough weather experienced on the great lakes. The designers have gone in for lightness, and accordingly the boats are not as staunch and seaworthy as the Kingston yachts. They have also a very low freeboard, another quality lacking in Kingston boats. Most of the visiting yachts have a long overhang forwards, something that the lake yachtsmen are not used to seeing.

Among the Montrealers are three international champions—Thorella, who won from Kolutoo this year; Trident, last year's champion for the Seawanhaka cup, and Whitecap (now the Aeolus), the victor of three years ago. The Thorella is an especially light boat. She draws only seven inches of water without her plates. She carries the most modern equipment, and is the only boat here that carries two keels with an extra rudder behind each keel.

Judge C. P. Davidson, the commodore of fleet, is skipper of the Gwenola.

James Paton, skipper of Trident, is the heavyweight of the party and is one of the favorites because of his affability and good sportsmanship.

The sailors are all obliged to take two meals a day on board their steamer, in order to make the venture pay. The white suits and blue collars of the yachtsmen are neat and natty, being very attractive on the street.

Commodore Calvin and Messrs. Almon, F. C. Ireland, Smith, Strange, G. R. Ireland and other members of the local club, were at the government dry dock to greet their guests and give them hearty welcome to the city. The visitors were well satisfied with the race schedule made on Thursday night, and with one or two changes the boats will sail this afternoon in order mentioned in yesterday's Whig. The Montreal men are hoping for light wind, and their hopes bid fair to be realized.

Foreign Fishermen.

"Two United States yachts with twelve skiffs from Clayton were fishing near Collins' Bay yesterday," said a citizen this morning. "People were wondering if they had a license," he added. There is a strong feeling that the United States fishermen are getting more than their share of Canadian bass.

STRENGTH IN FOOD.

A Woman's Work Made Easy By Strength And Health.

A widow writes: "When I began to use Grape-Nuts I had so much trouble with my stomach and was very nervous and as I made my living by really hard work I needed all the strength possible for I have two boys to support.

"I began eating Grape-Nuts simply to try the food but soon noticed my trouble was going and my nervousness was much less so I continued to use Grape-Nuts food with the result that I am now entirely cured. Grape-Nuts always agreed with me and when I work the hardest it seems to me I enjoy them and need them the most. They satisfy me better and seem to do me more good than meat.

"My younger boy who inherits a weak constitution from his father who died of consumption has been greatly benefited by Grape-Nuts. He makes his breakfast of Grape-Nuts and milk and the result of this diet has been that his stomach is much stronger and his appetite increased and altogether he is like another boy.

"I notice this about Grape-Nuts that when I eat them and go away to work they seem to stay by me and sustain me better during the day than anything else I eat. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TALK OF PAST

THE OLD BOYS HAVE A WORD TO SAY.

Three Local Institutions That Have Lasted Long Years—Mr. Davison Recalls Active Days.

The old boys' reunion has set the senior generation reminiscing and visiting the good old town with uncommon interest. Calls are daily made at the Whig office, as the paper is one of their first memories as well as one of the three local institutions that have lasted as a going concern since 1834, its companions being the British American hotel and the Kingston brewery.

Alman Palmer, a former Whig employee, Dr. Macfarlane of Oswego, N. Y., and John D. Davison of Parrott's Bay, have been among the latest visitors. The doctor, who left Kingston in 1847, is son of the late Chief Magistrate Macfarlane, editor and publisher of the Kingston Chronicle and Gazette. He was also one of those justices who sat upon the court-martial of invading staters captured during the sharp fight at Prescott windmill. Because of his loyal connection with these trials and subsequent executions, he was threatened with mob law when he, a few years later removed to Oswego. He had to return to Kingston secretly and here he spent the rest of his life. Dr. Macfarlane is desirous of securing records of his career here.

Mr. Davison recalled active days in Kingston. He assisted in the re-building of Cataraqui bridge across the harbor in 1845, the first one having lasted only about a dozen years. He remembers the old-fashioned ferry which preceded the original bridge, long before the era of steam. Joseph George, Wellington street, is the only other worker on the bridge who survives. Mr. Davison remembers the pulling down of the unsightly market shambles and the laying of the corner stone of the new city hall and market building, the latter an extension to King street, (burned in 1872), being one of the handsomest structures yet in Canada. Before the city building was erected, hay, cattle, lumber and smaller produce were sold on the square without system or order. Then Store street, (now Princess) extended only to the present Montreal street, and the hill was a resort for coasting. He remembers the high tower at the barracks, replaced in 1845 by the stone gate, with stone wall replacing the tall cedar pickets. Where the T. C. company's shipyard now peacefully slumbers was the landing place of the batteau which conveyed freight from Montreal. He was one of those active in fighting the great fire which started at Counter's wharf and swept the harbor front and lower streets as far as Store street.

To Destroy The Insects.

Some time ago W. W. Gibson, the Market Square druggist, wrote to the Ontario Agricultural College in reference to insects on horse-chestnut trees. In reply Prof. W. Lochhead, of the biological department, writes that the insect is probably the Fall Web worm. If so, treatment should consist of cutting off the twigs which bear the webs, or burning the web by means of a torch or by spraying the larvæ with Paris green solution, consisting of one teaspoonful (level) of Paris green, two gallons water and one tablespoonful (level) of quick lime. The Fall Web worm, the professor says, is a common pest, and may be found on almost any tree. The adult, the moth, is often of a snow-white color, sometimes spotted. The eggs, to the number of 200 to 400, are deposited on the upper or lower surface of the leaf. The caterpillars feed in colonies, and when mature leave the web, crawl down the trunk of the tree and spin their cocoons.

Broke His Leg.

Bert Frayne, the fifteen-year-old son of Mrs. Alex. Frayne, is lying in the Kingston General Hospital, suffering with a broken leg, as the result of an accident. This mishap occurred on Monday morning about nine o'clock. The injured youth was driving the team of Alexander Abercrombie to the latter's home on the Scotch line from the station where he was loading hogs, and when opposite O. A. Conerty's the pole of the waggon dropped. The team took fright and ran away. The waggon was upset and Frayne was thrown out. His left leg was found to be broken near the hip. He was taken to Dr. Dwyer's office in Lanark, where fracture was reduced. Later he was brought to Kingston by G. A. C. Ritchie, and he is now doing as well as can be.

The Energetic Ladies.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. has decided to expend a large sum this fall in decorating the interior of the building. The hall will be painted, new furniture will be placed in the parlor and a complete new outfit of games will be supplied to the boys' room. The auxiliary has been in the past of valuable service to the local association, and the end, apparently, is not yet.

Secured Good Features.

J. Morgan Shaw, secretary of the Fair Association, has returned from Toronto, where he arranged for attractions for the coming fall exhibition. He has secured some strong features which ought to please the large crowds that will witness the performances.

Dr. Slocum's Warning!

THE GERMS OF CONSUMPTION SWARM IN THE LAND.

Consumptives who spit on the floors of cars, public conveyances, halls, or on the streets, leave the seeds of death behind them. In factories, or other places in cities and towns where consumptives have worked and spat on the floor, the very walls are full of the TUBERCLE GERMS. Theatres and lecture halls are dangerous to those of weakened systems, and the utmost care should be taken to fortify the system and avoid contagion. A teaspoonful of "Psychine" taken before going out will prevent all chance of attacks from this source.

Explains the Symptoms of Consumption

The symptoms of consumption are not hard to discover:

Neglected Cold,	Loss of Flesh,
Bronchial Troubles,	Catarrh,
Afternoon Chills and	Rheumatism,
Fever,	Women's Infirmities,
Night Sweats,	Wasting Conditions,
Hemorrhages,	Tongue Coated,
Pains in Chest,	Pale and Thin,
Hoarseness,	Lack of Stamina,
	Extreme Exhaustion.

Catarrhal Affections of the Nose, Throat and Chest.

Dr. Slocum says: "Consumptives almost always, until the last moment, do not believe that anything is the matter with them. They say, 'If only this cough or that ache were cured I would be all right.' My remedy, 'Psychine,' will at once relieve the cough and pain, soon after you begin to take it. The medicine must be taken regularly, for a disease like Consumption cannot be cured in a day or a week.

PSYCHINE is pronounced SIKEEN.
