THE DISCUSSION ON TRADE MATTERS BY THE CONGRESS

Assembled in Montreal—Amendment to One Resolution—The Fast Steamship Question.

Montreal, Aug. 19.—The debate on the compromise resolution relating to the commercial relations between Great Britain, her colonies and dependencies, was resumed at the Congress of Chambers of Commerce this morning. Sir William Holland, Manchester, was the first speaker, and stated he found Canadians were averse in connection with this commercial matter of coming anything that would injure Great Britain, but the spirit was one of conciliation. He asked the mover of the resolution to change words from "due consideration being given to the fiscal needs of the component parts of the empire" to "due consideration given to the industrial needs of the component parts of the empire with a view to avoiding injury to any." (A speaker suggested adding the words "as far as possible.")

Mr. Cockshutt, mover of the resolution thought committee should meet and consider any changes, in view of the great labor performed in reaching the compromise resolution. Mr. Cockshutt said Canadians had gone as far as possible in compromise, and he had been criticized for giving way so far. He could not allow the insertion of any words, without consulting with his colleagues. After considerable discussion on procedure to be adopted, it was decided to adjourn the debate an hour and consider the proposed change in committee.

Congress then took up the fast steamship services question. The various resolutions on the order paper being amalgamated, Robert Reford, Montreal Board of Trade, introduced the resolution urging the establishment of fast steamship services between the United Kingdom and her colonies. He considered carriage of empire's mails and passengers of foreign lines was wrong and should not be permitted to Canada. The Canada route for almost a daily service instead of weekly as at present. Claims to such a service should be sunk so as to permit the selection of a port open all the year round. That port he thought Halifax, which best met requirements for such a service. Halifax on the other side he considered a favored terminal.

Mr. Reford went over his well known argument in favor of the Halifax-Galway route and moved the following resolution: That this congress considers it of the most utmost importance to the interests of the empire that the United Kingdom and her colonies should adopt a policy under which lines of steamships will be secured and retained for (1) the provisions for fast-mail services on the several routes, and (2) the development and control of trade between the Mother Country and her possessions and between the colonies themselves.

J. E. Dewell, president of the Halifax Board of Trade, seconded resolution and the Sydney Board offered an addition of trade with reference to the granting of subsidies.

General Laurier answered the claim that the steamship lines should stand on their own resources by pointing to the British government's subsidy to the Cunard line running to a foreign port, an incident which he considered was not right. The best argument in favor of subsidies was the Cunard argument. An expression of opinion on matter of subsidies, refreshing to this imperial congress would have great weight with the home government. James Lancaster, Liverpool, did not press assuming that port in the resolution as a terminal of the proposed fast line, feeling the British government could be safely left the task of naming a British terminal. He also pointed out the commanding position of Liverpool facilities and its responsibility as owners of British shipping.

Mr. Davis, Bristol, pointed out the advantages of that port as a terminal of an Anglo-Canadian line. G. H. Johnson, North Sydney, objected to the agreement between the British government and the Cunard line as unfairly passing Canadian ports. George Robertson, St. John, N. B., did the claims of St. John before the congress as a terminal, but thought the questions should be probed on the broadest imperial lines. He thought the needs of the empire demanded a fast service now. The resolution was then adopted.

Mr. Cockshutt then reported that the Canadian delegates would not change a word in the resolution on commercial relations.

MONEY DISCOVERED. And May Be Used To Keep Monument Repaired. Toronto, Aug. 19.—For sixteen years a sum of money, subscribed towards the erection of a monument, which stands in the Queen's Park, to the memory of the soldiers who fell in the raid of 1865, has been on deposit, and unknown to everyone, in the old Western Savings company, and only now has the knowledge of the fact come to light. Sheriff Jarvis, the custodian of the monument fund, died in 1877, leaving several hundred dollars, the surplus after the monument was erected, deposited with the Western Canada Savings company. When this company was amalgamated with the Canada Permanent company, the Sheriff's money was found credited to the Jarvis estate. The discovery of some old letters now reveals to whom the money really belongs. Fred C. Jarvis, to-day, notified the mayor that $200 stood to the credit of the Fenian monument fund and suggested that the money be utilized in keeping the monument in repair.

FRATRIE IS GIVEN Kingston Yachtmen For Entertaining Montrealers. The Montreal Star correspondent has this to say regarding the visit of the Royal St. Lawrence yachtmen to Kingston.

It was about 4:30, Friday afternoon when all our yachts were made snug in the splendid anchorage arranged for us by the Kingston Yacht Club. We lay in what is a dry dock; easy of access and well protected, and so bright in the day with electric lights on each side that one was able to see as well as in the day time. The Kingston club proceeded to make things very pleasant for us, placing the club house at our disposal. The secretary, Mr. Kirkpatrick, was especially kind in his endeavors to make things smooth for us—in which he succeeded admirably. The club house here is only a few feet from the water and not far from where our boats were docked. Though not of very large size, it can accommodate a fair number of people, and the principal room or hall, where the dances, etc., are held, leads to the veranda from which a beautiful view can be obtained, and across over the course, easily followed. The boats, from the nature of the waters they sail in, the heavy weather frequently encountered, and, I think, a desire for solid comfort, rather than speed, are of a very heavy class, with a large cabin, a deep draught and an immense lot of sail.

It was a victory for us all round, and they took their defeat like true sportsmen. The club launch at St. Louis, took out a large party and followed the races closely. It was indeed a splendid afternoon for us. After the races the yachts came bouncing in near the club house, taking out a large number of ladies. It seems here that before a lady can go out in a yacht, full particulars must be given to the ever-mindful parents as to how well the yachtmens can swim, what boat it is, so on and so forth, to the great annoyance of our fair sex, so it can be imagined how much our sailors must have been trusted.

As if to clinch the good feeling of comradeship the Kingston people gave us a delightful dinner in the evening. The yacht club house was decorated in a very pretty manner with colored lights, and the floor was all that could be desired. As if to give our boys a chance of the fair sex, was in the majority, and mostly did they go around, with a fine orchestra. The way our good friends managed the whole affair deserves the highest credit. Every one of the squadron has only the greatest praise for Kingston.

Postmaster 58 Years. Amelnsburg, Aug. 18.—The hop crop is almost a failure, owing to a blight called the "honey dew," and to the great numbers of lice that are on every vine. Many yards will hardly be worth picking. Threshing has become common. Early peas did well, with not so many bugs reported; while all other grain is more than a little scarce. Apple buyers are "making haste call" this year, and have bought up nearly all the fruit through here. A dollar a barrel all around is the going price offered, but much more has been paid, when buying by the orchard. Owen Robin has passed away, having nearly reached the century mark. He was postmaster here for fifty-eight years. In his prime of life he was the first business man in this part of the county, controlling a large milling and mercantile business here. Dur' hand is practicing for an excursion to the Thousand Islands next Saturday. Rev. Mr. Martin preached here last Sunday in the absence of our pastor, Rev. Mr. Johnson, who is away on his vacation.

Hull Wants The Ponies. The Hull baseball club wired "Joe" Daley to-day offering the Ponies $40 to go down there and play next Sunday. "Chaucer" Elliott would consider the offer, as Ponies are not playing Sunday ball, and do not give a ridiculous guarantee. They get $40 for playing in Genesee, only eight or ten miles distant. Hull is 120 miles from Kingston.
