

EARLY OPENING OF THEATRICAL SEASON IN KINGSTON.

"When Louis XI. Was King" Played at the Grand Opera House Last Night—The Audience Was Fairly Large.

The Grand Opera House was opened last night for the season of 1903-4, one week earlier than last year, and the house was filled to capacity.

The play was "When Louis XI. Was King," dramatized from Sir Walter Scott's novel "Ivanhoe."

William Owen, the star, who has been associated with Julia Arthur and Lena Morrison, was well-received.

Next week three plays are billed for the house.

A DESCRIPTION OF SALT LAKE CITY BY REV. DR. PHILIP.

Los Angeles, Aug. 12.—(To the Editor) One of the most inviting places to visit in a continental "trip" is Salt Lake valley and city.

Now it is a fruitful field. The city boasts of a population of 50,000 and gives evidence of great business activity.

The Mormon temple is the object of the attraction. It took forty years in building at a cost of $4,000,000.

The Mormon fathers were in daily life looked upon as a people of possibly domestic ways and distinct traits.

A visit to Salt Lake was a revelation. Thousands of pleasure seekers from the city were there, bathing in the hot springs.

As might be expected, there were some hard cases, but they were simply by the dying of shallow layers of water, layer upon layer.

Englewood, Ontario, representative of the Dominion Steamship company, was in the city to-day.

Miss Gertrude Randolph, formerly of Kingston, now a nurse-in-training in New York, is staying at Jones' street with her mother, Mrs. Randolph.

At Taylor's, excellent values, 20c. The Youth's Companion, of Boston, a remarkable success in journalism.
