BIG INDUSTRY

IS THAT OF CHEESE IN THE DOMINION
Our Butter Market Is Capable of Much Expansion—Britain Gets Bulk of Cheese From Canada.

New York Sun.
During the last few weeks we have called attention to the enormous increase of Canada's foreign commerce, the extension of her railway interests, and the increase in her production of cereals. These are important items in Canada's recent rapid development, but they are only single items. Other items remain and among them the development of dairying interests is notable.

The value of Canada's wheat export for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1903, is given as $24,566,703. Thirty years ago it was about $2,000,000. Canada's export of cheese for the last fiscal year shows a value of $24,712,943, a figure a little above that of the wheat export. Thirty years ago it scarcely exceeded $1,000,000. Last attention has been paid to butter, yet her exports of that article now approximate $6,000,000.

The total value of dairy products as compared with the total value of cereal production, including in both groups the home consumption as well as the export trade, would doubtless exhibit a greater value for the cereals, but the dairy industry would show itself close upon the heels of the much better known products of the Canadian fields.

England is Canada's best market for her butter and cheese, as also for her wheat. Last year Canada sold to the United Kingdom 18,238 tons of butter and 87,883 tons of cheese. In 1894 the figures for the same trade stood at 2,197 tons of butter and 55,119 tons of cheese. Canada thus demonstrates her possibilities in the production of these two articles of dairy use and consumption, for which the demand is permanent and constantly increasing. She now supplies England with about two-thirds of her imported cheese, but makes only a small showing in England's butter trade.

England consumes about 285,000 tons of butter annually. She produces about 85,000 tons at home, buys about 22,000 tons from Russia, about 10,000 tons from Australia and New Zealand, and distributes her trade for the remaining 170,000 tons among other countries of the continent and a portion to the United States. Canada secures less than five per cent. of the total. This is not because she cannot secure a larger share, but simply because she does not produce a larger quantity.

In that direction there seems to be an opportunity for the Canadian farmer and dairyman to pile a few more millions of dollars upon Canada's already very large export trade in which cheese appears as one of the largest items.

A MAGIC MIRROR.
Strange and Weird Find of a French Scientist.
Paris, Sept. 10.—M. Gayot, a French antiquarian, making researches in the ancient city of Antioch, recently made some strange discoveries. FASHION'S FORM

A Black Taffeta Gown of Fine Design.
Anyone who has ever had a gown of this description will truthfully say how indispensable they are to one's wardrobe. This gown is not too elaborate for most occasions, yet sufficiently dress to be worn most any place. The illustrated design here is made of black taffeta. The waist is a short jacket effect, fastening in back and tucked in four half-inch tucks ending in a point back and front. The sleeves are tucked in the same way, and this is then put on a plain blouson of accordion-pleated net or chiffon, also black. The skirt carries out the same design, with the four tucks ending in a point in front. This necessitates a seam down the front of the skirt. The circular flounce has four tucks around the edge.

A SUNBURY WEDDING.

A Charming Girl Becomes a Bride.
The residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Patterson, Sunbury, was the scene of a happy event on the morning of Sept. 1st, when their daughter, Ethel Lorraine, was united in marriage to Clarence Hanley of the same place. While the wedding march was being played by the bride's cousin, Miss Pearl Murray, Kingston, the bride entered the parlor, leaning on the arm of her brother, by whom she was given away. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. Davey, the groom was ably assisted by his cousin, Herbert Ball, while the bride was attended by her cousin, Miss V. Gilbert, Kingston. Only a few of the near relatives of the bride and groom witnessed the ceremony.

The bride looked charming in a suit of navy blue silk trimmed with white silk medallions, and a wreath of white silk, trimmed with applique in white. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid was also dressed in a navy blue suit, with white silk trimmings, and carried a bouquet of heliotrope. After the ceremony the party repaired to the dining room where a table was tastefully decorated and laden with a sumptuous repast. After the happy couple partook of breakfast, they departed, amid showers of rice and good wishes for an extended visit to Toronto and vicinity. The groom's present to the bride was a four-de-lis pin, set with brilliant-cut diamonds, and a watch with a cent-shaped pin set with brilliant-cut diamonds. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and beautiful presents.

AT WARWICK CASTLE.

Big Time When Lord Brooke Comes of Age.
London, Sept. 10.—There are great goings-on this week at Warwick Castle, the magnificent seat of the Earl and Countess of Warwick. Lord Brooke, the eldest son of the Earl and Countess, and heir to the title and estates of his father, comes of age, to-day, and the event is being celebrated with a great house party, as such events are by custom celebrated in these isles.

Lord Brooke is of a lively, energetic temperament and appears to have inherited more of the qualities of his famous mother than those of his father, the earl, who is a quiet and reserved man. In the days of his early youth about Leamington, near Warwick Castle is located, and later at Eton Lord Brooke was regarded as a frail, delicate boy of a quiet disposition. But as his years increased he soon showed that he was possessed of "ideas" like his clever and attractive mother.

When refused permission to volunteer for Africa, he ran away, sold his fur overcoat and trinkets to buy a ticket for Durban, merely leaving a note explaining his intention to enlist in one of the irregular corps of cavalry. He was forgiven, and received on arriving in Durban a commission that attached him to the staff of one of the commanding officers. During the troublous times in Serbia following the assassination of King Alexander, Lord Brooke served with credit as the correspondent at Belgrade of the Times.

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of the bride's father, Ganouque, on Wednesday last when Miss Dot Gillespie and W. H. Pawke were united in marriage. World's Tribute to Britain. Pittsburgh Post-Intelligencer. The tribute the world pays Great Britain in interest and dividends is shown by official figures from London that are eloquent. The total amount of British money owned and invested abroad and in India and the colonies was a little over $6,000,000,000, on which the interest paid was $304,000,000, or about $107 per capita for every man, woman and child in England, Ireland and Scotland. It has taken a deal of figuring and inventing to arrive at these facts, but they explain why English imports exceed exports year after year and the country still increases its wealth.

Provident Customs.
Germany has a bridal ceremony peculiarly its own. This is a "pay wedding" at which the bride receives her guests with a basin before her in silver spoon, or a piece of money. In some parts of Germany the expenses of the marriage feast are met by each guest paying for what he eats or drinks. The young couple often make a handsome profit out of their wedding, realizing a sum sufficient to start them in life.

Sure Diagnosis.
Washington Star.
"Do you think it is an advantage to a boy to be reared in the country?"
"To be sure," answered Farmer Cornstossel. "A boy has a heap better chance in the country. For instance, when a boy is surrounded by orchards and melon patches he can have a stomach ache without the doctor jumping to the conclusion that he's got 'pendicitis.'"
