

Range

VENTILATES.
Plating the oven in a range and is an actual working feature through small vents into the oven while the odors and cooking smoke flows and up the chimney, and the rich, natural flavors of meats, to which the palate is accustomed, are always light, fresh and appetizing.

White
You Are Well

RENSON, Agents.

North American
Solid
Continental

YOU CAN PROVIDE FOR YOUR FUTURE—AND YOUR FAMILY—
LITTLE COST.

the HOW and the WHY—

WRITE OR CALL ON

J. FAIR, District Manager,
Kingston, Ont.

Malt
Breakfast
Food
Delicious,
Appetizing,
Healthful.
Good to Eat.

PROTECT YOUR SAVES

Patent Home Safes
Fire and Waterproof.
Of the weight and half price of others.

CALL AND SEE THEM.

G. C. DOBBS & CO.,

Typewriter and Bicycle Repairers,
Kingston St.

NOTICE

Highest Cash Price paid for Head Clothing, Furniture,
Etc. A large stock of new
Gents' Furnishing, Jewelry, Instruments, Etc. I am selling at low prices, and second-hand will call them at very low prices.

271 and 273
Princess St.
and door below Corbett's.

ACKS,

271 and 273
Princess St.
and door below Corbett's.

ANTAL-MDY

Stomach, bowels, liver, spleen, pancreas and kidneys
19-48 HOURS. Cures kidney and bladder troubles.

EN CURED

My latest Method Treatment makes the above proposition.
I am so convinced that I will cure you that I will write all about your trouble and advise you whether I can cure you.

See Dr. Goldberg, Personally write to me my personal which testify to my standing as a specialist of the country.
I will cure you that I will write all about your trouble
and advise you whether I can cure you.

OR ADDRESS
BERG,
St. Detroit, Mich.

A Man is Only as Old as He Feels.

Some people are always young—in spirit and vigor. The man who feels his age is the man who neglects his stomach and liver. As the years pile up the delicate organisms grow weaker.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

strengthens the system to resist the added strain. A perfect laxative—it removes all poison from the system. Purifies and enriches the blood. It keeps the liver and kidneys active. Abbey's possesses the rare quality of being a helpful and stomach tonic, without any re-acholous effect.

At all Druggists 25c. and 60c.

HOTEL EMPIRE,

Broadway and 63rd Street, N.Y. City.
Telephone in Every Room.

Rooms 21 per Day and Upwards.

From Grand Central Station take cars marked "Broadway to Fort Lee Ferry" and reach Hotel Empire in seven minutes.

All surface cars of the "Metropolitan Transit Co." pass the Hotel Empire.

The restaurant of the Empire is noted for the excellence of its cuisine, its efficient service and moderate prices.

A fine library of choice literature for the exclusive use of our guests.

The Empire has long been the favorite hotel for tourists visiting the Metropolitan industrial concerns every evening.

Within ten minutes of amusement and alluring centres.

The Empire is the headquarters of the Canadian Society of New York.

Send for Brochure.

W. Johnson Quinn, Prop.

CHILDREN'S SHOES

Most people know that it is hard to get children's and little girls' shoes that are satisfactory.

Try Glossis' Shoe.

We know they are honest, hard wearing, good-looking, and low priced.

H. JENNINGS, King St.

OYSTERS ARE IN SEASON.

And we handle principally Booth's celebrated Great Brand, which have no equal in quality and price. When purchasing, who get the best, which is only to be had from us? Give us a trial order and see for yourself. We also handle all kinds of oysters that are in season. Country always on hand. Yours truly,

DOMINION FISH CO.

63 Brock Street. Phone 220.

CHINESE LAUNDRY

IF YOU WANT YOUR LAUNDRY done up stylishly, with a good finish, take it to the "SING DOO LAUNDRY," or by leaving word, will call for laundry and deliver it again. With our trial you will always go to "SING DOO LAUNDRY" Outer Bazaar and William streets.

HE WAS ASLEEP.

THE CONVICT SLUMBERED EIGHT WHOLE DAYS

Escaped Prisoner's Trial Delayed By Long Trance—May Never Awake Again—Quite An Incident.

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

Paris, Sept. 21.—An escaped convict from New Caledonia was to have appeared before the criminal court on the charge of defecation. When his name was called, however, he was asleep in a hospital ward on the same. In fact, he had been asleep for eight days, and there is a question whether he will ever awake from his trance.

At first the warden thought the prisoner was shamming. All efforts to arouse him, however, have been in vain.

Alexander Bolvin is the convict's name. Several years ago he was condemned to hard labor in "La Nouvelle," but he soon succeeded in escaping. He was retaken in Australia and returned to the French authorities.

Several months ago he learned that his old mother was dangerously ill in England. He escaped again and reached her side just before her death. After the funeral Bolvin came to Paris and secured a place in a draper's shop. One day his employer sent him to collect some 3,000 francs on a bill which was due.

Bolvin accomplished the mission. But just as he was peering his employer's door he saw approaching a former convict guard who had known him in

"AS WEAK AS A CAT."

No Human Being Proportionately as Strong as a Cat.

Our Animal Friends.

Of all the animal adages founded on the mistake of a fact, "as weak as a cat" is the most absurd. Really, the cat is a most muscular animal. The lion, the tiger and other so-called "big cats," as you already know, are of the same family with our common house pussy; we shall not speak of them further. "As weak as a cat" is applied to the horse pussy, but to say "as weak as a kitten" is truer. One may then mean the new-born kitten, which comes into the world blind, softer and more helpless-looking than even the blind puppy, but which, however, is not so helplessly weak as the puppy, the kitten having sharp claws which the puppy has not. You know so much of cats, do you not, young people?

The cat's muscles are extraordinarily large and powerful in proportion to the animal's size. Then again these muscles are attached to bones fitted together at such angles as to make "the finest system of spring and levers," says Dr. Huidkoper, "known in the whole group; the claws are sharper and are curved into stronger hooks than in any other mammal, and by the action of special muscles are withdrawn under the protection of sheathlike pads, that they may escape wear and injury when not in use.

The slender, supple form of the cat enables it capable of the highest activities. The heavy boy, you may have noticed, is not always the strongest, the thin, active boy is the fastest runner, and the quicker at games which

OVER THE GREAT SEA.

Brought to Us by the Recent Mails.

Twenty-three thousand British soldiers in India are total abstainers.

Summons were recently issued against 200 Passive Resisters at Bristol, Eng.

The latest official statistics give the number of Roman Catholics in Great Britain at 1,933,000.

At Rugby a lady has died from poisoning through sucking a rag doll, stuffed with dyed material.

The peat bogs of Ireland could give an annual output of 100,000 electric horse-powers for 1,250 years.

During the last session of parliament Mr. Caldwell, M.P., for Mid-Lanark, Scotland, voted in all the 263 divisions.

At a recent fashionable wedding in England instead of rice being thrown, tiny shoes of silver paper, with "Good Luck" printed inside, were used.

Pope Pius X. has roused a storm of comment for having given the apostolic benediction to a member of the Italian parliament, M. Macola, who years ago killed in a duel M. Pelice Cavallotti.

Hamburg is headquarters for animal sales. A young elephant sells for between $600 and $750; tigers rate at $400, lions, $125, spotted hyenas $200, striped hyenas $50, giraffes $2,000, rhinoceros $4,000.

A criminal named Norris, convicted at Northampton, has been engaged as Wesleyan preacher, factory inspector, sailor, soldier, asylum attendant, bookkeeper, and waiter as a cloak to his career of crime.

George Herring, of England, who this year offered for the second time to give one-fourth to the amount collected in places of worship for the Metropolitan hospital Sunday fund, has contributed $57,875.

Nearly all married women in Russia smoke cigarettes and the habit has begun to obtain largely among the unmarried. Smoking cigarettes are as much of a necessity for travelling Russian women as for men.

The village of High Garrett, Essex, England, was offered by auction in twenty lots, which made good prices. Among the unsold lots were the village schools, built by the late Samuel Courtland, the silk-grope manufacturer, twenty years ago. The village inn was withdrawn at £1,500.

There are only two reigning monarchs in all Europe who "do not look upon the wine when it is red." These two are certainly enough, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, and Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey. The sultan, in spite of all his faults, is a strict follower of Mohammed, and consequently never touches alcoholic drinks.

On a recent Saturday occurred the murder of three children by their father at Hilton, in Staffordshire; the shooting of a servant girl at Bootle; a woman drowned here; Little girl and her mother committed suicide in London; an ex-army sergeant shot his wife and blew out his own brains in Kildare; and a Northampton man cut his throat in presence of his eldest boy.

Goderich Notes.

Goderich, Sept. 18.—Only one King Edward is making trips to the Soo from Toledo this month. The freight traffic was so great another steamer should have been kept on the route.

Summer visitors left first week of September. A great number attended the Toronto exhibition. We were quite delighted with last week's "Told