TURNED ABOUT

THE MANAGER OF THE COMPANY RESIGNS.

A Face About in the Columns of Blair's Personal Organ—Mr. Milligan, the Manager, Stepped Out, Rather Than Crawl.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 21.—A sensation caused in local political circles, to-day, when the Telegraph, Mr. Blair's personal organ, came out in bold opposition to the Grand Trunk Pacific policy and in a Telegraph editorial the following appeared: "I decided to try the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad I did. No one can describe the good it has done for me. It has made me feel as if I were a young girl. Mrs. Pinkham's medicine are certainly all they are claimed to be."—Mrs. M. E. HUNTER, 247 E. Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.—$2000 profit of which she has given $500 to the poor.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice, and a few timely words from her will show you the right thing to do. This advice costs nothing, but it may mean life or happiness or both.

IN REALMS OF FROST.

A Vapid Description By An English Banker.

Far off, and away in the frigid domains of eternal cold, gripped tight in the icy hug of biting, ceaseless frost, and face to face with a mighty girded barrier of solid ice, towering high towards the heavy leaden skies, is a valiant band of heroes who, year after year, have been striving to reach the new object of the explorer's ambition, the South Pole. Through the long, deadly winter plunged day and night in amercian darkness; furious blizzards driving before them a blinding whirlwind of frozen snow, which smites them as though it were a tempest of missiles hurled from some angry volcano; their good ship "Discovery" surrounded deep in an ever descending snowy avalanche, every mast, every rope, encased in a thick sheathing of ice, there these brave men while away the heavy time in a deadly monotony, only broken by recurring tempests and whirling hurricanes.

Only Have A Junior Team.

The executive committee of the Limestone County Football Union had a meeting to-day and decided that in view of the geographical position of Kingston it would be impossible to finance a senior team in the O. R. F. C. The union has been notified of the club's retirement. It would cost $700 to meet the union's requirements this year. The Limestones will content themselves with a club in the junior series.

A GOOD WOMAN, Has Passed To Her Reward—A Loving Tribute.

Sand Bay, Ont., Sept. 22.—This vicinity is overcast in solemn gloom owing to the very sudden demise of Mrs. Bernard McNamee, who expired about midnight on Friday, the 19th inst. She had retired a few hours previously in the brightest of spirits and the best of health, her death, which was due to apoplexy, was, therefore, a dreadful shock to her devoted family and large circle of friends.

Deceased lady was the youngest daughter of the late Garrett Kavanaugh, Malloytown, where she was born in the year 1844. John G. Kavanaugh of Winnipeg, James G. Kavanaugh of Little Falls, and Martin N. Kavanaugh of Malloytown, are her surviving brothers. Charles, a contractor in Philadelphia, and a cherished sister, Mrs. Brodick, Brookville, preceded her to the grave some years ago. She was also a second cousin of the late and much lamented Hon. Arthur McMurragh, the celebrated lawyer and statesman.

Early in the sixties she married, and came with her husband to reside in Lansdowne, near the Charlestown Lake, which piece of country was a primitive forest. But the young wife, who had ever a willing hand, and a stout, courageous heart, cheerfully assisted her industrious companion in his many arduous undertakings. Coming from the true Carlow blood, she might be rightly classed among the "Carlow Butter-makers," as the early history of Leeds agriculturists relates that she exhibited the golden product for ten successive years, carrying away the highest premiums at each exhibit. The first provincial fair held in Kingston in 1882, awarded her first prize and bronze medal, the first given to any woman in Canada. Last year she exhibited butter at the Colonial exhibition, London, Eng., where she received the medal from the Prince of Wales. Being satisfied with this last great honor she retired from the field.

In her youth, Mrs. McNamee, was carefully trained and educated by her aunt, Miss Mary Kavanaugh, the much loved pioneer Irish school mistress, whose memory is still dear to many people in Escott, and we may here add that this excellent teacher received her education in a Carlow convent and her diploma from the famous Daniel O'Connell, the Irish agitator. Six sons and four daughters are left to mourn the loss of their affectionate parent: Patrick J. McNamee of Sault Ste. Marie, Charles J. of Western Wisconsin, John G. of North Dakota, Frank B. of Lansdowne, Thomas D. of O'Mara, Lombardy, Mrs. T. E. Heffernan, Toledo, Miss Rose of Kingston and Helen at home. A very large circle of friends and kindred remains to St. Patrick's church, Lansdowne, where in life this estimable friend and mother was a faithful and pious worshipper. After the routine service the remains were reverently placed in the Church of England vault, to await an early interment. "She hath opened her hand to the needy, and stretched out her hands to the poor," can be fittingly applied to this noble-hearted woman, who took so many shares in the hotel scheme, and the mayor, who is, or should be, a man of means, or some wealth, may do well to consider the project handsomely. And who has a better right to lead in this matter than our city fathers? In this way they will show that they have a real, substantial interest in the welfare of the city. As Kingstonians we may make it clear that we mean business by going into it with a will, before we can expect strangers to assist us, in this or any other enterprise.—CITIZEN.

LET THE MAYOR, And Aldermen Lead in Summer Hotel Scheme.

Kingston, Sept. 24.—(To the Editor.) According to letters that have appeared in the Whig, the writers think it is time something should be done to break through this old standard system of hotels. There are many improvements that might be suggested for the benefit of the city. But the summer hotel is the crying want. "A Resident, in a former issue of the Whig thinks we cannot move our city fathers. But they can be moved, if it is said there is a time and place for everything. At our municipal elections, make it a condition that every alderman elected to the council must take so many shares in the hotel scheme, and the mayor, who is, or should be, a man of means, or some wealth, may do well to consider the project handsomely. And who has a better right to lead in this matter than our city fathers? In this way they will show that they have a real, substantial interest in the welfare of the city. As Kingstonians we may make it clear that we mean business by going into it with a will, before we can expect strangers to assist us, in this or any other enterprise.—CITIZEN.

Injured While Driving.

Point Road, Sept. 23.—Recent dry weather was a great boon to farmers, enabling them to get their threshing and all other small jobs done before fall ploughing is commenced. A few from here attended the social given by Mrs. Ward and family in aid of the English church, which was a great success. It was engaged with E. Barrett for the fall. Mrs. Draper, while out driving with her daughter a few days ago, met with an accident through which she has been confined to her home since, but is rapidly recovering. J. Kendall has the contract of erecting a barn for A. Medley. E. Ferney has engaged with J. Woods for the fall work. Mr. Kincaid attended the fair at Brockville.

Minnows In Milk.

A well-known Grand Rapids milkman was recently made the victim of a cruel joke by a fisherman friend who happened to be passing the milkman's wagon just as that worthy gentleman was dodging around the corner of a house with a bottle of lactical fluid. The fisherman had a pint or so of minnows in an oyster can. Quickly he dumped the little fish into the milk tank and fled. Patrons' that morning were dazed to find the funny little fellows in the seasoning of their coffee, provided by their faithful purveyor, and nearly mobbed him before the truth came out.

Fresh Ripened Raspberries.

This morning Mrs. John Alton, Harrowsmith, exposed for sale on the market a rail of ripened raspberries, which she marked on her farm on Wednesday. The raspberries were of the red variety, were fully developed, as ripe as could be desired, and full of flavor. The berries sold quickly at a good price. Evidently the present warm spell has forced the raspberry bushes, which some have concluded that another spring had come around again.

PORTS REOPEN.

BOSTON AND PORTLAND READY FOR SHIPMENTS

Chambers of Commerce Delegates Come East—At Quebec—200 Men Only, on Strike To-Day—Chinese To Go.

Montreal, Sept. 24.—The reopening of the ports of Boston and Portland for shipments of live stock to the British market, in consequence of the removal of the embargo placed on them, last November, by the British government, in view of the prevalence of the anthrax and rinderpest, in the New England states, is likely to make considerable difference to the St. Lawrence route for the balance of the year, as western shippers are already cancelling shipping space in expectation of a readjustment of rates. The shipments of live stock from the St. Lawrence have been phenomenally large this summer, on account of the closing of the United States ports. The delegates to the Chamber of the Commerce of the Empire, who have just completed a tour of Canada, as far west as the Pacific Coast, set out to-day to see Eastern Canada, and the maritime provinces. The afternoon the party is inspecting the works at Shawinigan Falls, having journeyed there, via the C.P.R. and G.N. Northern of Canada. The party is due to arrive at Quebec, this evening, and be entertained by commercial bodies there to-morrow, after which they will leave for the lower provinces.

In connection with the building-laborers' strike, it is reported that the men's headquarters, that out of the 450 men who went on strike yesterday night, only 200 are on strike, the balance of the employers having signed the demands, and others having secured work elsewhere.

In the division of appeals of the court of King's bench, judgment was rendered by Judge Boscawen, today, on the habeas corpus proceedings, in the case of the seventeen Chinamen who are trying to force the C.P.R. to re-assign them, in order that they may get into the United States. They have once been refused admission to the states, and the C.P.R., according to its contract, was about to send the men home, when the proceedings were taken. The court, however, granted habeas corpus, confirming the decision of the superior court and the Chinamen must go back.

ENORMOUS AQUEDUCT.

New York To Obtain 200,000,000 Gallons Daily.

New York, Sept. 24.—An enormous aqueduct, to be completed either with reservoirs or with watersheds of a number of streams which flow into the Hudson from the east in the vicinity of the Eschkill was recommended to the board of estimate by the expert commission which has been looking into the question of an additional local water supply. By means of such an aqueduct, it is estimated that 200,000,000 gallons of water a day and have it delivered in the city at an elevation of 300 feet without pumping.

If He Recovers, May Be Lynched.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 24.—A posse which went with bloodhounds in pursuit of a negro who fired on P. V. Plum, a white citizen of Shelby, Miss., was led by dogs to the house of M. Carter. When the men knocked on the door for admission, the lights were extinguished. They then broke down the door, while the negro emptied his pistol, without hurting anyone. Then the posse replied, fatally wounding Carter. He is now in jail at Shelby, and should he show signs of recovery he will undoubtedly be lynched.

Arms Given Mohammedans.

Vienna, Sept. 24.—The correspondent of Die Zeit at Kirk-Killisse, in eastern Turkey, says the authorities of the district have distributed arms to the Mohammedans, declaring that the powers have given the sultan carte blanche and ordering them to exterminate the Bulgarian inhabitants. Fifty arms were given to the Mohammedans, at Evkarion, the Mohammedans pillaged a church. Drunken soldiers later paraded the streets in the priests' vestments.

Breakwater Finished.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 24.—After seven years' work the contracting firm of Hughes Bros. & Bangs, this morning, completed the Buffalo breakwater. The wall is the longest ever built in fresh water. An appropriation of $1,200,000 has been used in finishing the work, and the breakwater is now supposed to be completed and in first-class condition.

Sam Parks has been voted by the Bridge Workers' Association, only three votes being cast against him.

A ROMANCE OF BIGAMY.

Amazing Drama of Real Life in London Town.

At the Old Bailey in London, England, one day recently there was revealed one of the most amazing stories of a double life that has ever been told in a story out of the pages of a novel—a story so amazing, indeed, that had a novelist dared to make it his theme, it would have been derided as incredible, and impossible.

The story is that of a man in humble life, a carpenter, who lived for twenty-seven years in perfect amity with his wife and children, and who yet barely five minutes' walk away had lived in equally unclouded happiness for the latter five years of that period with another woman, who he insisted to be his husband.

In 1857 a man who described himself as Walter Harvey was married at the Wandsworth registry office to Mary Dentry, a good-looking girl, some two years his junior.

Harvey desired the marriage to be kept secret. He was a widower, he said, with a grown-up son and daughter, and if it were known that he married a second time, they would lose certain valuable property which had been conditionally left to them.

With some reluctance the young wife consented to the concealment. She was also persuaded to agree to her husband taking up his permanent residence with his son and daughter, and only visiting her at the rooms he had taken in Rollo street, Battersea, at brief intervals in the day time.

Three children were born of this strange union, and Harvey proved an affectionate father and a kind and gentle husband, taking the mother and children about, walking with their baby boy in a small cart.

For five years, though the perpetual shadow of discovery must have hung like a black cloud over his life, there was almost perfect happiness in the little home in Rollo street.

Then came a terrible development. Harvey was charged on his own confession with bigamy. As William Theobalds Harvey, he had been married as far back as 1875.

The two women never met, the double life was suspected by neither, and not a shadow of suspicion of this extraordinary deception had ever lighted upon either household.

Mary Dentry, as "Mrs. Harvey," had even visited the house in which the real wife and her son and daughter lived, but Harvey had taken care that they should be out of the way.

Once while walking near the park Harvey and Mary Dentry almost came face to face with the man's son and daughter. Harvey observed calmly that he did not want to speak to them just then, and turning down a side street an encounter was avoided just then.

Never but once, except when he met with an accident and had to go to a hospital did he spend a night away from his real wife. He went to Rollo street to tea, and left at half-past ten. This custom was only broken when their little girl was dying. Mary Dentry insisted on his staying by the little one's bedside.

He had always given as a reason for leaving early, says the Evening News, that he must visit his dying child, but he never visited her, and in this she cheerfully acquiesced. On this occasion, however, with the shadow of death in the house Mary protested. His duty was by his little child, she said, and he must stop. The child died at midnight, and Harvey remained with the sorrowing mother until half-past two.

Then he went to his own wife, but at ten o'clock in the morning he was back at Rollo street again. He wore mourning for the little one, but even this circumstance aroused no suspicion in his family.

GIRL FILLED WITH ANIMALS.

Strange Case of a Patient Who Yielded Many Parasites. Liverpool, Sept. 23.—The extraordinary case of a Buckingham girl, in whom body scores of strange animals were found, has aroused considerable interest in medical circles. The girl, Ellen Bates, aged twenty-two, was very strong and healthy until last October, when she was seized with a mysterious illness. She continued to eat, and during February she vomited a number of small animals, the estimate being three or four each day.

She got worse and was sent to the Buckingham nursing home, where she remained under the care of Dr. Vincent Howard and Miss Potter, the head nurse, for about six weeks. Then she was taken to St. Bartholomew's hospital in London, and afterwards to another hospital, where an operation was performed, and hundreds of animals—large and small—were found near her left shoulder blade.

She died under the operation, and the doctors declared that she could not possibly have lived, because one of the animals had travelled from the region of her shoulder to her heart. The case was probably one of hydrotaenia. The history of these parasites is peculiar. In the mature state they are known as taenia echinococcus, and infest the intestines of dogs, wolves and jackals, into which they are introduced by feeding on the flesh of pigs tainted by the parasite in another stage of development. The eggs of the echinococcus are introduced into the human body in drinking water infested by pigs or dogs. Thus the story that set the parents of the girl to sea, and which she herself has explained, is probably enough.

In the human body the eggs form hydratid cysts most frequently in the liver. Around the cyst the tissue hardens, and the parasite may remain long without interfering with the health. Within the cyst numerous small cysts, called daughter cysts, may form. In some cases there are thousands of these varying in size. The parent cyst occasionally bursts into the stomach or lungs, or even into the membrane surrounding the heart. Supposing the girl to have hydrotaenia, the vomiting of small animals is explained. The animal that was found in her body was the parent cyst, which had burst into the stomach, the daughter cyst being vomited up.
