

Is Crushed by Chronic Troubles. One of the most weakening, undermining troubles, which mankind is heir to is hemorrhoids or piles. The victim is careless and neglectful of the disease at first because the pain is slight and the itching may only occur occasionally, or he may be reassured by the occasional disappearance of the symptoms. And yet if at the very start he had found a rational remedy to soothe the inflammation, he would probably never have had a return of this irritating malady.

THE ADDRESS AT INSTALLATION BY CHANCELLOR FLEMING.

Reference To Past Principals—Evidence of the Broad National Spirit And Character Of Queen's.

Chancellor Fleming spoke as follows: We are assembled to-day for the purpose of formally installing the eighth principal of Queen's University. The record as it appears in Domesday book shows that the men who have already held the important office are as follows: Principal Liddell, from 1841 to 1846; interim Principal Machat from 1846 to 1853; Vice-Principal George, from 1854 to 1857; interim Principal Cook, from 1857 to 1860; Principal Leitch, from 1860 to 1864; Principal Snowdon, from 1864 to 1877; Principal Grant, from 1877 to 1902. These are the seven predecessors of Dr. Gordon. The last on the list of past principals, the very Rev. George Munro Grant, the greatly beloved principal of whom we have the most cherished memories, was to his rest on May 10th, 1902 and on December 5th following the board of trustees appointed the Rev. Daniel N. Gordon, B.D., to the office rendered vacant.

On January 14th of the present year the new principal reached Kingston. We were enthusiastically met on his arrival by the students, professors, trustees and a large concourse of citizens. On behalf of the board of trustees I had the great pleasure of receiving him and in extending hearty greetings as authorized so to do by the governing body, I pledged him the most cordial support in carrying on the duties and in bearing the responsibilities of the high office to which he had been appointed. In order that his duties might forthwith commence, I provisionally installed Dr. Gordon as the executive head of the university. The mayor and members of the city council were present. These staunch and cordial friends of Queen's University extended the civic greetings to the new principal, emphasizing the close and happy relations that exist between the University and all the citizens of Kingston.

Soon afterwards it was my agreeable privilege at a meeting of the university council, and on behalf of that body, to deliver an address of welcome to the new principal. On that occasion I felt that we were opening a new page in the history of the university and it seemed to me fitting, in order that we might the better consider our present position, to review the past and more especially the progress we had made in recent years. I pointed out that Queen's had been founded by far-seeing God-fearing men, who were endowed with breadth of mind and who cherished the true spirit of patriotism. While they felt that religion should not be divorced from education, they were not in favor of any sectarian, or merely denominational school. The men who founded Queen's were free from all spirit of intolerance. They asserted perfect freedom in education and the circumstances of the time rendered it necessary that they should do so. Their policy was to do what was best in the interest of the country as a whole. They resolved to place Queen's on a "basis so broad that no religious test or qualification should ever be required or appointed for any person admitted or matriculated as scholars."

These last words are from the Royal Charter and they constitute an essential feature of the constitution of the university. The freedom in higher education sixty years ago raised Queen's to a high place. The determination to establish a seat of learning not restricted to any particular denomination, not limited in its teaching to the members of any creed or class, but with its doors wide open to all Canadians made Queen's University, from its inception onwards, in the truest sense a national institution.

We have ample evidence of the broad national spirit and character of this seat of learning in the students who flock to its teaching from all parts of the country, for they represent all branches of the Christian church. If any further proof is needed to have it in the fact that the people of Kingston of every creed and class are on the most cordial relations with the university, a relationship which has time and again been made manifest. I have only to point to the old castle building erected by the private means contributed by rich and poor of Kingston. As another illustration of the love and affection of those who know Queen's and her work best, I may with very great satisfaction instance the recent gift of the corporation of Kingston of $50,000 to erect the new arts building. This grant by the municipality of Kingston is unique; it certainly furnishes the strongest possible evidence of the public utility of Queen's, for, as everyone knows in order to make it legal a by-law had to be regularly submitted to the whole people, and that by-law was voted on with the result that it was carried with substantial unanimity in every ward of the city. What better proof than this in a mixed population that the work of this university where it is best known, is most appreciated.

I have endeavored to ascertain if there be any measure of the state work performed by Queen's. It will be conceded that a completed education of a graduate in the arts' faculty is a public advantage and may be regarded as university state work. It at least so regarded elsewhere. I find that Queen's has enrolled with the B.A. degree the total number of 1,185 graduates. The provincial university at Toronto has similarly enrolled, eliminating the graduates of Victoria and the University of Ottawa, the total number of 2,495 B.A. graduates. Comparing these figures I think it will be acknowledged that the university at Kingston, unaided by the state, has performed a work of higher education of the country. The matter of university education was under discussion in the parliament of the province at Toronto in June last but I am unable to perform a considerable portion of the work of higher education of the country. IT WORKS.
The Laborer Eats Food That Would Wreck An Office Man.
Men who are actively engaged at hard work can sometimes eat food that would wreck a man who is more closely confined.
This is illustrated in the following story: "I was for twelve years clerk in a store, working actively and drank coffee all the time, without much trouble until after I entered the telegraph service."
"There I got very little exercise and drinking strong coffee my nerves grew unsteady and my stomach got weak and I was soon a very sick man. I quit meat and tobacco and in fact I stopped eating everything which I thought might affect me except coffee, but still my condition grew worse and I was all but a wreck."
"I finally quit coffee and commenced to use Postum a few years ago and I am speaking the truth when I say my condition commenced to improve immediately and to-day I am well and can eat anything I want without any bad effects, all due to shifting from coffee to Postum Cereal Coffee."
"I told my wife to-day that I had bought a brick if I had a rup of Postum to go with it. We make it according to directions, boiling it full twenty minutes and use good rich cream and it is certainly delicious."

FIRST SURPLUS ON ENTIRE CANADIAN POSTAL SERVICE.

Gratifying Announcement Made In The House By Sir William Mulock—Amounts Paid on Railway Subsidies.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—The first surplus on the entire postal service of Canada was the Thanksgiving announcement of Sir William Mulock, the man who does things. The postmaster-general told the house that allowing for the deficit of over $100,000 on the Yukon service, the postal revenue for the past year exceeded the expenditure by $292,702, compared with the deficit of $781,100 in the last year of conservative administration. This meant a betterment in the postal accounts of over a million dollars, in addition to a million dollars estimated to have been saved the people by the reduction in postal rates.

In view of the satisfactory state of the finances, Sir William announced an increase in pay to postmasters in country districts. The advance will be the raising of the minimum fee from $10 to $25, and in the case of accounting postmasters there will be an increase of ten per cent in salary and in fees. Sir William presented a convincing array of figures showing increases in postal facilities, business and revenue, and his statement was heard with great satisfaction.

Replying to Mr. Henderson, Hon. Mr. Paterson said that of $136,798,000 of imports last year, upon which a duty of $37,140,354.50 was paid, $37,614,505 came under preferential tariff, and the duty paid thereon was $7,069,612.42.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, in reply to Charles Heyd, said that during the past ten years railway subsidies to the amount of $27,640,000 have been granted by parliament and during the same period $15,203,500.37 had been paid on account of railway subsidies.
