Pandora Range

OVER THERMOMETER. NO "BAD LUCK" BAKING DAYS!

Twenty degrees difference in the temperature of an oven is sufficient to make "Good Luck" or "Bad Luck" in baking many kinds of food.

The heat in the oven of a range not fitted with a thermometer, or worse, fitted with a poor instrument, will easily vary twenty degrees—result is unpalatable, burned or half-baked food, a cross cook and a disappointed family at meal time.

Thermometer fitted in oven door of "Pandora" range has been a proven success for fifteen years, and every instrument is carefully adjusted, and tested by heat, before sending out—the first, best and only thermometer which is of any real value to those who do baking.

"Pandora" range is handsome, economical on fuel and a perfect baker.

R. G. IRWIN, Crippled and Disabled from Rheumatism

R. G. Irwin, registrar of Probate and Deeds, Shelburne, N.S., says: "Having been benefited by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, I gladly and voluntarily add my testimony to its value. I was crippled and disabled with rheumatism in my right leg, hip and shoulder. Getting up and down stairs was a very painful and tardy exercise, and for two months I could do but little better than drag my leg. Paine's Celery Compound was recommended to me, and I used six bottles, and am now clear of the pain. I firmly believe that the above medicine cured my rheumatism."

How He Found Stanley.

On November 10th, 1871, Dr. Livingstone, the long missing African explorer, was found by Stanley. Stanley thus described his meeting with the lost explorer: "I pushed back the crowds, and passing from the rear, walked down a living avenue of people until I came in front of the semi-circle of Arabs, in front of which stood the white man with the gray beard. As I advanced slowly toward him, I noticed he was pale, looked wearied, had a gray beard, wore a bluish cap with a faded gold braid round it, had on a red-sleeved waistcoat and a pair of gray tweed trousers. I would have run to him, only I was a coward in such a mob; would have embraced him, only, he being an Englishman, I did not know how he would receive me, so I did what cowardice and false pride suggested to him, took off my hat and said, 'Dr. Livingstone, I presume?' 'Yes,' said he, with a kind smile, lifting his cap slightly."

MARRIAGE IN NEW YORK OF MISS GOELET.

A Brilliant Scene at the Church Service—The Rare Gifts For The Bride.

New York, Nov. 10.—Miss May Goelet, was united in marriage at 2.30 o'clock, in the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. Thomas, to Sir Henry John Innes-Ker, Duke of Roxburghe, Marquis of Bowmont and Cessford, Earl of Roxburghe, Earl of Kelso, Viscount Broxmouth, Baron Roxburghe, and Baron Ker of Cessford and Cavertoun in Scotland, Earl Innes in the United Kingdom, and a Baronet of Nova Scotia.

The church edifice was guarded by fifty police officers, specially detailed to hold in check the immense crowd of spectators who began to gather as early as eight o'clock in the morning. As upon previous occasions when American heiresses have bestowed themselves upon titled foreigners, the ceremony was witnessed by the select and exclusive body known as "society." The wedding itself, however, was devoid of lavish display as the family of the bride is in mourning for Sir Michael Herbert, who was related by marriage to the Goelet family. Following the ceremony at the church, for which about 300 invitations were issued, there was a reception at the home of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, the guests for the latter function being limited to fifty in number.

The first spectators at the church monopolized the entrances to the mansions adjoining, and their example was followed by later arrivals, who took advantage of railings, doors and garden plots, and in some instances window sills were occupied by women. As the hour for the opening of church approached many of the guests who were waiting in the vicinity in their carriages drove up to the entrances on Fifty-third street and Fifth avenue, and alighting got in line in a good-natured way. The crowd at this time began to swell and the police, in charge of four precinct commanders, kept the spectators moving, none being permitted to loiter in front of the approaches of the edifice. The doors of the church were thrown open shortly after twelve o'clock, and while the guests arrived there was an elaborate programme of organ and vocal music. As the bridal party entered the nuptial music from "Lohengrin" was played and a nuptial hymn was sung by the choir before the benediction and anthem. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ernest W. Stires, rector of the Church of St. Thomas, assisted by Bishop Potter and the Rev. Dr. Huntington of Grace church.

The floral decorations of the church were tasteful without being elaborate. The walls were lined with rare palms, and vines were used to a large extent in the decorations of the ceiling and the groined roof. Hanging from the galleries surrounding the entire edifice, were pink, green and mauve orchid plants, which were offset by their dark green foliage.

The church was well filled when the bride finally with her brother, Ogden Goelet, and her uncle, R. T. Wilson, followed by the bridesmaids, and every eye of the brilliant assemblage was turned toward the bridal party. Miss Goelet looked very young and girlish and appeared perfectly unconscious of the interest taken in her finery. She carried a bridal bouquet from the greenhouses of Floors Castle, which the handsome young husband had ordered as a matter of sentiment. The bride was attired in a magnificent gown of white satin and chiffon. The train to the gown was five yards long, and was fastened to the shoulders just below the neckband. The bridal veil of Brussels net, was fastened to the coiffure with a tiara of orange blossoms.

The order in which the bridesmaids walked to the altar is as follows: Miss Margaret Johnston, Miss Therese Iselin, Miss Beatrice Mills, Miss Alice Babcock, Miss Nina Thayer, of Boston; Miss Pauline Whittier and Lady Isabel Innes-Ker. Their gowns of heavy ivory satin, though simple in design, were exquisite.

The ushers whom the duke chose to assist him were six in number, chosen equally from among the English and American friends of the bridal couple. These young men are: Hugo Baring, Harold Brassey, of London, whose brother married a daughter of the present Duke of Richmond; Robert Walton Goelet, cousin of the bride; Henry Rogers Winthrop, a cousin of the bride; William Woodward, for some time attached to the American embassy at London, and Henry Worthington Bull, son of W. Lanman Bull. The Duke of Roxburghe's best man was the Hon. Reginald Ward.

After the ceremony the orchestra struck up the march from "Tannhauser" and the bridal party left the church, going immediately to the Goelet residence, where, after a brief reception, to the duke and duchess, refreshments were served by Sherry. The guests were limited to half a hundred people, among whom Lord and Lady Algernon Gordon Lennox, the Dowager Duchess of Roxburghe and other English relatives of the bridegroom, who came over for the wedding, the officiating bishops and clergy, the members of the bridal party and a few of the most intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The Duke of Roxburghe is the eighth duke of the line, and succeeded his father in 1892. He was born July 25th, 1876, and is consequently twenty-seven years of age. He is the eldest of seven children. There are three sons, the duke's two brothers being unmarried. The duke's mother was Lady Anne Emily Spencer Churchill, the daughter of John Winston, the seventh Duke of Marlborough, and consequently a great aunt of the present Duke of Marlborough, who married Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt. This makes the Duke of Marlborough and the Duke of Roxburghe second cousins and in a way continues the relationship existing between the New York families of Wilson and Vanderbilt. The present duke is moderately well off. He possesses Floors Castle in Roxburgheshire and Broxmouth, Dunbar, county Haddington. The house is modern, but the park has beautiful grounds, sloping down to the sea. Queen Victoria visited the place in 1876, when the Duchess of Roxburghe was Mistress of the Robes, and planted a cedar in the gardens.

The Duke of Roxburghe is a member of the Guards' Club in London, having formerly been a lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards. He was educated at Eton and served in the war in South Africa. Although not a very wealthy man, with his two estates, his family prestige, and his title, he has been regarded as an excellent match in England, and his name has been coupled with those of a number of heiresses, British and American, including Miss Pauline Astor, the daughter of William Waldorf Astor.

In appearance the duke is quite distinguished. He dresses very well, holds himself in a military manner, and is very well read and informed. He is rather reticent and quiet and very modest. He has as yet not gone in for politics, having only recently returned from the South African campaign. In sports he has distinguished himself and is one of the best polo players in the famous team of the Royal Horse Guards. Without being strictly handsome, the duke is very good looking.

The bride of to-day is the only daughter of Mrs. Ogden Goelet, and is one of two children who are heirs to a vast fortune, principally in real estate. Her father, Ogden Goelet, was one of the heirs of his uncle, Peter Goelet, who died unmarried. There were two brothers, Ogden and Robert. Ogden Goelet married Miss Mary Wilson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, and the new Duchess of Roxburghe is consequently closely related to the Astors and Vanderbilts. The young duchess, while not strictly a beauty, is a most attractive girl. She is rather petite, with dark hair and eyes. She has a most aristocratic bearing. Previous to her engagement to the Duke of Roxburghe she had many suitors. It was rumored at one time that the present Duke of Manchester was a suitor for her hand, but her father was most indigant when he heard of it. It was also suggested that Prince Henri, of Orleans, was desirous of marrying her, and the Russian Grand Duke Boris was likewise mentioned. In fact, almost every eligible European parti has been made the subject of gossip as to a prospective marriage to Miss Goelet, who, owing to her wealth and position, was made an object of such solicitude by all match-making Europe. Among the possible suitors mentioned from time to time were Viscount Crichton, Prince Francis, of Teck, the Earl of Shaftesbury, and Capt. Ames, of the Life Guards.

The present fortune of the new duchess is estimated at about $20,000,000. Her brother, Robert Wilson Goelet, is unmarried. Her mother holds with her children, among other real estate, the beautiful Ochre Court at Newport and the town residence, 608 Fifth avenue, besides the large tract of improved realty embracing a large part of Broadway between Thirty-second and Forty-second streets, down to the East river.

The Duke of Roxburghe and his bride, Miss Goelet.

DUCHESS OF ROXBURGHE.
The Mother of the bridegroom.

The duchess is about twenty-three years of age. She made her debut abroad and was presented at a drawing-room at Buckingham Palace. Last summer she was a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, on the yacht North Star, during the famous visit to Kiel, where the party were entertained by the kaiser. Mrs. Ogden Goelet, who was also on the North Star, returned in July, but Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Miss Goelet went to London, where they were joined by the Duke of Roxburghe. The engagement was announced then privately to the members of the family.

The Duchess of Roxburghe will take with her to England some wonderfully exquisite gifts. It is said that if all were converted into cash the figures would reach into millions.

Not to be outdone by the bride's American friends and relatives, the Dowager Duchess of Roxburghe, mother of the duke, has presented to her daughter-in-law the famous Roxburghe collection of emeralds, a fact that in itself has made the green stone the fashionable jewel for the year. The emeralds are valued at several hundred thousands of dollars. The Roxburghes have had them in their possession for two hundred years.

The most important of the emerald presents is a necklace of big stones, the largest one in the centre, the others graduating to the clasp, which is studded with tiny emeralds. This necklace is valued at $25,000. A beautiful pair of emerald ear-rings made of pear-shaped stones and three large emerald pins are among the collection. The pins are in the shape of sunbursts and are set in the finest Indian gold. Each pin has fourteen emeralds and around each stone are very small diamonds used to set off the brilliancy of the green stones.

In keeping with her mother's present one of the duke's sisters has given the bride a very handsome emerald and diamond ring.

From the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough has come a pearl pendant. It consists of two perfectly matched large pearls from which four or five pear-shaped pearls hang.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Wilson, Sr., grandparents of the bride, gave her a wonderful string of pearls several yards long. The mother of the bride presented her with a tiara of diamonds as expensive and beautiful a present as was ever designed in this country. Four diamond experts assisted in collecting the stones for the tiara.

Among the other notable presents received by the bride were a dozen solid gold dinner plates from Mrs. Ogden Mills, a pearl and turquoise bracelet from Miss Mills, a massive gold pitcher and tray to match from Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay, and a magnificent silver set from Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Gerry.

Health

Pure and rich blood carries new life to every part of the body. You are invigorated, refreshed. You become strong, steady, courageous. That's what Ayer's Sarsaparilla will do for you.

J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

Many are asking themselves whether it is derangement of the liver or kidneys that is causing them to suffer. So intimately related are these great filtering organs that one is seldom deranged without the other being also affected.

Torpid Liver and Kidneys.

It is surprising what a large proportion of every-day ills are due to disorders of the liver and kidneys. It was with this idea in mind that Dr. Chase prepared his celebrated Kidney-Liver Pills, and the extraordinary success of this prescription has made it indispensable in the home.

By their direct action on the liver these pills ensure a plentiful flow of bile (nature's own cathartic) and, by so doing, not only bring about a healthful action of the bowels but positively cure constipation.

At the same time the kidneys are invigorated, and kidneys, liver and bowels work together in ridding the system of the poisonous impurities which cause disease.

Pains in the back, headache, lumbago, rheumatism, dyspepsia, biliousness, kidney disease and liver complaint soon vanish before the thorough action of this medicine. The system is cleansed, the blood purified, and once again the organs of the body work in harmony and properly perform their duties.

It is to the old people especially that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills appeal. They prove effective when all other treatments seem of no avail and not only bring relief from the pains and aches, but restore vigor and activity to organs which have become sluggish and torpid.

MRS. WILKINS.

Mrs. W. Wilkins, Henry Street, Belleville, Ont., states:—"I suffered a great deal with pains in the small of the back, caused from kidney trouble. Whenever I stooped I could scarcely rise again, the pains were so great. The disease became so severe that it affected my general health and I was becoming run down. Since using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I can say that my trouble has entirely disappeared. I can speak in the highest terms of this medicine from the way it acted in my case."

Mr. Robert Jackson, Ship Carpenter, Port Robinson, Ont., states:—"I was afflicted with kidney trouble and lumbago for thirty years. The winters were always very severe on me, and I was many times incapacitated, with all the serious symptoms of both troubles. I had backache, biliousness, rheumatism, headache and constipation, and was wrecked physically. I used all sorts of medicines and have been treated by the medical profession to no purpose. In the spring of 1902 I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and from the start received great benefit. I continued the treatment until I fully recovered good health and vigor, my old trouble being a thing of the past. I am seventy-five years old, and if at my advanced age I have received such grand results from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills after years of unnecessary suffering there can be no doubt of their efficacy in the treatment of younger persons. I recommend them to everyone. I have tried to think of words to express my gratitude, but it is beyond expression, for they have done more for me than I could have believed."
