TARTE AS A NATHAN. The Montreal Gazette presents Mr. Parte as an Nathan who was rejected the government when he called the emier's attention to a fiscal wrong. was not a Nathan, however, when he, some years previously, laid before Sir John Macdonald the i quity of the conservative party, the rascalities committed in connection with the public works' department, nd demanded that it be cleansed ! The wonder grows that a man who was treated as badly as Mr. Tarte as then, who was turned down and in self-defence compelled to proceed in parliament against the corruptors, should ever want to be associated with the party again. We do not read that Nathan was repulsed and compelled to make com mon cause with the enemy in order to have justice triumph! When Nathan said, "Thou art the man," there was an immediate surrender, a fession of wrong doing, and a for mercy. All this is contrary to the experience of Mr. Tarte when he be gan his purification of the politicial

The men he accused of wrong-doing cast him out, and though they suffered for their sins in later years they never confessed and never offered either apology or atonement. Mr. Tarte may have posed as a Nathan then, but he did not have a Nathan's

STRIKE AND ITS EFFECTS. The street railway strike in Chicago has been ended, and each side claims a victory. As a matter of fact the strikers lose on all points but onethat they will be taken back, excepting those who have been arrested or convicted of violence, Thousands of men went out of service in sympathy with the aims and struggles of the car men, and these may recover their places, though the railway com panies will do what they can, and will probably succeed, in retaining the non-union men who served them in their extremity.

It has been said that the street car operators did not really demand an increase of wages, but they did. An increase of wages was not all which they contended. They wanted a fuller recognition of the union, want ed it to have something to say about who should be employed and who dismissed by the company, and wanted the union to be consulted about the routing of the cars. The company resisted all these demands, on the ground that they meant an interference with the management of their business, and at the same time no matter how good the instrument sisted that the wages question should

The question is whether the relations of the sects and the churches are the same in the larger New York and whether the showing is indicative of the condition of the churches generally in other cities.

One thing is self-evident-that the Catholics are the more faithful to church duties and church obligations. The weather does not affect them materially and does not keep them away from the services of the sanctuary. Through rain or sunshine, at early hours or at late hours, they seem to be eager to pay their vows, and their example in this respect is worthy of
