SPORT REVIEW THE QUESTION OF IMPORT ING PLAYERS,

Kingston Seems To Be The Only Place Which Fails To Do So-Sports. Some one asks the Whig if it is wrong for Kingston to entice hockey or football players here. Decidedly not, so long as there is no professional savor. Nearly every city, towa and porting players, and Kingston seems to be the only plan that is not uning so. The senior hockey ranks of the Limestone city have been very much depleted, and while younger material is developing, there needs to be a "filling in." In two years time, Kingston will likely, have a senior championship team of her own. Perhaps this city may be accused of boasting when it claims to have turned out more hockey players than any other place in Canada, excepting Toronto and Montreal, and to these places it does not take second place. Toronto and Montreal have been able to hold their star players, while Kingston has not, the provincial hogtown being responsible for taking away several of the best by nothing less than importation. Toronto is not to be blamed, though, Kingston, must add new blood to her hockey forces, just as colleges and churches do. If a good hockey or football player desires employment here, he should be looked after, and not allowed to pass on to rink authorities been on the alert, for it is to their interest to have a very strong city senior team. Belleville secured him. "Reddy" would have played better hockey in Kingston than in Belleville, for the reason that players are taught here by system. It is like sending a lad to a good, school and taking him away from a bad school. But no reflection is meant upon Belleville. Most decidedly let Kinoston
