

CATARRH THE MOST DANGEROUS OF ALL CHRONIC DISEASES.

"Pe-ru-na is a Blessing to Those Troubled With Catarrh," Says United States Senator Corbin.

Ex-U.S. Senator D.Y. Corbin.

Gentlemen—"The use of Pe-ru-na has been a blessing to those troubled with catarrh. So many of my acquaintances have been cured and benefited by its use that its curative qualities should be generally known. I do not hesitate to recommend it as the best remedy yet discovered for that disease."—D. Y. Corbin, 916 Chicago Opera House, Chicago, Ill.

Cold Not Promptly Cured Are Sure to Cause Catarrh.

Catarrh Improperly Treated is Sure to Make Life Short and Miserable.

Many Wonderful Cures Are Made by Pe-ru-na.

CATARRH spares no organ or function of the body. It is capable of destroying sight, taste, smell, hearing, digestion, secretion, assimilation and excretion. It pervades every part of the human body.

cannot help but add weight and importance to the thousands of testimonials from the humbler walks of life. Catarrh is the cause of at least one-half of the ills which the human family is subject to. Is there no way to escape from it? There is.

Pe-ru-na never fails to cure a cold. Pe-ru-na never fails to cure catarrh in the first stage. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh in the second stage, nine cases out of ten. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh in its last and worst stages in the majority of cases, and never fails to benefit every case, however bad.

"My Life Hung by a Mere Thread, Pe-ru-na Cured Me."

Mrs. Sarah Smart, 276 Hayward St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I can't tell in words how low I was. My life hung by a mere thread. I was waiting for months to die."

"My trouble was consumption or bronchitis. I suffered no pain when I was low, but coughing and breathing kept sapping what little strength I had. I could not eat, sleep or even lean back on a chair. I was a mere skeleton. I said to my husband, 'I can't last much longer. My neighbors say they do not know how I ever recovered. It was almost a miracle.'"

"I took your medicine but three months, when I could do my housework and washing, and have been doing it ever since. Now I am able to do anything. You would never think I had been troubled with such a serious illness. I shall always keep your medicine in my house."—Mrs. Sarah Smart.

Despaired of Recovery.

Mrs. R. L. Aulich, Vice President American Genealogical Association, 604 H street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I know whereof I speak when I say that Pe-ru-na is a wonderful remedy for colds and catarrhal trouble. Last fall I was very much debilitated from the effects of a cold contracted early in the summer and which I neglected. I knew that my system was in need of medicine and rest, but to find the right thing was the problem. Happily I gave Pe-ru-na a trial and have no reason to complain of the results. Within a month I had entirely recovered my strength and good health, and really felt better and stronger than before."—Mrs. R. L. Aulich.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

TWO BROTHERS PERHAPS FATALLY INJURED NEAR ARNPRIOR

Were On Their Way to be Married—Horses Took Fright at Canada Atlantic, and Ran Away.

Arnprior, Ont., Dec. 30.—A dreadful accident which may result in the death of two prominent local farmers, Alexander and George Drummond, occurred here this morning. As the east bound Canada Atlantic train was coming in, the high containing the two young men, was approaching the high street track, when the team, becoming frightened at the approaching train, became unmanageable and despite the efforts of the drivers to cross dashed to the engine, throwing one brother on the cow catcher, and the other over the baggage car. Both were jolted up in an unconscious state, and were so badly mangled and bruised, that after an examination by the local doctors, they were taken on a stretcher to the general hospital, Ottawa. The accident happened under particularly sad circumstances as the brothers were on their way to be married this afternoon to two well-known young ladies, living some miles from this town.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Credit To Santa Only.
Kingston, Dec. 30.—(To the Editor): I regret that so much publicity has been given to the visit of Santa Claus to some of the children on Christmas eve—a visit which is not unusual on any night of this year.

The little man "with whiskers so white and nose like a cherry" appeared in person, to whom can credit belong but to Santa Claus himself. While it is true Mr. Williamson, Willie Orr, Mr. Dunbar and I assisted him, it was the children who were the real stars of the occasion.

The joint committee recently appointed at a conference between representatives of McGill University and the Ontario education department and Toronto University, has drafted a scheme to be submitted to the minister of education.

DOINGS AT ODESSA.

A Grand Tea-Meeting—Aspirants For Political Fame.

Odessa, Dec. 29.—The telegrams to his brother, Dr. James E. Mabey, and to Robert Bennett, master of the Masonic lodge here, simply announce the death by accident of Judson T. Mabey at Odessa, North-West Territory. The deceased was well liked by every body, and had been employed in railway bridge construction. He was home on an extended visit, and left here about three months ago, rejoicing the bridge construction party and meeting death while in the discharge of his duty. Many are the expressions of sympathy extended to the brothers, Dr. J. Mabey, Odessa, and Dr. Oscar Mabey, Iowa, and to his sister, Mrs. Philip Storor, Kingston, The Christmas tree in the Methodist church was a brilliant success. The superintendent, P. A. Mabey, and secretary, Mrs. Ham, were each presented with chairs. On account of illness, Mrs. Andrews, Kingston, who was to have provided the programme, disappointed a large gathering. However a very fine programme was picked up on the spot by the choir, the vocal and reliable choir master, hustled for chorus and solo works. Byron Lee's little daughter, of Dakota, sang very sweetly. Mrs. D. B. Aylesworth, formerly An. Eliza Smith, now of Iowa, home on a visit after an absence of twenty-six years, gave a solo, and it was such a pleasure to listen to the sweet voiced singer, receding a flood of memories of days of yore. Miss Lee, Wilton, was equal to a fine recitation, as was Sidney Clark of Odessa. The supper was the usual Methodist feast, all kinds of fowl, beef, pork, and everything else. When it comes to a tea meeting the Odessians bust the pantry doors wide open, step to one side and "fill a British" of the hand, bow low and say, "Help yourself." John Jones, keeper of the cash, announced the proceeds as $90. Monday was nomination day, and the township hall was crowded. The candidates for the little songs in the church experience meeting stammered and stammered, but they were finished and could send away back and sit down. For reve we chose Miss Evers, Lieut. Hunter and Levi G. Galt, Wilton, both good men. We risk from councillors out of this bunch: Isaac F. Aylesworth, George Hamm, James Dawson, Mr. Brethern, Mr. Paul, John F. Baker, and Mark Fraser. Five of them are ex-revers.

A POPULAR TEACHER.

Presented With a Clock—Odessa Notes.

Odessa, Dec. 28.—The Christmas tree in the Methodist church on Tuesday evening, 22nd, was well attended; over $90 was taken from the tree, and a popular teacher, Mr. Adams, left last Wednesday for Ameliasburg to spend his holidays, after which he will leave for Concession, where he intends teaching. His pupils surprised him on Tuesday before leaving, by presenting him with a beautiful parlor clock. Mr. Adams made a very favorable reply, and speaks very highly of his Odessa pupils and friends. W. B. Perry and wife, Penetanguishene, spent Friday and Saturday at Sidney Clark's. Mr. Adams is spending his holidays at home, Regina, Clark, Elgin, is home for his holidays. Edwin Smart, wife and son, Brockville, are spending holidays at B. Delishe's. Charles W. Timmerman, Montreal, is home on a month's holidays.

Released From Quarantine.

Kaladar, Dec. 24.—The small-pox patients have been released from quarantine. Mrs. W. G. Rigby and son, Master George, have returned to Leaside after a couple of weeks' sojourn with her mother, Mrs. C. Morton. Mr. and Mrs. C. Morton and Miss Letta Morton have gone to visit his sister, Mrs. Nicoll, Norwood. The Christmas tree concert given in the schoolhouse on the 23rd was a success. Much thanks is due to the Northbrook Lea Club, who gave some fine musical selections. At the close our teacher, C. Wilson, Napanee, was presented with a beautiful clock, and a suitable address was read by O. Dempsey. Miss Etta Woods, Sydney, presented her brother, C. H. Wood, Nelson Melville, seriously ill for some time, is improving. Peter and Willie Morton have returned home after an absence of a few months at the shanties. Miss Lillian Campbell, Hinton, spent Saturday and Sunday at her aunt's, Mrs. A. Allport. Miss Florence Burnett, Perry Road, visited her friend, Miss Effie Pickering, for a few days this week. Mrs. James Bathgate has purchased a new cutter. O. H. Dunn wears a smile; it's a boy.

FAMILIAR SONGS.

Expectation.
Gerald Massey, a British poet, who wrote many beautiful poems, each filled with optimism and hopefulness. The following is a sample of his thought, which has been set to music. It deserves a reading from all!

Oh, never sit down, and say
There's nothing left but sorrow!
The promised land to-morrow,
And though age wearies by the way,
And hearts break in the furrow,
We'll sow the golden grain to-day,
And harvest comes to-morrow.

Build up heroic lives, and all
Be true to the motto: "Be true."
Ready to dash out at God's call,
O chivalry of labor!

Triumph and toil are twins; and aye
Joy stuns the cloud of sorrow.
Be true to the motto: "Be true."
Bring victory to-morrow.

Newspapers and Magazines.
An experienced advertiser affirms that newspaper advertising is not only more direct than magazine advertising, but that it offers more chances of success. "The newspaper," he says, "reaches many different classes of people; because it furnishes different sets of ideas, while the magazine furnishes but a single set and appeals to one definite class."

Hon. Peter White III.

The foreign office at Berlin continues to assure inquiries that the German government does not believe war will ensue from the Russian-Japanese controversy. This is also the view of the press.

Sir Percy Girouard says that 66,000 natives will be required in South Africa to carry out the railway schemes in three years. The Mines Association is supplying 50,000 men.

Sir Horace Plunkett suggests the exodus of tobacco in Ireland, to stem the exodus from her shores.

KING'S HORSE.

MANY CHANGES AT WINDSOR CASTLE STABLES.

Since the Death of Her Late Majesty, Queen Victoria—A New Staff in Attendance.

There have been many changes at Windsor Castle since the death of Queen Victoria, writes Correspondent W. E. Curtis. Nearly all the members of her household, her attendants and servants, have been retired and pensioned off, and Parliament made a grant of $100,000 a year to give them annuities. Even her horses have been turned out to grass and will never wear harness again. Sands, Queen Victoria's old coachman, who drove her for more than 40 years, and without whom she would not go out in a carriage, has been seen daily upon the streets of Windsor, and if you can warm him up a little he will relate anecdotes of the late Queen by the hour. He is retired on a pension of $750 and has been given a little cottage on the royal estates at Eton to live in. Sands never drove anybody but the Queen and was subject to her orders exclusively. For 40 years he has never mounted a box unless she was in the carriage, and it was probably true, as stated, that she never rode unless he held the reins. Although she was very stout, Queen Victoria was in the habit of riding horseback up to a few years before her death. Even when she was over 75 years of age she frequently mounted the saddle with the faithful Sands at her side, and rode slowly around the riding hall at Windsor, or among the paths upon the palace grounds. She considered it the best form of exercise.

The riding hall at Windsor is a building 150 by 75 feet in size, with a floor covered with tan bark. There all the horses belonging to the royal family are educated in a very severe school. Most of them are bred in the royal stables at Hampton, and are broken with the greatest care, and are taught to behave themselves under all circumstances so that nothing frightens them. They are accustomed to having military bands and fife playing around them, firecrackers and rockets shot off under their noses, and flags waved in their eyes, so that when they go out in processions, as they are required to do frequently, they will not be disturbed by the demonstrations.

All the horses in the stables are trained in a similar manner, and Queen Victoria took a great personal interest in that business. There is a little balcony inclosed with glass overhanging the riding hall, in which she used to sit for hours watching the grooms train her horses and the little princes and princesses learning to ride. Every member of the royal family is accustomed to the saddle, and the little children of the Prince of Wales, now only 4 or 5 years old, are required to take lessons from the riding master twice a day. They have a pair of pretty Shetland ponies, and drive them in little carts. Queen Victoria had a team of eight cream-colored ponies, beautiful little animals, almost as small as dogs which now belong to Queen Alexandra, who drives them tandem and is learning to drive them four-in-hand.

While he is at Windsor the King of England never drives after anything but grey horses, and does other members of the royal family, and none but cream-colored horses are used on state occasions. The King has one black and three bay saddle horses, however. The Queen's saddle horses are bay and chestnut, and Princess Victoria, who is an accomplished horsewoman, has a beautiful sorrel hunter named Conqueror, with a banged tail, which she repeatedly rides at hunts. Notwithstanding his weight, the King is an excellent equestrian.

Phil May and the Conjuror.
An amusing story is told of Phil May and an English conjurer at the fair at Stratford-on-Avon. Phil was in the crowd which had gathered to watch a very clever gentleman who was wrapping up sovereigns and half crowns in pieces of paper and selling them for two shillings. The "sharp" had a beautiful face—such a face as Phil May loved to draw. So he sketched him furiously. But the gentleman saw him and made a speech forthwith.

"If that there celebrated portrait painter with the tight breeches on will 'and up the piper the equally celebrated benefactor to 'oomany wot is given' away quids for coppers will reward 'im accordingly!' he shouted.

Phil, with a twinkle in his eye, handed up the drawing. The conjurer was delighted with the sketch and pinned it to the tailboard of his cart. With another preliminary speech he threw three sovereigns, three half sovereigns and several half crowns into a piece of paper, screwed it up and handed it to the artist. "You'll be president of the bloom'n' Ryal academy some day, young man," said he. "Here, catch 'em!"

"A bargain! a bargain!" said Phil, walking off with the packet of gold and silver.

He confessed afterward when he opened the packet and found two pennies and a halfpenny in it that it was the most entertaining commission he had ever been paid for.

Justifying His Fee.
Lord Alverston, who presided over the deliberations of the Alaska Boundary Commission, once charged a wealthy client $5,000 for a few pages of typewritten advice. The client ventured to suggest that this was rather a high price for half a day's work. "It's not half a day's work," said His Lordship. "It is part of my whole education—all my years at the Temple, all the years I have practiced, all the years of my experience. It is half a day out of the heart of my life."

What It Will Come To.
Girl of the Future—Will you have me, Algy, dearest? Honorable Algernon Moneybags—Weally, that is so sudden. I can't quite make up my mind. Girl of the Future—Surely, such a little thing as that cannot take long.—Penny Cuts.
