A YOUNG TOLSTOIAN.

He Was Content With His Office And Salary.

Vienna, Jan. 13.-A remarkable il lustration of the influence of Tolstoi's teaching has come to light in the case ments to reduce our large stock of Dr. Geza Baer, a graduate in philosophy of the University of Budapest. This young man, on leaving the uni versity obtained a state travelling scholarship, and devoted himself to the study of social questions, taking Tolstoi as his master. He became a 5 pieces, only $25, ordinary price vegetarian, adopted sandals in summer and winter alike, did his own house-work, and preached his master's Cabinets, only $5.50, ordinary doctrines to the Roumanian population of Bekes Csaba with such ardor that the authorities finally requested him to remove to another scene of ac-Fancy Odd Parlor Chairs, in tivity. Dr. Baer, after refusing a post as librarian to the Hungarian chamber, accepted a humble position as clerk in the state railways. SUNDAY STUDIES:

There was a rumor current in the The Baptism And Temptation Of

The International Sunday School lesson for January 17th, is found in Matthew in. 13-iv, 11.

The tidings that a great preacher had arisen, and that the voice of God was speaking again after the silence of three centuries, spread far and wide, rolled up the Jordan valley to the fishermen gathered around the lake, and then along the plain to the village of Nazareth: When the tidings were brought into the carpenter's shop where Jesus was at work, he knew the predestined hour for Him to leave His lowly toils had arrived, and that He must go forth to His brief minis try, ultimate rejection and death. The next morning, as we may supose, He said His last farewell to Mary, and alone made His way to the scene of John's baptism. Why was Christ baptized? He said, 'It becometh us to fulfil all righteousness." Notice the "us," suggesting God's need of man. It was as though He said, "I cannot do without you any more than you can do without Me, you and I together must do what is becoming." It is thus that the Master is ever speaking. He links Himself with our little lives in that wonderful "we, our, us"-words which are o constantly upon His lips. After the baptism came the temptation. The first temptation was founded upon physical need. The rupture of the vision in the Jordan valley lasted orty days and forty nights, making the Lord oblivious to the demand of hunger; but at the close of that period His body cried out, and then it fine condition for sleighing now, and was that the tempter came, as he al ways does in our moments of weak-John Wright has opened up his furniture store; he has a fine display.
