Queen's University authorities, have been notified that an action for damages, resulting out of the fatal fire in the Masson building at the corner of Notre Dame and St. Gabriel streets, Montreal, will be instituted against them as owners of the property. The fire occurred on Saturday afternoon, February 13th, and three persons lost their lives, two men and a young woman. The coroner's jury gave a verdict declaring that there were not sufficient fire escapes end that the three persons met death in that way. This verdict, however, seems to be incon sistent with the facts of the case. According to the Montreal Star, one of the men, Francis Clow, dropped dead after rushing from the building, and used in hs own extensive private the doctors pronounced his death due practise with the most startling to heart disease.
