BOUR SAYS ENTHUSIAST. Country More Than Has Been Ever Claimed For It-Agricultural Possibilities Unlimited-

Climate Best In World. Vancouver, B.C., April 5. (To the ditor): Judging from the numerous letters of inquiry which I have re ceived from largely diversified points, since I have been writing in your col umns, I think it quite safe to infer that a very large number of your readers are becoming interested in this western country. In writing these letters for publication in your paper, have been prompted only by a desire to make known to the thousands of Whig readers what a glorious country lies west of the Rockies. I know that many of the people who will be reached by these letters know very little about British Columbia and its wonderful possibilities, and seeing that they already have expressed a desire to know more about the country and the chances of piling up wealth, I will say that the country is all, if not very much more, than has ever been claimed for it. We western people have that one fault, if it may be called a fault; we are not windy enough to tell of the good things which we, as a people, possess. Yes, this province affords possibilities, many of which are as vet lying undeveloped, and which the world has never dreamed, the magnitude of which, it is hard to comprehend. I cannot undertake to much of vour valuable space. I will enumerate them, for it would take too just mention a few of our never-failing sources of wealth! Our gold mines, of which so much has been written, and yet one-half has not -e been told; our rich beds of coal, which seem to have no end. Our lumbering industries, which are vet in their in fancy, and from which, young though they are, the world is to-day being supplied. Our canneries of world-wide repute, for who has not tasted of the celebrated Fraser River salmon? Here in itself is a wealth of which we may justly feel proud-and it is unlimited. Nature promises to keep up the supply, and the demand is constantly increasing. It is a sight well worth seeing, to see those steamers discharging their cargo of fish at the canneries. ne who has not seen it, cannot form any idea of what fishing means on the Pacific waters. Sir .- I read with much interest the account to-day in the Herald of the "First Steamer Seen in English Waters." It may be interesting to some of your readers to be told that the Caledonia, the vessel which caused so much commotion at Spithead, was the thirteenth steamer built in Clyde, and yard of John Wood, Port Glasgow, in April, 1815. She was propelled by a pair of engines of thirty-six-horse pow-er collectively, manufactured by the Greenhead Foundry company, Glasgow. She was, of course, built of wood, and the following were her dimensions Eighty-six leet keel by fifteen for breadth of beam.
