THE INFLUENCE OF JUSTICE.

The Cooke-Blackley case, which is being tried in Montreal, is one of the most remarkable that has been tried in the Canadian courts. It is the great boast that Canadian justice has been swift and sure. In the United States, it is charged, the wealth of an offender or of his friends carries the issue along from court to court, and sometimes out of the courts. But in Canada the trespasser against the law and the right has had no reason to expect other than the punishment his offence deserved.

The defendant in the Montreal case is alleged to have written a letter in which he intimated that the representatives of the crown were subject to improper influences. In other words it was intimated that justice could be misdirected by the use of money. It is a serious charge and is being met in a serious way. Two witnesses have given damaging evidence. One, a Mr. Weiner, who had a business difficulty, testified that he was subject to so much irritation, by being dragged from court to court, that he submitted to the approaches of certain individuals (whom he does not name) and paid $2,500 for relief. As soon as he provided the funds the prosecution ceased and finally ceased. He declared positively that the $2,500 went to the prosecuting attorneys and not to the creditors. Corroborative evidence was given by Mr. Rosenthal.

Of course this evidence may be offset by other evidence, still to go in, but the case as it stands is a remarkable one and a great surprise to the people. The representatives of the crown in our courts will be interested in seeing that the course of justice is kept as free as possible from anything that would imply impurity or unfairness in its administration.

SABBATH OBSERVANCE BILL.

The Lord's Day Alliance has collided with public opinion in Quebec as it is expressed by La Presse, the most largely circulated and influential of French papers. La Presse has it that the Alliance is seeking to force distasteful ideas upon the people of Old Canada. It is a disturbing factor, says our contemporary, and is "sowing discord amongst the different races and religions." There is the feeling of interference in the affairs of Quebec, and the French refuse to let the English do the thinking and the leading in public opinion.

That the complaint is unreasonable has been made apparent by the reply of Rev. Mr. Rhear, secretary of the Alliance. He says the bill which the commons will refer to the highest court for its examination aims at the suspension of all work which is not necessary on Sundays. Exception has been made of the calls on physicians, the druggists, the sale of drugs, the conduct of religious services, the conveyance of mails, of travellers, of live stock and perishable goods on railroads, and boats, and the maintenance of fire and other services in connection with certain manufactures. The running of electric and street cars is made a matter of provincial option. Sunday excursions and diversions are, however, in any form and under any auspices, forbidden. Moreover the Alliance was willing that provision should be made for any of the customs which prevail in Quebec and in no other province. So that the people of Ontario are not, as La Presse alleges, trying to force their opinions upon the people of Quebec.

The Alliance was thought to be proceeding most carefully. It consulted not only the archbishops but the leading politicians. The dignitaries of the church approved of all that was proposed and suggested that other things than those referred to should be tabooed because they affected Sabbath observance. The bill had the attention of the premier and the minister of justice, and no two men are more in touch with the mind, manner, and desires of the people of Quebec. It seems a pity, then, that La Presse should be so severe in its condemnation of the measure, because it is widely read by the French of Quebec. The fact that it is opposed to the Sabbath observance bill is very significant. It revives the fear that it will be paid to frame a measure that will win the support of the majority in the commons.

PRODUCTIVE OF THE MAPLE.

The agricultural station of the state of Vermont, at Burlington, has made a very important contribution to nature's studies. It has, for some time (two or three years), been making experiments with maple trees, and it is announced that discovery has been made as to the manner in which these trees manufacture sugar. The inner part of them, it seems, is lifeless, or

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Residence Of John Dwyre, Bogart, Damaged.

Tread News. A violent electric storm passed over this section on Saturday about three o'clock, accompanied by a heavy down-pour of rain. The only damage done by the lightning was at the home of John Dwyre, Bogart. The electric fluid entered the house through the chimney on the north-west corner, followed the stove pipes through two bedrooms and then downstairs into the dining-room. In the second bedroom the pipes were badly shattered and also in the dining-room from the elbow to the stove. The stove door was blown open and the electric fluid made its exit at the southern part of the house. Some pictures and paper on the wall in the dining-room were scorched by the fluid. The electricity also attacked the house by following the cave trough and pipe into the cistern. Mrs. Dwyre, who was alone in the house at the time, was standing at the sink, when she was struck to see what appeared to be a ball of fire come up through the bottom of the sink. She was badly stunned and did not recover from the shock for several minutes. A tin pail sitting in the sink had ten holes, each about the size of a five-cent piece, punched through the bottom. The fluid followed the pipe into the cistern and tore a hole in the wall as large as a man's head. The wall was of stone and nearly two feet thick. The contents of the cistern were emptied into the cellar through the hole thus made in less than fifteen minutes. The damage is fully covered by insurance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Monument To Father Neville Erected By Gananogue Parish.

Gananogue, April 15.—(To the Editor) The item of news in the Whig of Monday last, concerning a monument to the late Father Neville is evidently wrong. You say "the Irish friends of Kingston diocese are erecting a monument in St. Mary's cemetery" in his memory. Permit me to say that one of the most beautiful monuments in St. Mary's cemetery, to-day, is a magnificent Celtic cross erected September last "in loving memory of Fr. Neville by the priest and people of Gananogue, Howe Island and Lansdowne."

The only subscription accepted from outside was a generous donation from an estimable family in Kingston, who were particular friends of the late priest. I am very sincerely yours, J. D. O'GORMAN, P.P.

New Park Amid Islands.

Ten of the Canadian islands in the St. Lawrence river will be converted into public parks this summer, similar to those on the American side, and on each will be erected a large pavilion for the convenience of picnic parties and other desires of making a landing. Each dock will be eighty feet long, affording a landing in eighty feet of water. The contract has been awarded by the department of marine affairs to John D. Warrick, Brockville, and he expects to have the work completed in four months.

Never Violate Nature With Drastic Pills.

Shameful, indeed, is the use of drastic cathartics as a family medicine. The drastic play great havoc with the sensitive organs and invariably cause grave troubles.

No pill is to be trusted as a family remedy it should be so active as to be always effective, but so mild that the youngest child might use it. It was a family pill Dr. Hamilton had in mind when he prepared his famous pills of Mandrake and Butternut. They are a happy combination of vegetable extracts that afford most satisfactory results.

Dr. Hamilton's pills act in such a mild and painless way that they simply establish natural action of the bowels and thus prevent constipation. Of course they are active—a good pill must be, but there is a wide difference between the drastic action of most pills and the natural stimulus given by Dr. Hamilton's pills, which never grip, cause pain, or necessitate a lay-up and loss of valuable time.

Dr. Hamilton's pills are the perfect pill. Try them and be delighted with their merit. They are just a little different and a little better than anything you have used before. They should be used by the aged, by very young and those whose delicate condition demand a laxative free from all reaction. Prompt to work, certain to cure; easy to take, one a dose, you can't find anything so good as Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills. Price 25c. per box, five boxes for $1. At all druggists. Insist on the genuine, and beware of substitutes.
