HUMBLER YET CHEERFUL.

The Mail accepts the decision of the people in the controller election with great complacency. "There is no mistaking the judgment," says our contemporary.

He had raised the plaintive cry that he was a conservative, a follower of the meek and lowly Whitney, and it had the hardihood to suppose that his connection with Sam. Thompson's work would be condoned.

The one lesson to the Mail as well as to Mr. Richardson is that the people will not swallow any old thing that the party may present to them.

There are some doses that the electors will refuse and two of the latest were offered by Mr. Richardson and his newspaper apologist.

SPIRIT OF THE JAPANESE.

The bravery of the Japanese is the theme of a world's comment. The common idea is that the subjects of the Mikado—an emperor of whom little is said, and yet one of sagacity, and penetration—are patriotic beyond measure and that they will, in war, conquer or die.

On the sea officers and men are spoiling for a fight. From the crews of the huge Mikasa and her sister battleships down to the men on such craft as the White Naped Crane and the Dragon's Lamp—torpedo destroyers—they are awaiting by every anchor that, if let loose, they will sink and capture each conspicuously named Russian warship in the Pacific.

When the turrets are jammed and the big guns dumb, when the screws are still and all defense is dead and done, the men chosen by lot before the beginning of action will from their station in the heart of the ship perform "the last full measure of devotion" in exploding the magazines, and the imperial standard will go deep down in a welter of blood and steam and smoke till, streaked with ash and streaked with oil, the lukewarm whirlpools close.

The Japanese gave an exhibition in support of this argument when the men on the transport refused to surrender, and fought with desperation until they were engulfed in the sea.

The Japanese will presently force the abandonment of the forts, and from them the vessels in the harbour can be shelled and destroyed. They may move out, to encounter the Japanese navy and succumb, by the overpowering odds, to the contingencies of battle.

EDITORIAL NOTES. If Chamberlain is too ill to do any more campaigning the preferential tariff agitation will speedily reach an end.

The Ottawa clergymen dislike the church parades, but they have not declined to preach to any body of people who go to hear them.

Some of the graduates of the Royal Military College were under fire in Somaliland. And they carried themselves with rare discretion and courage.

The Hamilton chief of the fire department intimates that many fires occur because the agents load the property with insurance. But the agents are not the incendiaries. That is not insinuated.

The place where a man reaches fame is not to be credited with his success. "Joe" Chamberlain gave Birmingham more notice than it ever gave to him. It is brain and talent that count every time.

WILL SOLDIERS STAY

In The Artillery When The Barracks Is So Far Away.

In connection with the building of the new artillery barracks at Lake Ontario Park, there will be a very important question for the military authorities to face. It is this: Will soldiers stay in the artillery when their barracks are situated so far from the centre of the city, i.e., three miles off.

One reason given some time ago by a sergeant for the batteries here being kept up in point of numbers so well as they are a time of peace was the fact that the men were right in the city, and did not have to pay regular car fares for travelling to and from. The fact of the barracks being where it is was money in pocket for them.

OPALS AND THE HINDOO.

Birmingham News. "I think Sir Walter Scott is largely responsible for the superstition as to opals," said the travelling salesman of jewelry. "He that as it may, it is still widespread. There is a large jewelry house in one of the big cities which will not handle opals. This means a loss of thousands of dollars annually. The founder of the house put the bar on opals, and the third generation is keeping it up."

FLY WHYS.

New York Globe. Why does a fly never drown itself in a glass of water? If there are sixteen men in a room, and only one has a bald pate, why does the fly single him out for walking on? If there are three pitchers of water on a table and one glass of whiskey, why must the fly commit suicide in the whiskey? Or, if there is a choice between milk and water, why does it spring into the milk?

LAKE TRAFFIC WILL CLOSE.

Determination Reached To Suspend Business Entirely. Chicago, May 3.—No one can tell when grain-laden vessels will be able to start out, and this uncertainty is making it impossible for shippers to do business. Grain is going forward by all-rail routes to the seaboard, and is now accumulating in Chicago elevators against the time when resumption and the captains' union come together.

Bank Win A Big Case.

Chicago, May 4.—The suit brought by the trustees of the George H. Phillips Co. to recover from the Bank of Montreal $200,000 which the members of the firm had deposited shortly before the collapse of the corn corner in 1902, came to an abrupt ending in the United States circuit court. Judge Seaman took the case from the jury and decided in favor of the bank. The court held that a bank was not in the same class as other creditors of a bankrupt.
