The writer was, a few days ago, travelling on the steam road in question and was fortunate enough to ov erhear a conversation between several gentlemen relative to the benefit the trolley road gives in this section alone. The tracks of the trolley were situated within a stone's throw of the steam road, and the passing of a cal under full headway and heavily load ed introduced the subject. One gentle towns. Great numbers of new dwellings were being erected new industries, attracted by the cheap and effective service these lines giving, were locating in nearly all of the towns, and the Mohawk Valley is to day enjoying more prosperity and growing faster than it had ever done before, and that it was almost entirely due to the operation of the interurban roads, and that in a short time the population and industries would so increase that the steam road would, through such increase get additional returns.

WERE PLEASED

WITH THE VICTORIA DAY DEMONSTRATION.

What The Belleville Papers Have To Say of The Time The 15th Regiment Had in Kingston.

The Belleville Intelligencer says the military review was a veritable "sight for sore eyes." All the troops did well and the boys of the old 15th were "right in it" with the best of them. Clean and sturdy they looked, and as they swung by the saluting point the thousands of spectators cheered the Belleville boys heartily and not a bit more than was deserved. The local regiment lived up to its motto, "Nulli Secundus," The opinion was freely expressed that in physique and dress the 15th outclassed the others. Kingston was en fete, and thronged with Canadian and United States visitors. The decorations were fine, and the good people of the Limestone City can surely pat themselves on the back over the way they celebrated Victoria Dav. 1904.

The Belleville lads were well treated and have nothing but words of praise for Kingston to-day. A special committee had been appointed to entertain the officers of the 15th, and to say they did their duty rovally is putting it mildly. As before remarked, it was a great day for the boys, and it will be some time before they forget it and the hospitable treatment accorded them in "Dear Old Kingston." The Belleville Ontario was proud of States visiting soldiers the paper says it was the first time many of them had seen a red coat and their interest in them was naturally increased. The writer was made acquainted with a party of three and learned that two of them were English, with a very marked accent at that, while the other was a Scotchman. They had taken out naturalization papers they said, but if the time ever came when they had to shoulder arms against a British contingent there would be some desertions. Of course this is not supposed to be known to the com mander, but he wouldn't believe anyway. There was an immense crowd in the city and all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. If they did not it was their own fault, There are quite a few old Belleville boys resident there and they went out of their way to make things pleasant for the visitors. The three Stevenson brothers, Watson Ge row, Frank McGinty and many more were quite conspicuous and entertain ed some of the boys right royally All highly appreciated the treatment received at the hands of the Kingstonians as well as the splendid man ner in which they were used by the courteous officials of the North King Hats off to Kingston, the 15th and Mr. Gildersleeve, of the North King. Marshall Brugman, returned to New York, after erecting machinery in the Whig office for a large firm, writes to compliment the paper upon its fine business. He adds: "I know of no city twice the size of Kingston, in the United States, that can boast of printing office so thoroughly well equipped mechanically and located commodious, well-arranged and handsome quarters. Although smaller your place compares favorably with the plants of the Ladies' Home Journal, Philadelphia, and Youth's Companion, Boston.
