THE PREACHERS TRULY RELATED TALES ABOUT THEM.

Sam Jones' Pocketful of Infidels—How Moody Proved That An Ass Can Talk—Beecher Stanzas.

Dr. Robert McIntyre, that eloquent Chicago clergyman who laid the brick in his Chicago church, and Sam Jones have taken diametrically opposite positions...

In his oration at the great Chautauque last summer, Dr. McIntyre described strawberries and cream so eloquently that the audience leaned forward in ecstasy...

Returning to the subject of the lecture with the exhorter, I said: "Sam, wasn't that a beautiful description of strawberries and cream?"

"Well, oh, yes," said Sam, slowly and solemnly, "that's all right for the folks at home, but not for me."

Sam Jones is not an elegant preacher, but he is positive and forcible. When I asked him what he thought of a high-license preacher, like Dr. Crosby, he hissed out: "A high-license preacher, won't be in school long before he'll have had his head and neck in a noose."

"And the infidels, Sam—do they trouble you?" "Infidels trouble me?" said Sam. "Why, I can put five hundred of 'em in my pocket, and I never know they are there unless I take out one for a toothpick!"

Moody, the great evangelist, often used wit with his theology. Once an agnostic went to Moody on the train and tried to open a theological wrangle with him.

"You don't believe the old Noah-and-the-flood story, Moody, do you?" he said, dropping a quid of tobacco behind the steam pipe.

"Yes," said Moody, "and brother I believe in the Johnstown flood, too, where eighteen thousand were eating and drinking and the flood came and took them off. Christ said that 'when He came again it would be as in the days of Noah.'"

"And the whale story too? Do you believe that, Moody?" "Now, my brother," said Moody, "there goes your 'corner grocery' the Bible doesn't say anything about a whale? It says: 'And God prepared a great fish, and if God could make the universe, if He could say: 'Let there be light, and there was light, couldn't He say: 'Let there be a big fish?' The world, brother, is a miracle, the violet is a miracle, man is a miracle, the fish is a miracle—and God made all of them."

"And the story of Balaam and that the ass spoke, do you believe that, too? Do you believe it, when scientists have examined the mouth of an ass and they say it is physically impossible for him to speak?"

"To this I answer," said Moody reverently: "If you will make an ass I will make him speak and—"

"Why," interrupted a clerical man, "this man has made himself an ass, and you have made him speak."

This incident and joke occurred when Beecher was writing the first volume of his "Life of Christ."

His publishers sent to him a big terrestrial globe, and the happy preacher was taking it up to his Peakskill farm. It was a beauty—four feet in diameter, with mountains and rivers in relief.

While Beecher was admiring his miniature world and showing Dr. Stores where Moses crossed the Dead Sea, a regular came into the car, and walking up to the globe exclaimed: "Why, Mr. Beecher, what a beautiful world so artistic! It's the real world, only smaller. Where did you get it? Who made it?"

"Who made it?" repeated Beecher, "who made it, Bob? Why, no one made it. It just happened!"

"Of course we do," said Ingersoll. "And when you say, 'Of course we do,' you pay us a great compliment; and when you and the worldly newspapers show great surprise that one of us has chanced to go astray, you pay us a still finer compliment. Don't you?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR. Where is Frontenac on the Good Roads' Question? Kingston, June 1.—(To the Editor): The following item in the Globe of 30th inst., hardly needs comment:

"Good Roads in Lanark—A. W. Campbell, deputy commissioner of public works, returned Saturday morning from Lanark county, where he went to advise the municipality concerning proposed road improvements."

But let me add. Lanark will profit by this investment. Frontenac prefers to literally stick in the mud; to let its progressive population move to more enterprising regions, the value of its farms to decrease, and the difficulty of obtaining farm labor to become so burdensome that elderly farmers sell out the first opportunity and move into cities or villages to end their days in retirement.

Consumption Begins With A Cough. The cough racks and tears the tender tissues of the throat. Inflammation supervenes and then serious bronchial or lung trouble is established.

Forbidden Fruit. A request was once made to the authorities of one of the colleges of the spacious room might be found for the lady students of Girton College to play lawn tennis.

Spare Moments. A curious custom has just been celebrated at Kilm, near Moscow. All the marriageable girls in the town lined up in the principal streets, decked out in their ample finery, many of them also having with them the stock of linen, household and personal, which forms part of their dowry.

Choosing The Girl. In Manchuria dog-raising is practiced upon pretty much the same scale as sheep-farming in Australia—proportionate to population, of course.

Imitate Nature and Avoid All Mistakes. If Sick Folks Would Select Natural Remedies They Would Get Well Far Quicker.

Experience is beginning to teach people that if nature's methods are followed they are sure to turn out all right.

Perhaps it is a headache or a little stomach trouble. Without thought of the consequences many people load their systems with harsh gripping pills composed of mercury and other injurious minerals.

For a pill of honest intent and honest performance, one that gets right to work to compare with Dr. Hamilton's which are guaranteed to permanently cure constipation, headache, biliousness and sick stomach.

The Bell The Angels Ring. These come to my mind a legend. A thing I had half forgot. And whether I read or dreamed it. Ah, well, it matters not. It said, in heaven at twilight. A great bell softly swines. And a man may listen and hearken's To the wonderful music that rings. If he puts from his heart's inner chamber Heartaches and weary longings. That throbs in the pulses of life, If it throbs from his soul all hatched, All thoughts of wicked things. He can hear in holy twilight. How the bell of the angels rings. I think there is in this angels ring. If we open our eyes to see. Somewhat of an inner meaning. My friend, for you and me. So, then, let us ponder a little. Let us look on our hearts and see. If the twilight bell of the angels Can ring for you and me.

Sunlight Soap contains no free or surplus alkali to eat the face off linoleums, destroy the fabric or injure the pattern. Sunlight Soap is made of pure vegetable oils and fats perfectly blended with pure soda.

Professor W. Hodgson Ellis, Official Analyst to the Dominion Government, after thoroughly analyzing the chemical properties of SUNLIGHT SOAP states that "it contains that high percentage of oil or fat necessary to a good laundry soap and no unsaponified fat, no free alkali nor loading mixture, no adulteration whatever."

It will wash clothes white, and is economical in the laundry. Sunlight Soap, when used according to directions, will do twice as much as common soap. It needs less labor and brings brighter wash days.
