LIVES IN CAVE VOWS NEVER AGAIN TO GAZE ON A WOMAN'S FACE.

Unfortunate Love Affair of Thirteen Years Ago—Only Two Humans Have Seen Him Since. London, June 7.—For thirteen years James Mason, a farmer, who formerly kept stock and worked his land as an other agriculturist, has cut himself off from all human intercourse.

Laodon, June 7.—For thirteen years James Mason, a farmer, who formerly kept stock and worked his land as an other agriculturist, has cut himself off from all human intercourse.

He left his home, disposed of a part of his land, and took up his abode on a portion of his holding which adjoins the old Epping forest.

Around this he dug a dyke twelve feet deep and twelve feet wide. He planted a thick hedge round—a hedge which has now attained an enormous height, and lined it with rows of barbed wire.

Here, completely screened and protected from all prying eyes, he has passed thirteen lonely years, and during this time only two human beings have ever caught a glimpse of the hermit.

One was the village postman, who, going his rounds in the early morning, for a moment saw a wild looking man, who, as he afterward said, "dropped to the ground as though he had been shot."

The other was a woodman, who, eight years ago, was greatly alarmed at seeing a wild, bearded face peering at him through a hole in the hedge.

No one in the locality has ever dared to penetrate the hedge, for the belief is firmly implanted in the villagers' minds that the "wild man," as he is called, carries arms, and would not scruple to use them if any attempt to invade his privacy were made.

It is generally believed that the hermit sleeps all day and works at night, for at late hours belated wayfarers have reported noises from behind the impenetrable hedge.

AN ENEMY'S TESTIMONY. To Good Work Done By Government of Ontario.

Toronto News. The people ordinarily overlook the necessities of provincial administration. They forget that the government has assumed large responsibilities that might have been shifted on to the shoulders of the municipalities.

The maintenance of agricultural reformatories requires a large sum each year. The grants to hospitals and charities involve an increased appropriation annually.

The products of the farm have increased, in some cases, one hundred per cent, by reason of the educational campaign conducted by the department.

These facts justify the expenditures of the past and the continuance of an aggressive campaign in the future. For that purpose money is essential. Education has been liberally supported.

For grants to schools, and for the administration of the department a large sum is annually required. Services such as have enumerated are progressive in their demands.

The plans of yesterday will not do for to-day, nor for to-morrow. Increasing expenditure is inevitable. Consequently the government is well within the limits of sound policy when the growing needs of the treasury are met by additional imposts upon the transportation companies, which have enjoyed such marked prosperity in this province during the past few years.

Swiss Don't Want to Vote. Berne, Switzerland, June 8.—The grand council of the federation having proposed a law which makes it compulsory for people to vote at political elections, which so many have neglected to do that only about half of the qualified voters present themselves at the balloting places, the people were called upon last Sunday to sanction the proposed law.
