The Sunday School Children's Annual Service.

The children of the Sunday school had "right of way" in the services yesterday morning, and they apparently appreciated this very much, as hey were present in goodly number and on their best behaviour, as we as in their best clothes. Most of the teachers were present. The floral decorations were very choice, and much redit is due those who made the chaste arrangements. The hymns were all chosen from the Sunday school hymn book, and the children, who occupied the centre pews, joined hearti-ly in the singing. The pastor chose as his text, "I am the Rose of Sharon and the Life of the Valley," Song llustrating many points of truth and pressing many lessons. Ottawa Free Press. The railway commission reserved its ecision in the request of the Grand Trunk railway company, to compel the City of Kingston and county of Frontenac to make a deposit before the company, starts building the subway at Montreal street, near Kingston Junction.

The application was for an order to amend orders of the railway committee of the privy council of December 19th, 1902, and March 4th and June 16th, 1903, and to direct the two corporations to deposit security for portion of the expense to be borne by them in connection with the work.

Many years ago, so far back in fact that the beginning is lost in tradition-because a figure in inythology, as it were—an agitation was begun in Kingston to have the Grand Trunk railway company build a subway beneath its tracks at the Montreal street crossing, a very dangerous place, where six or seven tracks are laid parallel, and which serve to divide the city from the county and township limits across an important highway. Year in and out, it was the custom at of that august body, the municipal council of the county of Frontenac, to appoint a special committee to deal with the "subway question." That was about a year ago.

The railway committee turned an old order-dated away back in 1887-in which the construction of the subway was authorized, the city to pay for the cost of the approach on the city side, the county likewise the county side, and the company to bear the cost of the work beneath its string of tracks.
