HOUSE OF INDUSTRY.

At the county council meeting last week appeal was made from the governors for continued aid towards the funds of the House of Industry. The councillors were asked to increase the grant. Incidentally enquiry was made as to the number of inmates which the house will accommodate, and it was then intimated that the county had under contemplation the care and maintenance of its own poor. The government has offered encouragement in this direction by promising substantial assistance towards the erection of suitable buildings. Frontenac has had overtures from Lennox and Addington with regard to a joint house of refuge, but Frontenac would, apparently, prefer to co-operate with the city, to enlarge the house of industry, and to make it sufficient for the requirements of the two municipalities. To this end a special committee has been appointed by the county, and it will report at the November session. Few people are aware that the local charity has become so much changed in its management and appearance. It has been improved greatly so far as the buildings are concerned, and it has now a splendid garden. It is really a home for old, infirm, and friendless people, and a credit to the city.

EDITORIAL VIEWS.

The recent tie-up on the upper lakes navigation has resulted in a loss of $5,965,000, in wages, $2,625,000, and in earnings, $3,240,000.

The conservatives have not fared badly at the hands of the government so far as the military service is concerned. And when the conservative government ruled it did not give positions to very many grays.

The story that the Montreal Life Reserve Association spent $100,000 in Canadian legislation, or in influencing public opinion in its favour, has been traced to Mr. Wells, its former president. He must now justify or withdraw it.

Mr. Ganey attended a church picnic in Bell's Corners and made a speech, in which he mixed religion and politics to his complete satisfaction. The church that is reduced to this means of raising money must be hard pressed.

Col. Hutton, in Australia, undertook to compel a newspaper to reveal who its military critic was. And not until then did he really know what it was to be in hot water. The one man in a community who will not be intimidated is the newspaper editor.

Russell Sage thinks the young men spend too much money in clothes. A serge suit for $7, and a linen suit for $3.50 or $4, is enough in summer. The straw hat for 50c. should last two summers. The underclothing should be got at bargain sales. So reasons Mr. Sage. He is not reflecting much wisdom in his talk. There are some positions which make neatness of dress becoming, and neatness is not to be had with the products of the rummage sale.

THE DUNDONALD INCIDENT.

Parliament has heard from the minister of agriculture and the commander of the forces and, as a result, the Hon. Mr. Fisher is relieved of the reflection that he "interfered" with the organization of the 13th Light Dragoons in the eastern townships. As a resident of the district, as a representative of it in parliament, he was more familiar than Lord Dundonald with it and its people, and he did not do any extraordinary thing when he counselled with the men who were concerned in organizing the regiment as to who should command it. Mr. Fisher's stand was not an unreasonable one, (1) that the field officers should be military competent, and (2) that they should not be all conservative politicians, and this latter was the complexion of the list when he first saw it. Indeed one family, that of Senator Baker, was given several of the choice positions, and there was no justification for it.

There were two remarkable features of the debate. The first was the government's resentment of Lord Dundonald's slight in committing his explanations to Col. Hughes. He had been asked if the current report of his Montreal speech were correct, and he had answered that it was, substantially, one or two words being added by way of correction, but without changing the charge he had made against the minister. He could have added the statement he made to Col. Hughes, and the fact that he did not, but merely sent a copy of it, exposed him to some rather sharp criticism.

The other feature was the distinct denial of the minister of agriculture that he had in any sense, and at any time, in connection with the regiment, acted from political motives. The best proof of this was in the fact that he had recommended several conservatives for positions. His right to do this was undoubted for he represented the district and he was acting for part of the time as minister of militia.

The premier's address was pointed enough. This, he said, was not the first time a good soldier had lacked discrimination. In organization of cavalry regiments the G.O.C. had to get his information from somebody, and "it was evident he fell into the hands of certain parties who represented rather a small family compact." The list he made was composed almost exclusively of conservatives, and in his opinion, the officers should represent both parties. "I give all credit to Lord Dundonald for good motives," declared Sir Wilfrid, "but we are not accustomed to being dragged in this country. Lord Dundonald, with all respect to him, must learn that this is responsible government, and when he sends a recommendation to council it is in the right—it is the right, I say, of the minister of agriculture, if he does not approve, to scratch off any name."

The debate was by no means acrimonious. The only indiscreet observations were those of Col. Hughes, who was humpious as usual and incidentally advertised himself a little. He wanted the premier to demand the resignation of Hon. Mr. Fisher—a request without backing from any other member of parliament—and he wanted it understood that he had been offered two important positions in the Canadian service, those of adjutant-general and deputy minister of militia. He declined them. The inference is that he will accept only the command of the militia—when it is placed at his disposal.

THE INDEPENDENT PRESS.

The opinions of the independent papers, upon the revised tariff, are most favorable to the government. The Telegram observes that the new tariff "may or may not be good for the country, but it is decidedly bad for the opposition." It purposes to guard Canada from the slaughter of American made goods, in a depressed market, and the country "will forgive the incidental injuries which its success may inflict upon conservative hopes of power."

The Ottawa Journal says that if tariff reformers have to make a choice between the opportunists (the liberals), and a conservative administration, which might be extremely protectionist, the low tariff men prefer the former. The Journal does not regard the tariff revision as at all clever.

The Toronto News, however, sees in the tariff changes "both business sanity and political sagacity." The country, it says, favourably regards Mr. Fielding's announcements, and "there is no doubt that the government's position with particular interests has been strengthened." Altogether, says the News, "the changes are designed to check the agitation for a Canadian tariff, and to give adequate but not excessive protection to Canadian industries."

There has been an attempt to depreciate the budget speech, but it has been a failure. By all fair-minded men it is praised or approved.

A LONG CHASE.

COUNTY CONSTABLE WENT 700 MILES FOR THIEF.

Began At Little York and Continued Persecutively Until Near Kingston—The Movements of Constable Pennock.

Toronto World.

The somewhat sensational capture of Charlie Wileza, the desperado and horse thief, which was effected at Portland, between forty and fifty miles east of Kingston, last Monday morning, was concluded in the sequel on Saturday at 1 o'clock, when Constable Elijah Pennock of Stouffville, recovered the first of the two stolen horses from a party of gypsies at Little York. Wileza is a noted character, and was a convict in Kingston about a year ago. It is not known where he belongs, but a letter connecting him with Hillsburg, across the boundary, is in the possession of Constable Pennock.

Wileza travels under many aliases, and has been a Methodist preacher, a cigar traveller and a patent medicine vendor, on occasion served. On May 24th, calling himself Alfred Sergeant, he hired a horse and rig, as a cigar traveller, from William Morrow, liverman, at Penetanguishene. Being at Stouffville, he traded the horse under the signature of Constable Paddy Welch, and left there on the 26th or 27th, with another horse and Morrow's buggy and harness. Saturday night, May 28th, Constable Pennock was put on the chase, and at 7 o'clock started in pursuit. After 700 miles' travel, and the following up of all sorts of clues, the difficulty of the chase being increased by the fact that the Wileza did not stay at hotels, but put up with farmers along the roads, and the main clue that Wileza carried a trunk at the back of the buggy, Pennock came up with Wileza at Portland, and after a struggle succeeded in arresting him and getting him handcuffed.

Wileza was accompanied by a girl with a career. She is Myrtle Clark of Kingston, who, although only eighteen, has three times attempted matrimony, and is now under trial at Kingston for bigamy. Myrtle is described as a very fine looking girl, apparently incapable of the indiscretions with which she is credited. The authorities deputed a second constable to take Wileza to Stouffville, and an arraignment at Stouffville, Wileza pleaded guilty and awaits trial.

The horse captured with Wileza belonged to another Pennock of Stouffville, and was returned by boat to Toronto, arriving on Thursday night last. When it arrived on Friday morning at Stouffville, Mr. Morrow of Penetanguishene was there to meet Constable Pennock, on whose skill he relied for the recovery of his own animal. His confidence was justified, for Pennock succeeded in tracing the horse to Little York, and about one o'clock Saturday afternoon found it, as stated. Constable Robert Burns was in at the death, and was suitably rewarded by Mr. Morrow.

THE MILLINERY OF SUMMER.

From The Delineator for July.

The large and the small hat are in equal favor for the small or medium-sized urban or sailor is perhaps in better taste, but the vogue of the wide, drooping shoulders in costumes and wraps will undoubtedly make the picture hat more popular than ever.

The blending of delicate pink and blue is a favorite of many hats, and in the association not only of small flowers but of ribbons as well is this discernible. Green also is a favored color, and for the hat to complete a green toilette or to be worn with a black or dark blue or a natural-colored pongee or Shantung gown, it is a most attractive shade. Green trimmings—plumes, aigrettes, breasts and ribbon velvet—provide this smart touch when the hat is black, blue, taupe or white. Brown and green is another popular combination.

Release May Come Wednesday.

London, June 13.—The Daily Mail's Tangier correspondent says that Raisuli has received the sultan's letter concerning his demands, and that unless the bandit formulates fresh conditions the release of Ion Perdicaris may be expected Wednesday next.

"I learned," says the correspondent, "that Raisuli is suffering from nervousness and insomnia, and is greatly depressed by the desertion of two of his important adherents."

"An unconfirmed report from Mogador states that a German has been kidnapped in that district."

"I Gained 15 Pounds"

And Was Cured of Nervous Exhaustion, Indigestion, and Heart Trouble by Ferrozone.

The Case of Mrs. J. Cross Proves Ferrozone A Marvellous Remedy For Ailing Women.

From Wakefield, Ont., comes news of the remarkable cure of Mrs. J. Cross. She suffered from nerves that had been shattered and almost ruined by poor health. Numbers of skillful physicians failed to alleviate her suffering. Almost every remedy was tried without avail. As a last resort Mrs. Cross turned to Ferrozone, as it is called from the first tablet taken. The following statement should be a guide and help to thousands of women in a similar condition who could quickly become strong by using Ferrozone.

Mrs. Cross says: "I was in poor health nearly all last winter. My appetite was variable, and I was weak and unfit for work. I suffered a great deal from nervous headache and palpitation of the heart. My digestion was always out of order. By spring I had lost flesh and color and had a bad cough. The doctors didn't help me, so I decided to try Ferrozone. It did me over so much good in one week, I quickly gained strength, looked and felt a lot better. When I had used six boxes of Ferrozone I weighed myself and found a gain of fifteen pounds. Ferrozone is worth its weight in gold to every weak woman. It cures quickly and saves big doctors' bills."

(Signed) MRS. J. CROSS.

Ferrozone is a strengthening medicine. It ironizes the blood, and puts new life and power into the system. One Ferrozone tablet after meals weakens up a tired appetite, helps digestion, braces the nerves, Ferrozone is just the proper tonic to take at this time of the year when the blood is sluggish and impoverished. It tones up the entire system, and keeps away spring sickness such as colds, nervous, disordered liver, and biliousness and headache.

Thousands owe renewed health and happy old age to Ferrozone. It is a scientific tonic for the blood, brain and nerves that is easy to take, sure to benefit, and not expensive. Price 50c. per box.

WAS NO INQUEST.

Over the Killing Of a Civil Engineer.

Coroner Mundell returned from Sharbot Lake Saturday afternoon, where he held an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of William Tennant, the civil engineer, who was killed by engine No. 965, C.P.R., near Sharbot Lake. The testimony of William Ritchie, engineer on engine No. 965, Fireman Alexander Bruce and Conductor Robert Barlow was taken by the coroner. The engineer and fireman testified that the engine had whistled repeatedly and the three men on the car apparently paid no heed to the first two whistles, but on the third warning whistle the three men brought the car to a stop, jumped off and then attempted to lift the car off the track. Mr. Tennant stepped on the track behind the hand car and attempted to lift it off the rails. Immediately after this the engine collided with the hand car, resulting in the death of Mr. Tennant.

Percy Butterfield, assistant surveyor with Mr. Tennant, who had his left collar bone and right forearm broken in the collision, gave testimony along similar lines to that given by the other witnesses. He and L. Ferguson, the other occupant of the hand car, both thought that if they had jumped and left the hand car to its fate, they would have escaped safely. They attempted to remove the hand car to prevent an accident to the freight train.

G. M. Macdonnell, of this city, received instructions to act for the C.P.R. in the matter, but on hearing the evidence given, Coroner Mundell decided that an inquest was not necessary as apparently no person was to blame for the unfortunate accident.

Deceased was the only son of Mrs. Agnes Tennant, of 76 Spadina avenue, Toronto. A sister, Miss Isabella Tennant, lives at the same address. He was about twenty-three years of age and unmarried.

The first package of Hem-Roid (the infallible pile cure) that was put out went to a small town in the state of Nebraska.

It made the cure of a case of piles that was considered hopeless.

The news spread and although this was only two years ago the demand prompted Dr. J. S. Leonard, of Lincoln, Neb., the discoverer, to prepare it for general use. Now it is sent to all parts of the world.

It will cure any case of piles. There is a month's treatment in each box. So'd for $1, with absolute guarantee.

It is for sale by W. H. Medley.

Squire Norris Palmer, J.P., died near Westport last month, of a long illness. A WARNING.

Because Testimonial Fakirs Are At Work.

Edmanson, Bates & Co., proprietors of Dr. Chase's family medicines, warn the public against having any-thing to do with fakirs, as they positively refuse to accept any testimonials except directly from persons who have actually used their medicines. This warning is necessary on account of disclosures in Toronto and other cities. Though the police authorities made an effort to put a stop to this fraud, it is still going on, and thoughtless persons are being induced by the offer of a dozen free photographs to sign fraudulent statements about medicines almost, if not entirely unknown to them. Every testimonial and every photograph used in reference to Dr. Chase's remedies is backed by a $500 guarantee that it is genuine.

The original signed letters of persons recommending Dr. Chase's medicines are kept on file at the offices of Edmanson, Bates & Co., and will be cheerfully shown to anyone. As a fact, so many people are ready to corroborate a favorite of Dr. Chase's medicines that it is unnecessary to employ persons to solicit testimonials. Day by day letters are pouring in direct from persons who have been freed from sickness, disease and suffering, and who, as a result, write with a heart full of gratitude for the benefits obtained from these great medicines.
