BETTER THE TORTOISE THAN THE HARE.

Eastern Canada's Slow But Sure Run-Great Time on Dominion

Vancouver, June 8 .- (To the Editto-day are we told that "there is time to keep silence and a time speak," and again that "silence golden." We believe this, and perhaps explains our silence for little time past, and also our cause for rising to speak at this time. With a desire not to appear as a transformed optimist, or an optimist blowing a pessimist's horn, it might not be out of place for me to state that since Whig certain changes have taken place here which, though they by no means cast a gloomy aspect, to some extent change the tenor of this letter. One of the peculiar characteristics of British Columbia-and I might add

Washington and Oregon, as compared with Eastern Canada and the middle and eastern states, is their hare and tortoise way of doing things. East of the Rockies it has been the practice to keep steadily plodding. Well Screened and Well Screened and that the tortoise is surely getting there, and to-day the development of the country is marvellous. West the mountains, however, it is somewhat different, and here our pace set by the hare. When Ecclesiastes tells us that "To everything there a season," he evidently is not speak ing of our western province. Here the seasons are not marked, especial ly on the coast, and there does seem to be any particular time any particular thing, and the people, recognizing this fact, seem to have adopted the tactics of the hare, and consequently business in the province, and more particularly in the city goes by leaps and bounds for a time, and there is such evidence of prosper ity on every hand that people begin to wonder what they are going to do MEN AND WOMEN, with their money if this thing continues. Just then the hare stops for a short rest, and by the time that he is ready to go again most of this wealth which was a short time causing anxiety has passed into other hands, and when the hare wakens up

> As an illustration of the above, pick up a local paper and perhaps we will notice that the Loggers' Association has decided to close all their camps, assigning as a cause, over-production, and consequently thousands of men are thrown out of employment. As a natural result of this over-production the price has dropped, and now it is the time for the hare at the mills to awaken from his slumbers and they all lay in a supply of logs far in excess of their needs. Now we have got the logs and must get them into the market, so here it goes-all these big mills are started nights as well days. Pretty soon the loggers start up their operations again, and here we have in this industry a scene of activity unparalleled.
