lustery, But Little Rain-Prophe-Does Not Think They Will Do Great Damage.

Rev. Irl R. Hicks, the St. Louis weather prognosticator, has issued his bulletin of forecasts for the approaching month, from which the fol-lowing extracts are taken: This month begins in the last stage of a storm period central on June the 29th. Storms and perturbations of this period will be well on their way toward the Atlantic by the 1st and 2nd, with fair and cooler weather following from the west. A reactionary storm period is cen-tred from the 4th to the 6th. As the moon is on the celestial equator on the 4th, we may reasonably calculate on a decided rise in temperature, end-ing in thunder and rain storms during these reactionary days.

A Mars enquinoctial period covers almost the entire month of July, being central on the 28th and running into August. The Mars disturbance weather prevailing at its beginning. This being the case, we may know, disturbance, receiving the perturbing with a degree of certainty, the genewith a degree of certainty, the general character and tendency of the weather through July and August by the character of the weather prevail- rains should have fallen at previous ing during the two first storm periods in July.
