UNUSUAL NORTH OF IRE-LAND WEDDING.

Friends Deserted The Groom, Who Was Compelled To Resort To a Departmental Store For Man To Act As Best Man.

London, July 21 .- A wedding the ike of which has never been depicted by the most imaginative of novelists took place a few days ago in a little market town near the north-east boundary of county Tyrone, Ireland. It was a wedding in which a hale is now on her way to St. Louis, where of romance surrounded not only the bride and bridegroom, but the "best man" as well. The bridegroom was the most popular and wealthiest man in the district; not in his first youth, eyes. Her head is covered with a perhaps, but a fine, straight backed, broad shouldered man for all that. The bride was a real daughter of Erin, with a pretty, sunny face, than detracts from it. pair of large, brown, roguish eyes and a wealth of wavy chestnut bair, She was much, younger than the able to accompany them on this trip. bridegroom, and her face was Both of the girls are talented musionly fortune

These latter circumstances led to an estrangement between the bridegroom and his relatives. Even his unromantic male friends deserted him, and not one of them would discharge the duties of "best man." But difficulties are merely quarry for Cupid to aim at and bring down. The happy day arrived, and so did the "best man. The wedding was the talk of the country for miles around, and by dawn folk began to flock into the little town on foot and in farmers' carts. Long before the decorations were finished and the church bells I gan to clash out, the narrow, oldfashioned streets were packed with people-so thronged, indeed, that body of the bridegroom's retainers had to force a way through for the private jaunting car containing the "best man," who, breathless and travel-weary had arrived just in time at the railway station. Here he was met secretly by the bridegroom. It was a strange meet-"Are you my best man?" enquired the bridegroom when that functionary alighted from the train. The visitor presented certain credentials which satisfied him on that point. In a little town where everybody, knows everybody else, the crowded congregation at the church-not the church at which the bridegroom had been a worshipper since boyhood, but the church attended by the bride were naturally surprised that the "best man" was a stranger to them. No one could recognize that smart, immaculately dressed individual with the tawny moustache curl ed upwards a la Kaiser Wilhelm. Even in a few of the lines is set down as incident is reported to have occurred at Kalisch, in Russia Poland. As a remonstrance against bar treatment a hunger strike had been decided upon by political prisoners in the local prisons. The governor thereupon made certain concessions, which however, he afterward repented of and partially withdrew. The prisoners protested, the gover nor had one of them flogged, and tumult ensued. Two squadrons of soldiers were immediately sent for, and with their seventeen officers were well-primed with spirits. -When the men were mad with drink the governor set them loose among the refractory political prisoners. On the departure of the soldiers their victims were found lving on the ground with broken ribs, legs and arms; many were run through with beaten with knouts, and many were so

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten

Dollars Earned. The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent. of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living exuenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested like buying seeds for his garden, will save dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic. Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars.
