ON THE RIDEAU. A TRIP LITTLE TAKEN BY CANADIANS.

One of the most beautiful that can be imagined—United States Tourists Know The Rideau's Beauty And Fishing Well.

Long ago in 1822 when Arthur Wellesley, Duke of Wellington, the great Irishman who had made England's name a terror in Europe, conceived the idea of an all-Canada water way.

When the boat is on the water, the idea of an all-Canada water way, there was little thought in his mind of what that waterway would become.

Among the prominent men on the excursion were: Rev. Father M. R. Burns, Waterville; Rev. Father Ryan, Carleton Place; Rev. Father Vigor, Villanova, Pa.; J. E. Haber, Lowville, a manufacturer, and leading citizen of that place; E. M. Morley, Croghan, N.Y., one of the best known men of that county.

KNIGHTS AT THE POINT.

There Was Little To Amuse The Crowd.

The annual excursion of the Knights of Columbus of Lowville, Carleton Place and Waterville, N.Y., was run yesterday, from those points by way of N.Y.C. and H.R.R., and from Clayton to Brophy's Point and Kingston, by the steamer New York.

The steamer with the visitors on board arrived at Brophy's Point on the up trip at eleven o'clock, and a great many of the visitors disembarked there for dinner, which they had, for the most part, brought with them in baskets. Some of the excursionists remained on the boat and were brought to the city where they spent the afternoon.

Among the prominent men on the excursion were: Rev. Father M. R. Burns, Waterville; Rev. Father Ryan, Carleton Place; Rev. Father Vigor, Villanova, Pa.; J. E. Haber, Lowville, a manufacturer, and leading citizen of that place.

A RIFLE RANGE SORELY NEEDED IN KINGSTON AT PRESENT.

This City Has No Representatives At The Big Rifle Meet—Possibility Of There Being A Range Next Year.

That an old military town like Kingston should go so long without a proper rifle range seems strange, and it should not be without any such range. Rifle men are again discussing the matter, and hoping that by next year the militia department will have purchased the necessary land.

The Provincial Rifle Association meet is now in progress in Toronto, and its members are again discussing the matter, and hoping that by next year the militia department will have purchased the necessary land.
