Lord Kelvin's Discovery. Some interesting tales are told of Lord Kelvin's discoveries, and how the ideas of them have come to quick mind. For instance, this is said to have been the way in which he found the mirror galvanometer. He was puzzling over the difficulty of perfecting the ordinary telegraphic apparatus used on overhead wires, which was not suited for the varying cur-rent passing along cables. The lag-ging of the electric currents had the effect of making them run together in to one bottom current, with surface ripples, which correspond to the separate signals of the message. The prodelicate fluctuations. One day Lord Kelvin's eyeglass fell off and swung in front of the magnet, reflecting its movements, and instantly the idea of the mirror suggested itself.
