Their very bravery, their physical strength, their indomitable energy, their strength, their indomitable energy, their rection, nearly all these salvos, fired the line, and eye-witnesses agree that it exceeded in intensity, accuracy, and execution any they had ever seen, as officers of experience in former wars. For three months the Japs have virtually had the game in their own hands. While all their movements bear the stamp of a pre-arranged general plan of campaign, methodically carried out, there have been occasions where they failed to rise to a great opportunity.
