Say, Mister,

What's the Best Headache Cure? Second Man: Well most people now are using

Zutoo

The New York Times and several magazines have been pitching into the drug cures and people are rather quivering.

First Man: I remember myself seeing a despatch in the city papers stating that a woman had died of heart failure after taking an overdose of one of them, but don't let this apply as well to Zutoo?

Second Man: Not a bit! Zutoo is a vegetable remedy that the lungs have used for hundreds of years. It has never been known to hurt anybody yet, not even the little kids.

First Man: Does it do the business? Second Man: Well, I guess. Your head'll be as clear as a whistle in less than 20 minutes after taking it.

First Man: At all medicine dealers. Second Man: Well, I guess. Your head'll be as clear as a whistle in less than 20 minutes after taking it.

DEBAUCHING STUDENTS

Montreal, Oct. 18.—The Witness, whose political independence is seldom impugned, publishes the following yesterday:

The conservative campaign fund to-day than it was before the big procession on Saturday night, which is accounted for when the fact is known that at least twelve students, and doubtless many more who took part, were offered $1.50 each to do so, the contract calling not only for their presence, but also the unstinted use of their lungs and vocal organs in wild, hilarious acclamations of the chief.

Some of the boys, with cooler heads and sounder judgment, were highly indignant at this barefaced attempt to corrupt them, and did not hesitate to say so in language more forcible than elegant.

Others, however there were over a thousand in the procession, like all students, ever ready for a little excitement with a latent prospect of a shindy at the wind-up, fell into the trap and accepted the lure, in nine cases out of ten with never a thought of the heinous nature of the whole thing.

Every one rode in cabs, as much ground had to be covered, and it never would have done for the boys to drop out before all the divisions had been covered and an equal amount of noisy enthusiasm had been distributed among the electors without fear or favor.

But the organizers of the party demonstration did not stop there. During the four hours the procession paraded the streets from the extreme east to St. Henri and back again, frequent stops were made, when a rush would be made for the nearest saloon, where liquor ad lib was served out to all who would imbibe.
