CANADIAN'S SHOULD HAVE HIGH NATIONAL IDEALS

Should Be Placed Before The Narrow Aims Of Self-Interest-Personal Exploitation.

The address of Mr. Byron E. Walker of Toronto, to the Canada Club of Ottawa the other day upon the duties of Canadians to Canada was an inspiration to the two hundred members, chiefly stalwart young men, sons of the soil, to place high national ideals before the narrow and selfish aims of self-interest. Mr. Walker rejoiced at the rapid growth in recent years of the feeling of soli darity among the Canadian people One of the greatest evils Canada has had to contend with was lack of confidence. Mr. Walker drew a gratifying picture of the natural resources which Canadians have inherited, and which are calculated to make Canada the proudest nation in

The political conditions of the present day and of the future under a democracy would be just what the average intelligence and the average morality of the country were, and it would be time enough to expect a higher standard of public morality when the average of the individual citizen has been elevated. No sincere, sober, thoughtful citizen of the United States is really satisfied with what the democracy has done for his nation. Experience has proved that per se there is no virtue in democracy itself. We do not want Government in Canada to drift into a condition like that in the United States. If we wish to prevent that, what we have to do is to increase so far as we can those elements in Canadian life that are different to the elements which are to be found ernment of the country might become a huge oligarchy, as the Government of the United States sometimes

ROYAL RIGHTS.

THE QUEEN CANNOT DO AS SHE LIKES.

Could Contract Debts In Her Husband's Name, But His Majesty Is Not Responsible.

Great interest was aroused recently by the circumstance that in grave national crisis, when the King was for the moment inaccessible, the ministers of state were summoned to the presence of Queen Alexandra for consultation, with, as was generally Lord Radstock has just opened a understood, most satisfactory rehostel for working girls in the Clap- sults. This was quite a new departure for the present reign, says London Tit-Bits.

Of course, Queen Victoria played be self-supporting. It is, indeed, but this sovereign part constantly, but the beginning of a great scheme for her late Majesty was the head of the the housing of the working girls of state and it was the proper course London, for Lord Radstock intends for her to pursue. Except when conto build shortly a many-storeyed sidered as part of the King and Sovcreign, Queen Alexandra is not the head of the state. She enjoys a from that of the King it also differs from that of any other lady, marrink, on which 5,000 people would ried or single, or of any rank, and in some material ways it is also different from that of previous queen con-

The principle of comfortable, and hot water and the law is that the King is entirely different from all other married men, The inclusive charge is 3s. 6d, per and that his time is too fully taken up with the affairs of state for him Lord Radstock has solved the to have any left to devote to doproblem of how to live on 1s. a mestic matters, and that therefore day. For an extra private business matters must deshilling making Ss. a week—the ma-tron will undertake to feed her that no responsibility whatever in respect to them rests upon the King.

Therefore, if such a thing could be restaurant bar, which is open from imagined as the Queen contracting debts in her husband's name, the King would not be responsible for Lord Radstock allows his girl them, as any other husband would to settle all such accounts.

If the King contracted debts, the law which says that His Majesty can do no wrong would prevent anybody from suing him for recovery of the amount due; but no such protection is granted to the Queen, who could be proceeded against in the ordinary manner. She has her own Attorney-General and Solicitor-General to re present her in all legal matters, though, of course, except for ordinary private purposes, their services are scarcely ever needed.

Whilst the Constitution is glad to recognize the Queen as part of the monarchy, it cannot lose sight of the fact that after all her position is imited to that of Queen Consort, and therefore she is in a very large sense one of His Majesty's subjects, and in certain cases, which there is no human possibility of occurring in these times, she would be treated as a subject. But in other respects she is accorded privileges by the realm which are given to no other person except the King.

Particularly there is the question of high treason. It is generally understood that the King is the only person whom it is high treason to plot against; but it would be high treason also to plot against Queen Alexandra, All Consorts of British monarchs have not enjoyed this privilege. When Philip of Spain married Queen Mary it was denied to him; though some time after the marriage a special Act of Parliament was passed in which he was granted the The signature "Edward Rex" is at-

It would no longer be high treason to plot against her, and it is held by at least one high authority that she could not marry again if she wished to do so without the special license and permission of the King's succes-

All this, as has been made clear, is the very strict and essential legal view which the Constitution, having regard to difficulties which have occurred in the past, finds it necessary to take in theory of the position of the Queen; but in the hearts of the people, as we all know, she exercises complete and supreme authority as the first lady, and one upon whom there can be no limitations whilst England is governed as it is.

Fond Memories,

A young Oxford student one day received an unexpected visit from his pretty sister and was very indignant that she came without a chaperon. "Look here," said the young man, "I will not have any of the fe lows see you in my rooms, so if any one knocks at the door you just get behind that screen. In a few minutes a knock was heard, and the girl ran behind the screen as her brother went to the door. An old gentleman stood on the threshold, who, after profusely apologizing for his intrusion, said: 'I am just home from Australia, and many years ago I occupied these rooms. Would you allow me, sir, to look at them once again?" "Certain ly." exclaimed the student, "Come in." "Ah!" exclaimed the old man.

"Everything is just the same, Same old table, same old fireplace, same old screen.'s Then, catching sight of the girl: "By Jove! Same dodge," "Sir!" exclaimed the student, "That is my sister," "Gad sir," was the rejoinder, "same old lie!"-London Tatler.
