Dr. Third made the following statement: The "shack" was crected and duraished through the kindness of a few citizens in September, 1903, and opened for the reception of patients. October 1st of the same year, Strange to say there was considerable opposition to its erection. It would have been however, stranger still, had there bren none. The poor consumptive was to be shunned as a Tracadie leper or Indian pariah. A sort of muffled crywent up, "You are bringing consumptives to the city. We don't want them. They will spread infection through the whole city." Little did these high-minded chivalrous citizens think as they mused in their fancied security that our own dear city has had for some years a higher death rate from tuberculosis than any other city.
