THE WEDNESDAY WHIG, 13 pages, one each on Monday and Tuesday...

THE DAILY WHIG. "Offer per Ordium Dicitur." HOW MR. SIFTON SPEAKS.

The facts of the Sifton resignation have been made public, and they appear to be as the Whig expected.

It seems, by Mr. Sifton's speech, that after last session of parliament, it was decided to divide the North-West territories into provinces and give them local government.

The bill went further than Mr. Sifton expected, and when he returned to Ottawa he exchanged views upon it with the premier.

"So that the premier did that, at any rate, consider that he was seriously out of accord with his colleague, and certainly there was nothing in his language or action that could incite the malicious thought, which Mr. Fisher applied, when he intimated that it was the premier's fault that the education bill was not passed."

BOWELL AND THE PAST. Hon. Mr. Foster is a hunching, a complete and confirmed huncher.

TRIBUTE TO SIR WILFRID. In British Parliament He Would Lead It.

Edward Parritt, writing in the Christian World, a London, Eng., paper, says that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, were in the British parliament, he would be the next British premier.

Intellectual and mental calibre all combine to make him one of the most distinguished of temporary British parliamentarians.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, has a figure as commanding as that of Gladstone. His voice, an especially his use of the English language, which, it should be remembered, is not the language of his childhood are bewitching.

I never came to Ottawa and spend a week in the press gallery here, without feeling that he were on the liberal benches at Westminster.
