ON MATTERS OF LOCAL IN-TEREST.

The Separate School Question-Buying Goods at Home-Convincing People That Tuberculosis Can be Cured. Two Roman Catholies and two Iro-

"Do you not think," he was asked "that one common school would the best thing in Canada?" "No, I do not think so," he olied. "You say that a national school will tend to greater unity in both church and state, but I cannot see that. With one school there would be the ever-present quarrelling ov religious questions. Do you not think that separate schools have been a good thing in lessening that friction? Has Ontario not benefited by separ ate schools as they now are with their certificated teachers? Are they not turning out very good scholars?"
His Protestant friends admitted

It is said that the people of King town wonder at its slow progress, forgetting that they are greatly to to and Montreal instead of their own home. What would it mean if all the people of this city bought at home?
Fifty thousand dollars more circula ted here would make a big difference to the merchants. It would age them and others to further build up Kingston. I notice that the mer chants are criticized for not purchaing more from local wholesalers. This is an important thing. If merchants can buy as cheaply here as outside, they should do it.

I remember an English master the old Collegiate Institute, or grammar school, advising us never to abbreviate words in writing compositions or letters, and also to give un ways been thankful to him for that advice. In a newspaper office where no abbreviations are allowed, I imcontinually spelling out each word.

Teachers in the schools to-day should still have a good chance to retain the Flanagan cup, which they won last year.

Teachers in the schools to-day should urge upon the pupils the advisability of writing every word accurately. A good writer of English will not abpreviate.
