Reu thness In The Sports. Judge Teetzel, who conducted the rial of young Loney at Cornwall, harged with killing another player a a game of hockey, has suggested, a an address to the grand jury in Ottawa, a course which may result in one practical good. His idea is hat a committee of the government hould confer with a committee dayers in order that rough play in sport, lacrosse and hockey especially, may be completely suppressed The judge, who has through th tial been getting a great deal formation, declares that the not sufficient. The player who is given to roughness and brutality should be not be considered eligible for manly and honourable sport.

What the Ottawa grand jury will do the Cornwall grand jury and lay the to the public tastes. For informs read about hockey and baseball when out against the hungry walves of its owe party." The protest thus preis a marvellous way. sented and by a friendly organ, is not having its effect. The provincial spirit of speculation which attends the secretary holds that license inspectors games. Legitimate sports may be be re appointed yearly and that there made illegitimate, by some people, by few the betting and the wagering. These become a nuisance and an offence. The press, however, is not account able therefor, or for any other misuse of the privileges of the day.

. The unfortunate death of the Maxville young man, as the result Loney's misdirected blow, has caused such a revulsion of feeling against rough play that it may be banished from the field and the rink. To that end something should be done by makers of the law and by the framers of athletic regulations. If this is not the result the trial at Cornwall and the moralizing upon its verdict will have taken place in vain.

Fifty years ago Mr. Howard led his blushing bride to the altar of St. James' church. To-day none the less gallant he led her to dinner, where a goodly number of their relatives and friends about thirty in all, partook of their hospitality, R. A. Fowler, in proposing the health of Mr. and Mrs. Howard, made a very bright little speech in which he pointed out the difference between the present celebration and the one fifty years ago. In the first one the bridal couple were looking forward with every hope and ambition, and now they were looking back on a life that had made them respected and loved by all present. A number of beautiful presents were received and with each one the love and respect of the giver. Mr. and Mrs. Howard have the best
