"ON HIS UPPERS."

OW did that slang phrase originate? "Weary Willie" the tramp, usually wears worn-out shoes. But all worn-out shoes have the "uppers" (or portion above the sole), left in reasonably good condition. This is why "Weary Willie" is said to be "on his uppers."

It is the soles of shoes that wear out too soon, and a pair of "uppers" re-soled always look "second-hand."

Take a long time to discover a process that would wear as long as the uppers.

Had to be tough as rawhide, but flexible, light, and practically water-tight.

"Quick-Oak" Sole leather is the nearest thing to it that has ever happened and it wears like hatred.

Put a piece of this "Quick-Oak" Sole leather in a pail of water over night and it will hardly be wet through in the morning.

Put almost any other sole leather in the same vessel and one hour will completely saturate it. Consider the difference to your feet in damp weather, and to your purse all the time.

"Quick-Oak" Sole leather can be had only in "The Slater Shoe," because The Slater Shoe Company control the supply of that brand in Canada.

Every genuine "Slater Shoe" now has a "Quick-Oak" Sole, and the slate-frame trade-mark is stamped with the price on the lining inside, $3.50, $5.00.

(3) If a settler was entitled to and has obtained entry for a second homestead the requirements of this act as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by residence upon the first homestead if the second homestead is in the vicinity of the first homestead.

END OF TAIL WAS STICKING OUT OF ITS MOUTH.

Dr. Cook's Remarkable Find in a Texas Pond—First Instance Ever Known of the Character—Thinks Snake Was Foot and a Half Long.

Paris, Texas, May 11.—Dr. E. Cook, living at Garrett's Bluff, carried his little daughters to a pond in his neighbor's pasture to afford them an afternoon of enjoyment fishing. Being fond of frogs' legs, the doctor took his target rifle along, thinking he might kill a few bullfrogs.

He saw a big bullfrog swimming a short distance away and shot it. After cutting the hind legs off he threw the frog aside and thought no more of it until one of the little girls uttered an exclamation and called his attention to a lizard's tail sticking out of the frog's mouth. Dr. Cook had noticed that the frog's body was very bulky and when his little daughter called his attention to it, he saw the tail of something sticking out, as she had said.

He caught hold of the tail and pulled a little black snake a foot and a half long from the frog's stomach. The snake was headed to the right, well known that frogs are the chief article of a snake's diet, but this is the first instance of a frog turning the tables and eating a snake.

DUAL PURPOSE COW.

A Profitable Animal for Farmers to Raise.

A great deal has been said pro and con concerning the dual purpose cow. The following from M. S. Babcock, of Nortonville, Kansas, under the title of "What My Experience Tells Me" states not merely the estimation in which the dual purpose cow is held but makes a valuable suggestion as to how she is to be procured on the farm where she is so much needed.

"For the farmer who does not intend to make dairying the first and foremost consideration in his business, the dual purpose cow is preferable, for while she may not equal the special purpose cow in production, nevertheless she requires the same amount of care and skill in handling, nor the same quality of feed, as a rule.

"The dual purpose cow can usually be disposed of to better advantage when no longer useful in the dairy, which must be taken into the reckoning, for it has been my experience that out of every half dozen heifer calves born and more than one will be found doing profitably work in the dairy at six years of age, and this without regard to breed. While the special purpose breeds can be depended upon to produce a greater per cent. of profitable milkers, it is also true that a larger per cent. of these are young, and also that a larger per cent. of them, after surviving the trials of calthood, succumb to various diseases, such as abortion, milk fever, garget, etc.

"The steer calf from the dual purpose cow can usually be disposed of either as a calf, a feeder, or as finished beef at a profit, while the steer calf from the special purpose cow comes exceedingly close to a dead loss. How are we to get the dual purpose cow? Raise her. Go to some reliable breeder of dual purpose cattle who is breeding along dairy lines and buy a bull from a family of cows that comes nearest to your ideal of a perfect cow; use him on your herd as long as you can do so profitably; then procure another of the same breed not closely allied, and continue along this line, saving your best heifer calves all the time, and in a very few years you will have a uniform and profitable herd of cows. Be particular in your selection of a bull to get me from a family of cows with good shaped udders, good sized teats, and easy milkers."

A PRETTY WEDDING.

In Which a Popular Napanesean Took Part.

Napanes, May 12.—A wedding of much interest to Napaneseans took place in Toronto, Wednesday, 10th inst., when Miss Marion S. Taylor, daughter of Edward Taylor, Toronto, became the bride of H. M. P. Deroche, eldest son of H. M. Deroche, K.C., Napanes. The wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Anglican church, Toronto, by Rev. Prof. Cody. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Lillian Taylor, and a like service was performed for the groom by his brother, Lieut. A. P. Deroche. The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling dress of grey, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was dressed in white and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. Only immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Deroche, W. P. Deroche, and Miss E. Deroche, Napanes, and Mrs. Edward Castigan, Deseronto, attended. A wedding breakfast was served at McConkey's, and after a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Deroche will reside in Napanes. Mr. Deroche having entered into partnership with his father, H. M. Deroche, K.C.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. McKnight, and two children, Forest Mills, will leave next week for this line, saving they expect to make their home in M. J. Getty and sister, Miss Maggie Coxall, Toronto, are spending a few days in town with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Coxall. Miss Emma Allison left Tuesday for Napanes, Man., to spend a few months. Miss Emma Grant, Bridge street, Ill. for the past week, is reported a little better. Wednesday night, some person with ill intentions threw a stone through a rear plate-glass window of F. W. Sargent & Bros. jewellery store. The crash awakened parties living across the street, and footsteps were heard on the sidewalk at the same time.

Not long ago Col. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," was treating to a professor of ethnology some of his many and varied experiences among the Indians during his early days. The Philadelphia Public Ledger tells of the little joke which the scout played on the professor.

"By the way," asked Col. Cody abruptly, "did you ever see a red-headed Indian?"

"Never did, and never heard of such a freak, indeed," was the reply.

"I saw one," a Cherokee, down on the Fort Scott trail," quietly answered Cody. Then he stopped, waiting for a "rise."

It came. "Rather an unusual sight that, wasn't it?"

"Rather," but you see this Indian was bald."
