Defending An Outrage.
There is at last an attempt to defend the wretched work of those who would remove Dr. Fee from office in order to gratify the cravings of hungry office seekers. It is asserted that the liberals went into the election last year with the desire and expectation of having the place of medical health officer for the board of health at their disposal. It is an infamous lie. The arrangement entered into by the board of health, and suggested by Dr. Fee, was generally acceptable and it should be allowed to continue.

There is only one reason why a disturbance of it should be thought of, and that reason—that the work of the department has been neglected or unsatisfactorily performed—has not been made apparent. What the board of health may do on Monday, when it meets, cannot, of course, be anticipated, but it is assumed that there can be but one answer to the enquiry of the council, and it is that there is no ground for complaint so far as Dr. Fee's office is concerned.

By the way the medical man who canvassed for the office must see that his demands are obnoxious to the party. At the last meeting of the council there was a full attendance of the conservative members. It was planned that the office should be simply appropriated without any ceremony. The whispering began before the session, and continued during it, and seemingly there was a bulk from an unexpected quarter. It is fortunate that there are some members of the council who will not be dragged into the performance of a scandal. In deference to their stand the question took on the form in which it was expressed by Alderman King's resolution. It passed without a word because there could be no objection to the board of health reporting upon the case.

To say that this shameful dodging is inspired by anything which the liberals had in mind does not help the issue. The fact remains that a certain medical man, who is not supposed to be in needy circumstances, has forgotten himself and the traditions of the council so far as to demand the office which Dr. Fee holds. He can only have it by the heartless sacrifice of an ailing official and of that etiquette and honor which the profession is supposed to hold so dear.

A Case In Doubt.
The American press has not appreciated the comments of certain Canadian papers, and because it has been inferred that there is any doubt about the recovery of Paul Jones' body. If there is to be any frenzy on the subject it should be expended at the expense of the American publishers, who are in a dubbing mood.
Thomas E. Watson, senator, for instance, in his magazine, is not at all chary about asserting that the body found in Paris may or may not be that of the long buried admiral. Mr. Watson is not surprised that the searchers found what they were looking for, a body, but he is gravely uncertain as to the nature of this find. The experts had to give the opinions they were expected to hand out. A crisis had been reached. The appropriation by congress had been exhausted. Only four leaden coffins had been found in the old graveyard, and one of those had to be Paul Jones', because he had been buried in such a coffin, and the other three bore names-plates, which showed they could not be his. The fourth bore no name-plate; therefore it must be Jones' coffin. The necessity of the situation required it. "Consequently," writes Mr. Watson, "polite French experts cautiously compare, incubate, decide and bring in the verdict desired."

Looking at the case as a lawyer, Mr. Watson is persuaded that his countrymen on the Paul Jones mission do not know what they have. Cyrus Townsend, the historian, has it that Jones was buried in the American uniform. The body which Gen. Porter found was not so arrayed. Jones died of dropsy, and was terribly swollen, in death. The French experts say the measurements of the body tally with the measurements of the living Jones. Then in life he was exactly five feet eight inches in stature. The body said to be his measures "about five feet eight inches."
"This corpse," says Senator Watson, "may be, as already stated, a good enough Jones for that $35,000, but it has not yet been shown to be John Paul Jones, the naval hero of our war of Independence."

And, strange to say, no paper that comes to the Whig office has felt it necessary to call Mr. Watson's conclusions in question.
Trade In The East.
There is something very serious in the announcement that the Japanese are discriminating against the Canadians in the matter of trade. Some explanation of this is afforded by Hon. Mr. Fielding, who says that the Japanese did not like the attitude of Canada in not accepting provisions of the last British treaty. As a consequence "Canadian products did not get the advantages which the British products would have under the treaty." Cases have been cited in which a cut price did not have the desired effect. The Japanese were simply prejudiced against the Canadian goods and did not want them under any circumstances.
May some of this prejudice not be due to the legislation of British Columbia? It was essayed to debar the Chinese and Japanese, and the federal government disallowed it. An act may as well prohibit immigration as impose a tax which cannot be met. The Japanese are not really in the same class as the Chinese. They are a superior people. But it is difficult to discriminate between them, and so far as the Whig remembers it was not attempted. The Japanese, however, may be judging the Canadians by what is heard of them, and the news sent back to their own country, and in effect that they are not used right, must have a very bad impression.

Toronto Star.—Advance notices of the straw hat would indicate that the manufacturers are determined. That last year's hats shall not be in style.
Good In Everything.
Hamilton Spectator.—There is one satisfaction about this alien deporting business: If Uncle Sam sends the Canucks back home it will be a good thing for them and for Canada.

Hyman's Month.
Toronto Star.—At any rate we may depend on the June brides to use their best endeavors to effect this attempt on the part of the opposition to snuff out Hyman's torch in London.
Learned Their Lesson.
New York World.—The Canadians really should not be blamed for believing that they have certain rights. They acquired the notion by watching us. No doubt they mean to flatter us by imitation.

BUSY IN LONDON.
Mormons Hold Revival Meetings and Denounce Tactics.
London, June 1.—There was every symptom of prosperity at the semi-annual London conference of the Latter Day Saints held at Finsbury Town Hall, where large and orderly meetings were addressed by President Heber I. Grant of Salt Lake City. In the afternoon, no fewer than fifteen persons were baptized at a neighboring bath. The testimony was exceedingly varied.
One speaker declaimed earnestly against iniquity in general, with particular reference to "tea, coffee, and hot drinks." Another called upon the saints to humble themselves before God—"and not before the Mormon elders only."
Mr. Grant himself had a word to say about revivals. He computed that to get 300 people together the saints had to distribute something like 30,000 circulars. "But if fainting and screaming were phases of our meetings," he added, "thousands would come."

REVISITED HIS TAVERN.
This Ghost Does Drinking Behind the Bar.
Liverpool, June 1.—At the Engineers Arms, in Lancashire, the ghost of Robert Adams, a former landlord who was buried at Aberdeen, is said to have been behaving most disgracefully of late.
"He" is heard in the dead of night drinking behind the bar. One man declares he looked through a window and saw "him"—but when the present landlord and his friends and guests descend to eject the intruder its intangible form flits upstairs to the bedrooms and departs there with much noise and riot.
The latest report from Nelson is that a former friend, secreted in the bar, saw Robert Adams' burly figure at the beer engine, but naturally failed to seize it. Nelson feels that something must be done. Such a ghost as this is nothing less than scandalous.

GOES CRAZY OVER COUNTESS.
Eccentric Berlin Banker Buys Villa for Her.
Paris, June 1.—In Berlin it is believed that the affairs of the Countess Montignosa (Princess Louise of Saxony), are about to be settled. Meanwhile the countess has been the innocent cause of an unfortunate affair. An eccentric Berlin banker, who recently had a fortune of $1,500,000 left him by an uncle, purchased a villa at Meran, in the southern Tyrol, and immediately telegraphed to the countess, offering her the house and grounds. Warned of their son's conduct the parents of the banker hastened to Meran, and found him about to leave for Florence. After a painful scene at the railway station, he was taken to an insane asylum, still protesting his desire to go to Florence.

MANZER ADMITS IT.
He Was the Murderer of a Child.
Oswego, N.Y., June 1.—Henry Manzer, the farm hand accused of the murder of twelve-year-old Cora Sweet at Scriba, last Sunday, made a confession to Sheriff Cook.
Manzer is confined in a steel cell in the woman's department of the jail, apparently a broken man. He fears that an attempt will be made by the farmers to get him, and he says he does not care what happens. The authorities absolutely refuse to make public the details of the story. Manzer told in describing the murder.
Sheriff Cook went into the cage with the prisoner and had a long talk with him. During the conversation he caught him of his guard. The sheriff said: "Manzer, how did you get the girl to go into the woods. Did you tell her there were flowers there or did you drag her in?"
"I don't know how I did it," was Manzer's answer. "I must have been crazy. I don't remember anything about it."
When the sheriff told him that enough evidence had been secured to send him to the electric chair and that there was no longer doubt of his guilt, he became unsteady and said: "I would just as soon die as to get out of here."

TO DIE WITH HUSBAND.
Native Throws Herself on His Funeral Pyre.
Simla, June 1.—Notwithstanding the prohibition of suttee (the burning alive of widows), a case of self-immolation by a woman has occurred, says a correspondent of the Indian Empire, at a village about thirty miles from Ajmer.
The husband, to all appearances, died on March 18th, but when the woman, in accordance with custom, offered him food, the supposed corpse sat up, to a mouthful, and then fell back and never moved again.
The widow followed the remains to the cremation ground, and when the funeral pile was made ready she threw herself on the pyre, and amid much confusion, the pyre was kindled, how or by whom, the correspondent adds, is not known.
While the fire was blazing the woman made not the least attempt to escape, and in the course of an hour both the bodies were reduced to ashes.

INHERITANCE FORTUNE.
Crippled Welshman Receives $40,000.
Cardiff, June 1.—David Jones, a crippled Welsh collier, has inherited a fortune of $40,000 left by his brother, who died in Australia. The testator emigrated about fifty years ago and was lost sight of by his relatives for many years. He amassed his wealth by hard manual labor and extraordinary thrift.
Thomas Powell, another Welshman, who recently died in a hospital at Newcastle, New South Wales, bequeathed to his brothers in South Wales, $35,000, which he received as winner of a steeplechase on a horse race. After his death, however, it transpired that he had not paid his entrance fee, and the money was passed over to an Australian claimant, and South Wales is $35,000 the poorer.

World's Largest Plant.
Milwaukee is to have the largest machinery works in the world. Extensions are to be made to the Allis-Chalmers plant at West Allis until it is four times its present size, and its working force increased from 5,000 to 20,000 employees. Official announcement of plans involving an expenditure of more than $10,000,000 was made lately. During the next twelve months $3,000,000 will be expended. With this first enlargement the Allis-Chalmers company will become one of the largest mechanical manufacturing companies in the United States, equaling in size the Westinghouse company of Pittsburgh, and the General Electric company of Schenectady. Three large machine shops, for the exclusive manufacture of heavy electrical machinery, will be built during the year. The pattern house, foundry and erecting house will be doubled in size. Two thousand men will be employed five years putting up the new buildings. When the plant is finally completed it is estimated that the employees and their families will make up a population at West Allis of 100,000.

Purse For Dr. Ryckman.
Cornwall, May 31.—On Monday evening, at the close of the regular meeting of the Epworth League of the Cornwall Methodist church, all representatives of the church and congregation presented their pastor, Rev. Dr. Ryckman, with an appreciative address and a purse of gold for the interest he had manifested during his term in the welfare of the society and of the church.
