Trouble In The Party.

The bye-elections in London and forth Oxford are over, but the effects of them cannot be easily measured. The assaults upon the church and the it is well. French party have given offence, and there is talk of wholesale a defection from the conservative party.

The members of the Roman Catholic | the crown lands department, will wield church have taken advantage of the the axe in decapitating public officiattacks that were made upon its re- als. At least a tory print so announcsome of them voted against the conservative candidate, or that as conkes them sing. Free tin in r lb. Cottam servatives they refrained from voting

In addition there is the independent dement which is disposed to criticise the campaign, as the conservatives against a repetition of it. This Mr. Bowyer, M.P.P., in his paper, the Ridgetown Plaindealer scores the who introduced the mischievous and malevolent spirit in the elections "In this paper," he writes, "we have

Learning nothing from the past, they with wide open eyes decided to adopt tactics which to the merest tyro in politics meant not only defeat in the ridings in question, but injury to the party throughout the dominion.

"Surely Mr. Gray's managers London had not forgotten the Essery contest and the result of the former visit of E. E. Sheppard and Mr. Marthousands of good conservatives blush people!

Finally there is the intimation that Mr. Borden is a failure and that he should be retired. He began the sion by the announcement that would run the party, as its leader, a ne decided. He would brook no interference. Has he had his way?

The Ridgetown Plaindealer, which has been already quoted, alleges that he lost his control of the bye-elections and that the party has suffered consequence. As successor to him, Mr Whitney has been suggested, But My Whitney has no notion of leaving the sunshine of office for the shade of

The Church And Politics. The question which frequently arises as one reads the speeches, motions and declarations of the church bodies, is this: Have the delegates a mandate to pass on anything that is not of an ecclesiastical or churchly char-

In certain of the conferences, conventions or assemblies, there has been a manifest desire to introduce into the discussions a reference to the auto nomy bill, now before parliament. In a few cases motions carried which were presumed to reflect the mind the people whom the conferences conventions represented.

But the occasion of these meetings was not to criticize the proceedings of parliament or of any branch of it. The clergy were not chosen because they held specific views upon political subject. Editorial Notes.

Hon. Mr. Cochrane, the new head o es, though it may not speak by book.

The two conservatives who are moving in parliament-the one for dual languages, officially, in the new peovinces, and the other for separate schools-must be going it alone. Who is leading the party anyway?

Hon. Mr. Foster insinuates that the half-breeds are being robbed by mid dle men, in the barter and sale of their scrip, but he does not make any direct charge. Mr. Foster ought to be above mere insinuations.
