the other members took the view that the bonus was small and that the arrangement made by the engineer was as economical as could be effected. Ald, Rigney wanted to know something could not be done for improvement of the streets, which, his recollection, were never in such bad condition. Enough attention not been paid to the road beds. Rigney thought that the board of works should recommend some scheme to council. The chairman pointed out that the council gave the board of work a small appropriation, and it could go only a certain distance. The city engineer said that the only scheme was to borrow money on debentures. He did not advocate paving, as he was convinced that macadam roads would be quite serviceable boards are loose and broken and at for Kingston, Ald, Rigney agreed that macadam was good enough. Many of the roads should be rebuilt. The council had been dodging the street question too long. Some big scheme must filthy condition and a breeder soon be undertaken.

Ald, Angrove wanted to know how much it would cost to re-macadamize Princess street. The engineer said it would cost probably $4,000 to macadamize from King to Clergy street.
