FOR THE FARMER

NEWS OF INTEREST TO THE AGRICULTURIST.

A Curiosity in the Form of a Double Egg—Shade Required for Chickens—Sale Pure Bred Cattle—Fruit Trees Damaged.

J. L. Perrin, West Thompson, Conn., has a remarkable curiosity in eggs. His hen laid two perfectly formed eggs, each twice as large as robin's egg, the ends of which are joined by a short spindle of shell an eighth of an inch in diameter.

Trees make the best shade, of course, but if there are no trees of some kind must be provided for young and old chicks. Fowls like a jungle-like denseness of shrubs and bushes where they can hide from the summer sun and dust in the cool earth. While the currant and gooseberry bushes are growing and the trees reaching a size where they afford some protection, resting on the ground on the south side and propped up on the north, Strawberries, hops, and corn also make a good shade. Chickens love the mellow earth of a well cared for corn field, and no better place can be found for a late hatched brood.

Godings and ducks grow very rapidly and come to maturity far in advance of chickens, other things being equal. While it is not absolutely necessary that they be provided with a large pond, it is advisable to keep water before them at all times. After the young ones are half-grown they then free access to the pond or stream if the natural conditions allow.

Pure bred cattle are not bringing very high figures at auctions in the United States just now. At a sale of Ohio Shorthorns, reported in the "Cattle" Gazette, thirty females averaged $147.50, and ten bulls $114. At another in Minnesota, twenty-nine females averaged $140.15, and fifteen bulls $99.35. Even lower prices were reported in Missouri, where thirty-one females averaged $61.85, and five bulls $79.50.

Four-fifths of the fruit trees in the vicinity of Bridgeport, Conn., have been ruined by the San Jose scale. Outlook for apples in the great producing section of Illinois, about the Noble, is slim, according to the fact. On the bulk of Ben Davis trees in Highland county only a small crop is indicated, and very spotted.

Some evidence of cut-worms in peach sections of Michigan, especially where spraying has been neglected. The annual value of the fruit crop of California is estimated at $50,000,000.

A number of co-operative canning companies have been organized in New England during the past year or two. The work of organization appears, as a rule, to have been carried out by promoters who had machinery to sell, and who were sure of profit, no matter how the enterprise might pan out. A number of farmers who have gone in to appear, by the American Agriculturalists, to have lost money. Only one of these factories will be operated this season, and a number of layabouts are on, owing to farmers having refused to pay for stock subscribed for. In one case a settlement of eighty cents on the dollar is to be made, and the building will be turned over to other purposes.

At a meeting of the Grand Rapids railroad committee, held at the city hall, judgment of $37.50, and which was repeatedly appealed by the company on the ground that the cow entered the territory, has, says Country Gentleman, entered on its trial at Fort Wayne, with costs to defense of over $600.

A Goodland letter in the Kansas City Journal says that a new tree will dot the rich, barred prairie of Sherman County, Kan., this year in addition to those already growing. The 1,800 fruit and forest trees have already been ordered by residents, besides shrubbery and grape vines. The culture in Western Kansas has passed the experimental stage, and all doubt as to its practicability has passed away. People are now buying trees, not with the fear that it is a mere gamble, but from the standpoint of a gilt-edged investment.

Destroyed All The Roots.
Not sufficient to saw a corn-rod must cure it for all time. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor and both root and branch of the corn are forever removed. No pain, quick cure. Use only Putnam's.

Great Commercial Wit.
Kansas City Times.
The women of the Yankee states may think that they are clever at driving bargains, but the claim is made now, without evasion or equivocation, that in Guthrie lives a woman without a parallel for commercial wit. Several months ago she entered a large department store in New York city, to buy a yard of silk, which the clerk told her would cost her fifty-five cents. Her purchase left a remnant of one and one-half yards. The clerk suggested that she buy the remnant.

Good tea must be grown under proper conditions

Low, damp or swampy lands in a warm, humid climate produce tea of rank, rapid growth, coarse in texture, woody fibred, rudely flavored—makes a cup heavy, murky in color, rough-tasting—it is poor tea.

But the Indian and Ceylon teas used to make the Red Rose brand are grown on the high lands of India and the mountain sides of Ceylon.

These teas are grown in clear dry sunshine, they mature slowly, the leaves of the Ceylon teas are tender, delicate, finely flavored, but not strong.

The Indian teas thus grown are full bodied, richly flavored, smooth in texture, strong.

Such Indian and Ceylon teas combined in Red Rose Tea produce a cup of a rich rosy brown, strong and smooth—all the richness and strength of Indian, all the delicacy and fragrance of Ceylon teas—that "rich, fruity flavor" which belongs alone to Red Rose Tea—more qualities of tea excellence than any Indian or brand of Ceylon alone can possess.
