This man has been for many years the admired of the masses. He has enjoyed the fullest confidence of the people, has filled many posts of honor, has reaped the emoluments of several offices, has been in demand public occasions as the silver-tongued presidency of the United States. When he falls, when the evidence discloses him as a grafter of the common kind, strength is given to the assertion of the curb-stone philosopher, that "every man has his price."

The Boston Herald assumed that perial troops until next year. Depew and his associates became blind to the moral law and felt that they could escape its penalties, because, "all men were doing that of which they were guilty." They lived in the atmosphere of high finance, and cording to Lawson it is a pretty bad atmosphere.

Junketing Is Illegal.

This point Judge O'Meara, of Ottawa, has made clear. It was proposed to send a representative of the counto Winnipeg, there to attend the Union of Canadian Municipalities' meeting, at a cost of $200. An injunction was called for, and Judge O'Meara granted it. In doing so said that incidentally some benefit would accrue to Ottawa, in common with other cities, but there should be some specific business to warrant the expenditure. There should be business directly affecting the corporation. To pay the expenses of delegates to discuss things in general
