Tantilizing The People.

The people are not called upon at present to consider seriously the proposition of remodelling the city buildings once more, ostensibly for the purpose of providing accommodation for the school board, but practically for the purpose of squandering the

It is fortunate that the people will case, have the opportunity of passing judgment upon the scheme and they can be depended upon to give it

The pity is, however, that in the meantime any money should be spent upon it, and the engagement of an architect to make the plans, and incidentally to give the committee advice, means expense, though it is hoped the waste will be as light as possible. The committee, apart from the chairman-who has a penchant for

The school No. safer, sounder or better drinks for board's officers were once in the buildings, and they were not at al convenient. To remove them back to the old quarters-to drag the people who have to do business with the secretary-treasurer, the teachers and scholars from one extreme of the c ty to the other-would be about as antiquated an idea as any that could be imagined. The city is not going backward. it is going forward. Then the city officials have not northern wing any more room than they require. To deny the auditor the office he should have in order to de his work aright, and to deprive the assessor of the office he has arranged to take, that formerly devoted to th collection of taxes, is not wise nor ex pedient. To huddle these officials into some nook in order to squeeze the school officials in somewhere and some how, for effect, is not an arrangement which will finally go through. Once more. The city is not financial in a position to indulge in frenzied Some years ago the council ainst its better judgment, allowed expenditure of some $7,000. It go nothing that was satisfactory. Is one experience of this kind not enough? There is the prospect of a lowered assessment, (under the new law), and of higher taxation next year as consequence. Regardless of this, sever expensive schemes have been projected. Some improvements are necessary, notably the gas extensions, in the interest of a larger consumption of gas and an increased revenue, and the west end sewer, in the interest of the public health. Some things are not necessary, and so far as they are con cerned public opinion demands a halt It should take place now.
