CORDIAL INVITATION
ADDRESSED TO WORKING GIRLS
Miss Robitaille Tells How Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Helped Working Girls
Girls who work are particularly susceptible to female disorders, especially those which are obliged to stand on their feet from morning until night in stores or factories. Day in and day out the girl toils and she is often the bread-winner of the family. Whether she is sick or well, whether it rains or shines, she must get to her place of employment, perform the duties exacted of her—amiable and agreeable.
Among this class the symptoms of female diseases are early manifest by weak and aching backs, pain in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. In consequence of frequent wetting of the feet, monthly periods become painful and irregular, and frequently there are faint and dizzy spells, with loss of appetite, until life is a burden. All of these symptoms point to a derangement of the female organism which can be easily and promptly cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Miss Alma Robitaille, 78 rue St. Francois, Quebec, tells how this great medicine did for her. She writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham—
"Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected cold, brought on a very serious female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was and I straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve but after that my recovery was very rapid and I was soon well and able to go back to work again. I certainly think your medicine for sick women worthy of praise and an indeed good to endorse it."
It is to such girls that Mrs. Pinkham holds out a helping hand and extends a cordial invitation to correspond with her. Her long record of success in treating woman's ills makes her letters of advice of untold value to every ailing working girl, and from her wide experience and skill she quickly points the way to health. Her advice is free, and all letters are held by her in the strictest confidence. Address, Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

LANDED A MASKINGONGE.
Twenty Pounder Hooked in Gananoque Harbor.
Gananoque, Aug. 15.—Local game inspectors have received instructions from the department of fisheries not to issue any more anglers' permits, thus placing our Canadian waters open to American fishermen, without money and without price. There is not much consolation for local anglers in this order and dissatisfaction is openly expressed.
The gospel car still occupies a position on the streets of our town. The evangelists were somewhat interfered with in their services last evening.
The landing of a twenty-pound maskingonge by a guest at the Inn, just out from the hotel wharf, caused quite a little excitement. There are many just as big waiting for someone to come along and land a maskingonge.
A large crowd took advantage of the moonlight excursion last night, under the management of Rev. J. D. O'Gorman, to attend Mac-Irwin's play in Clayton. The America took her full complement of passengers and had to leave some on the wharf.

EXPEDITE WORK
PARNELL'S DEBTS WILL BE LIQUIDATED.
Former Secretary of Irish Leader Pleads for Expenditure of Proceeds of the Estate.
Dublin, Aug. 15.—Fourteen years after the death of Charles Stewart Parnell, the Irish leader, there is some prospect of his estate being settled, and his creditors paid. This will be welcome news to the heirs of some of the original creditors, some of whom have died in penury in the meantime.
The matter came up before Judge Ross in Dublin law courts, and the solicitor who had charge of the sale of the estate announced that it had all been disposed of except the farm rent of $80 a year.
Henry Campbell, town clerk of Dublin, and formerly Parnell's private secretary, prayed Judge Ross to do something to expedite the settlement of the estate. All the money, he said, had been kept in Ireland, and the efforts of the administrators had been directed toward proving the claims of the Irish creditors, while nothing had been done about the English creditors. No one, however, had been paid. There was, he said, a considerable sum of money, he said, to pay Mrs. Parnell's dowry full and all the creditors.
Some of the English creditors, he said, had died in poverty, while others had sold their claims at a heavy discount. He told of one man, a cattle dealer of Rathfriland, Ireland, who had sold Mr. Parnell some cattle a few days before his death. The price, $120, had never been paid, and the man had died in poverty, his credit having been destroyed, while his children were still waiting for the money.
Judge Ross declared that there should be no more delay, and ordered that the English claims should be at once ascertained.

A TALE FROM WILLIAMSVILLE
Four Chapters Finished—The Sequel Later.
Peace reigneth not in the picturesque romantic ancient suburb of Williamsville, and for the time being the thrilling subject of charged disension is relegated to the back of the books while latest scandal is passed around hot from the cauldron. And to think that the whole thing is a dog! The story might be likened to a tale in four chapters, with the sequel yet to be made public.
The first chapter deals with the death of a dog. The animal was the property of a well-known resident of Williamsville, and heresay has it that the barker passed to the canine world of a chronic disease. The owner's wife, however, thinks otherwise, and accused a neighbor, in unparliamentary terms, of having encroached on doggie's death by the unattended use of a fatal drug; she also, it is alleged, used words reflecting upon his religious beliefs. Thus ends the second chapter.
The third chapter is devoted to the loyalty of a friend of the hero accused of dispensing poison, who took the woman to task for her alleged use of profane language, and for her unbecomingly disagreeable conduct. The chapter ends with the woman resenting the interference of an outsider, and the driving of him from the house with a club, which is freely used on the head of the unfortunate youth who now wears judicial spectacles of court pleaster judiciously distributed over his scalp.
The finale shows the interfering friend in the roadway, blood streaming from his wounds, and fire flashing from his eyes. He picks up a round, hard substance and with strong, swift aim, hurls it at a window, through which the woman is seen to flee. There is a sound of crashing glass, and the curtain is rung down.
The sequel will be told in sorrow and anguish in the police court, as the aid of the police was sought to straighten out the amount to which procuring halm for wounded feelings.

TO MARRY FOSTER FATHER.
Adopted Her When She Was Seven Years Old.
Providence, R. I., Aug. 15.—A romance has been disclosed through the publication of the following advertisement:
"Nash—Nash: Miss Bessie P. Nash announces her engagement to John Nash, both of this city.
John B. Nash is the proprietor of a penny vaudeville, and he and Miss Nash have been guests at a leading hotel for three years. Miss Nash is his adopted daughter, and they are to be married in October. He is thirty-six and she is eighteen.
Five years ago Bessie Bertrand and her mother resided in Springfield, Mass. Her father died when she was three years of age. Four years later her mother died, leaving her a five-year-old girl, who was attracted by her sweet, pretty face and gentle disposition and adopted her. She developed into a handsome woman.
DIES AT WEDDING FESTIVAL.
Succumbs to Illness at Grandchild's Marriage.
Buda Pesth, Aug. 15.—A farmer named Weiss, residing in the Szekes district of Hungary, has had the unusual experience of having a marriage and a death in his house on the same day.
His daughter, Bertha, was being married to a solicitor according to the Jewish rite. There were more than 150 guests present. Suddenly, while the rabbi was reading the first prayers, Weiss's mother became ill. She stood beside the bride, who, though incumbered by her veil and wreaths of orange blossoms, took the old lady in her arms to prevent her from falling.
A moment afterward, however, Frau Weiss died, and fell to the floor, dragging the bride down with her. The dead body was placed on a bed in another room, and the wedding ceremony, so tragically interrupted, resumed.
Samuel Emberley, Point Edward, aged thirty, was sucked under a steamer to which he was trying to attach a tow-line from his row boat. The Gowans, Kent company will erect a new warehouse on the other side of the Don.

FOR THE FARMER
Useful Hints for Use About the Farm.
It is now estimated that the 1905 apple crop in New York state will not amount to more than forty per cent. of that harvested in 1904, but in making the comparison it should be remembered that apples last year were a bumper crop.
A new churn imparts a woody flavor to the butter in the first churning, unless it is properly prepared. A new churn should be soaked for twenty-four hours with cold water, changing it often. Then put in hot water and unbleached wood ashes, and churn for half an hour. Then rinse with hot water. Soak with sour buttermilk, rinse with cold water, half fill with hot water, turn churn for several minutes and then rinse with cold water. Vent churn repeatedly.
Flour must be kept out of the milk. They convey dirt to it, and as we have repeatedly said, any dirt in the milk causes the bacteria to grow and makes the milk sour. The main point in the care and preservation of milk and cream, is to keep them fresh as possible and prevent their souring. The two great factors in accomplishing these ends are cleanliness and a low temperature.
The United States is the largest producer of swine in the world. It has been estimated that forty per cent. of all swine grown are raised in this country.

HAUNTED BY DEBT INCURRED THROUGH CENEROSITY.
Toronto Star.
Rev. Leroy Hooker, whose tragic disappearance at Winnipeg, has been noted, is spoken of very highly by prominent Methodists, as a generous, big-hearted man, said Rev. Dr. Briggs, "and when he was pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist church here, he was very highly respected by the people." He was a clever man, and had more than ordinary power as an orator. His character was without the slightest blemish. Others who knew him bear similar testimony.
In 1891 that Mr. Hooker gave up his charge here. He was left without a station at his own request and resigned from the Methodist ministry here. He had been in the Methodist ministry since 1861, and spent his first years as a preacher down here. It was then that he became involved in the financial difficulties that have spoiled his life. He pledged much more than he could pay toward a struggling church in Quebec, and had to borrow money to meet the obligation. Being a poor manager, and always being ready to give to nearly the last cent he had, he was unable to pay, and the debt haunted him like a spectre, and made his life a burden.
A speculation made in the hope of evening things up was a failure, and he was dispirited when he left here for Chicago in 1893. He joined the Presbyterian church there, and afterwards, in the hope of making more money, took to the lecture platform, for which field his ready tongue and low price made him a success. He fit him admirably. The recent death of a much-loved son from consumption is also given as a reason for his despondency.

Leroy Hooker in Chicago.
Winnipeg, Aug. 14.—Rev. Leroy Hooker, whose strange sudden disappearance created a sensation here, has been located in Chicago.
MAYOR ID UNDER ARREST.
Paris, Aug. 15.—The mayor of the little commune of Bieres, near Guiney, has just been arrested on the charge of swindling.
For a long time he managed the property of an old lady residing at Bieres. A lottery certificate belonging to the latter won a prize of $20,000, but it is alleged that the mayor made her believe that the amount to which she was entitled was only $2,000, and pocketed the difference.
The heirs of the old lady heard of the affair. They lodged a complaint, and as a result of an inquiry the mayor is in prison.

Stones On Its Record.
Toye's bread stands on its record. Its reputation is the result of long years of hard, honest work. The very best flour is alone used, and the machinery is the latest and most scientific. The subject of cleanliness and sanitation has been carefully studied, and the bread made in Toye's factory is the purest and best that the bakers' skill can produce.

Feat In Irish Bogs.
Experts calculate that Irish bogs are capable of turning out 50,000,000 tons of peat fuel per year for a thousand years, and if this were sold at the moderate figure of 5c per ton it would bring in £12,500,000 a year. When this sum is multiplied by a thousand it will be seen that Ireland is richer in undeveloped resources than is sometimes imagined. It is claimed for the new fuel that it is practically smokeless, that it has no clinker or cinder, deteriorates but little by keeping, does not crumble in handling and has a high calorific value.

IN THE GRIP OF THE ARABS.
As Described By An English Banker.
By far the most mighty erection ever constructed on this earth, or doubtless that ever will be constructed, is the great pyramid of Cheops, the height of which exceeds that of any other building in the world, while the stones of which it is formed would, if they had been calculated, have sufficed to erect a wall around the entire coast of France.
The ascent of the pyramids is by no means an easy task. The sheik in command of the Bedouins congregated near the base (without whose aid it would be, for most people, impossible to make the ascent), having told of two of these wild Arabs—or if the individual be heavy and portly three are requisite—the adventurous climber is, especially if a lady, instantly and brusquely seized by the arms by these fiery sons of the desert, and violently hurried to the base of the great structure; their vehement impetuosity being apparently greatly intensified if the climber be of the fair sex. Presumably they think that the more they can lighten their prey the more "back-sheesh" they will succeed in extorting. As, however, Britain now rules in Egypt the ascent is almost always quite safe; it is, however, somewhat disconcerting to see these fierce and turbulent Arabs wildly carrying off ladies in that rude and impetuous fashion.
And now the ascent commences, and the climber is dragged and pushed by the muscular Bedouins up the great stones, every step nearly four feet in height, until step by step every muscle in the body aches, and the limbs are sore and weary.
Having thus ascended perhaps half way to the summit, probably the majority, realizing that the descent is no more pleasurable than the ascent, come to the conclusion that discretion is the better part of valor, and wisely refuse to ascend further. Those, however, who have succeeded in reaching the apex state that the prospect is very fine; on the one side the vast expanse of barren rolling desert, though once doubtless a fertile plain throbbing with life and activity, and on the other the minarets and domes of Cairo. The beautiful palm-bordered Nile fringed with dahabiyas and feluccas, and the clusters of pyramids in the far distance at Sakhara and Dahshur.
And as, spell-bound, we contemplate that time-worn old relic of the great past, the thought flashes through the mind that it has looked down upon the entire history of the world, all down the centuries, from the very beginning of civilization. It was there long before Abraham's time; it witnessed the marvellous procession of Joseph and the subsequent oppression of the Israelites by Rameses II, whose colossal statue still lies there, across a few miles distant; and, under its very shadow the armies of Memphis that pursued the emancipated Hebrews, only to perish ignominiously in the Red Sea. And, of infinitely greater interest than all, it witnessed the flight into Egypt of Joseph, and with him, the young child Jesus, the Saviour of the world, who came to this earth to redeem it, and who by offering Himself as our substitute, and paying the penalty due by us, has opened the gates of Paradise to all who wish to enter, and who will but plead that all-prevailing atonement.

Loubet Puzzled.
President Loubet, of France, asked the advice of his government as to the form he should employ in addressing King Edward, King Alfonso, and other royal personages. As "Your good brother," President Faure once signed himself when writing to the King of Denmark, even as the old kings of France were wont to do. The emperor of Russia addresses M. Loubet as "M. de France," and the president has to reply "Sir," and "Your Majesty." Napoleon III, writing the saddest letter of his life—his surrender at Sedan—addressed the emperor of Prussia as "Your Majesty," and subscribed himself, "Your good brother," and received the king's reply, commencing, "My brother," and ending "Your loving brother."
A Rare Butterfly.
The British museum has in its collection a rare butterfly which was collected in a remarkable manner. On a several men were shooting at a mark with a revolver. As one of them was about to fire he noticed a butterfly hovering over the ship. He shot at it, and brought it to the deck, considering it a marvellous find. The insect is beautiful that the pieces were collected and sent to an English entomologist. The butterfly proved to be of a species entirely unknown to the scientific world.

Feat In Irish Bogs.
Experts calculate that Irish bogs are capable of turning out 50,000,000 tons of peat fuel per year for a thousand years, and if this were sold at the moderate figure of 5c per ton it would bring in £12,500,000 a year. When this sum is multiplied by a thousand it will be seen that Ireland is richer in undeveloped resources than is sometimes imagined. It is claimed for the new fuel that it is practically smokeless, that it has no clinker or cinder, deteriorates but little by keeping, does not crumble in handling and has a high calorific value.
How Dollars Are Saved.
One of the many ways to save money is by using pure food, especially the best, wholesome bread, made of the best materials in an up-to-date factory. Visit Toye's bakery factory, Ontario street, and you will find it a model of perfection. You can see for your self that the output cannot be anything but pure and wholesome.
