TRAFALGAR. One Hundredth Anniversary of Great Battle.

Chicago Chronicle. It is announced that in Great Britain and by Englishmen all over the world the hundredth anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar, which put a final end to Napoleon's ambition to invade England, falling on the 11th day of October next, will be celebrated in great style and it is expected with great enthusiasm.

Memory of Trafalgar will recall to many also the comparative frequency with which naval victories have practically determined the course of the world's history. Trafalgar unquestionably saved England from Napoleon's invasion, and had the inexorable Corsican been enabled to dictate terms of peace or war in London, there would have been no Russian disaster for him and no Waterloo.

Before that day the battle of the Nile foiled his early scheme for a great eastern empire under the flag of France, compelling him to abandon the victorious army in Egypt and, returning to France, almost as a fugitive, to leave the sea wholly out of his plans thereafter. But for this the whole course of history probably would have been changed.

The great naval battle of Lepanto in 1571, more even than the signal victory of John Sobieski under the shadow of the walls of Vienna, determined that the victorious career of the Turks and the faith of Mohammed had run its course.

Five hundred years before our era the Greeks, under Themistocles, fought the colossal naval forces of Xerxes in the little bay of Salamis, a more gigantic maritime struggle for that age than the recent battle of the Sea of Japan was for this age, and winning it, determined that Europe should not fall under the domination of the great Persian.

Salamis, Nanto, the Nile, Trafalgar—four times, with countless less colossal but greatly influential conflicts scattered over the time covered, has the entire historic development of the world, not of a nation or two merely, then decided by victory at sea. Probably no four land battles, great as were Chalons and Waterloo and others, surpass these four in momentous consequences to so much of the world.

The greatest of the four in this regard was Salamis, yet there are some reasons to suspect that those who shall look back upon the battle of the Sea of Japan 2,000 years hence, may count the Japanese victory as out-measuring the Greek.

MAN, BACK NUMBER

BEING DRIVEN OUT BY ETERNAL FEMININE.

So Says W. L. Bodine—This At International Gathering in Detroit Causes Mild Sensation.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 16.—At the convention of the International Association of Factory Inspectors, the speech of W. L. Bodine, who is superintendent of compulsory education at Chicago, created a mild sensation. The speaker produced federal statistics covering the past twenty years, showing that the industrial competition of women, children and machine labor was driving the men out of the large cities to fields of heavy manual labor in mining and agriculture. He declared that woman was destined to be the ruling sex in industrialism and continued: "Man, like the Indian, is dying out and being driven out. In 1890 there were 3,914,571 women who were employed in gainful occupations in America. In 1900 the number had increased to 5,329,507. The birth rate of females is increasing and the death rate decreasing. It is just as rapidly drifting to the age of the 'eternal feminine,' when man will be a back number, forced to the soil and those fields of labor where only his physical endurance will save him in the struggle for survival."

In discussing the competitive life for the leadership in society, the speaker said: "Society is dying, it is dying out at the top. It is a crystal mass of glass whose first stone, no occupant dare cast the first stone; the dangerous example; the academy of divorce. Society has members who are leaving. The siren calls of fashion and frivolity, who look more often into their mirrors than into the faces of their children. With a fashionable mother gadding about at social functions and a fashionable father at his club, the result will be that within a decade the question of the neglected children of the rich will become as great a social problem as that of the neglected children of the poor."

Dogs Always Honest. "There is one peculiar thing about dogs," remarked a well-known local fancier and huntsman, "and that is that you never saw one pant and wag his tail at the same time. A dog is not capable of double emotion. He can't growl and wag his tail at the same time, for it is impossible for him to be mad at one end and glad at the other."

If a dog is glad to see his master he will bark and wag his tail. If he wants to get into the house he will wag his tail, but they are all symptoms of one and the same emotion. But if his master is angry, the result will be that he will show anxiety immediately, by whimpering, and will show pleasure only by wagging his tail.

In order to get a man's temper one must watch his eyes, but for a dog's you have to watch his tail. The dog is likewise incapable of deceit, and hence he is not capable of a political. He deceives no one, not even his master. If he is overjoyed, every motion is indicative of the fact, and his whole make-up gives ample testimony to it. If he is displeased or angered it is the same way."

Build Best Ships In World. New York, Aug. 16.—"I am not going to Scotland to see Mr. Carnegie nor am I going to Europe on business in any manner connected with the Russian armor plate contract. I am going abroad to learn how to build the best ships in the world and my trip at this time concerns itself with nothing else."

This statement was made yesterday by Charles M. Schwab in the midst of a hurry and confusion attending the preparations for his departure for Europe.

Proved Him A Liar. London Express. was lord chamberlain of England he was much at outs with the Bishop of London. The latter was visited one day by a clergyman who sought appointment to a fat living then vacant. He wanted a letter of recommendation to Lord Thurlow, but the bishop said that such a letter was likely to do him more harm than good. Nevertheless he wrote it. When Thurlow read themissive, he said: "Well, as that scoundrel, the Bishop of London, has introduced you, you won't get the living." "So the bishop said, my lord," was the meek reply. "Did the Bishop say so?" roared Thurlow. "Then I'll prove him a liar, for you shall have the living." And he was as good as his word.
