THEIR HEALTH RESTORED

Happiness of Thousands of Women Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "Being mother of five children, I have had experience with the general troubles of my sex. I was located when one of my children was born, and from that hour I date all of my afflictions. I found that within few months my health was impaired, I had female weakness and serious inflammation and frequent flowing, which became weak and dizzy, but kept on my feet, dragging through my work without life or pleasure.

Mrs. Pinkham advises sick women free. Address, Lynn, Mass.

PREVENTED INDIAN WAR.

Thrilling Incident Related by Missionary Raley—Peace Brought About in Methodist Mission Church.

A thrilling incident, showing the influence of the Gospel among the Indians of Northern British Columbia, was related in Centennial Methodist Church, Toronto, recently by Rev. G. H. Raley, who has been a missionary for many years at Kitimaat, B. C., which has received some prominence of late in connection with the selection of the Pacific terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

For a great many years previous to the occurrence which Rev. Mr. Raley referred to, about twenty square miles of hunting ground had been in dispute between two crests or clans of Indians, known as the Eagles and Beavers, all of whom lived in Kitimaat. Councils of chiefs and other means resorted to in the interests of peace failed, and finally it was decided to settle the matter by a trial at arms in the old-fashioned savage method.

In the evening a young chief hurried to the mission at Kitimaat, and finally it was decided to settle the matter by a trial at arms in the old-fashioned savage method.

"Listen," he said, "and you can hear them chanting their war songs. They have been put on their war paint."

"This must never be," said the missionary, who finally asked the young chief to go up and down the streets with blue paper in his hands.

The missionary then sent the young chief with a piece of blue paper to the leaders of each clan. They interpreted this rightly as a summons to appear before the missionary. They did so.

Mr. Raley explained to them that an open conflict between the two clans meant that a warship would be sent from Esquimaux and their village would be exterminated by the shells and leaders taken to the capital of the Province, and, perhaps, hanged.

The conference continued until midnight and then the missionary told them they could not fight on the Sabbath, and that they must wait until Monday. To them the Sabbath was sacred, and each chief in turn promised that there should be peace throughout the day, and that their respective crests would come to church morning, afternoon and evening.

Sunday forenoon the two clans filed in, occupying as never before different parts of the church or mission. By intermarriage it frequently happened that both clans were represented by one family, consequently in that church, clans were not separated, but family ties were broken, for crest was more sacred to them than family.

The morning service left them absolutely returned in the afternoon and occupied the same places. As members of either clan purchased to look across to the other clan, the fire of hostility had been flashed from their eyes.

The evening service came. As the missionary unfolded the Gospel story, the people grew intent and then interested; eyes began to moisten and before the service closed, the warring chiefs broke down and wept.

The members of the clans followed their leaders, and peace was restored. That night in the homes of the Indians war chants gave place to hymns. Next morning the crests started off to their various hunting grounds, and the two crests thereafter dwelt in peace.

The Geology of Toronto. In Toronto recently, Prof. A. P. Coleman delivered a most interesting address on the "Geology of Toronto." He began by stating that, so far as geologists were able to search, Toronto was rich in evidences of the prehistoric times.

There could be little doubt that where Toronto now stands was, millions of years ago, washed by the great sea which stretched to the Lake Ontario and that there was a continent where now is Hudson's Bay.

In those days there existed none of the higher types of life. He then traced what the geology of the district, especially the Don and Humber Valley, revealed, of periods of time during which immense changes were in progress on the earth's surface.

Thousands of years ago there had been a river from the Georgian Bay to some point near Scarborough Heights, for every geological find and configuration proved this, and it was after some upheaval and change that the water was forced round by Lake Erie and the St. Clair River. During the ice age all of Canada, except the Klondike, was covered with ice, which, in the Toronto district, probably rose to several thousand feet in height.

This first ice period was succeeded by a period of vegetation, which, in turn, was again succeeded by an ice period, and it is this there was matter for thought—would a third or another ice period follow? After the first ice period Lake Ontario was very much larger than it is now, and had two islands, one at East Toronto, and one at the Junction. Scientists have called the larger body of water Lake Iroquois. In those days, which were probably 17,000 years ago, the caribou and other huge animals roamed the forest and provided food for the Indians. One of the interesting features of the address was the description Prof. Coleman gave of some of the fishes and other animals which lived in those prehistoric days.
